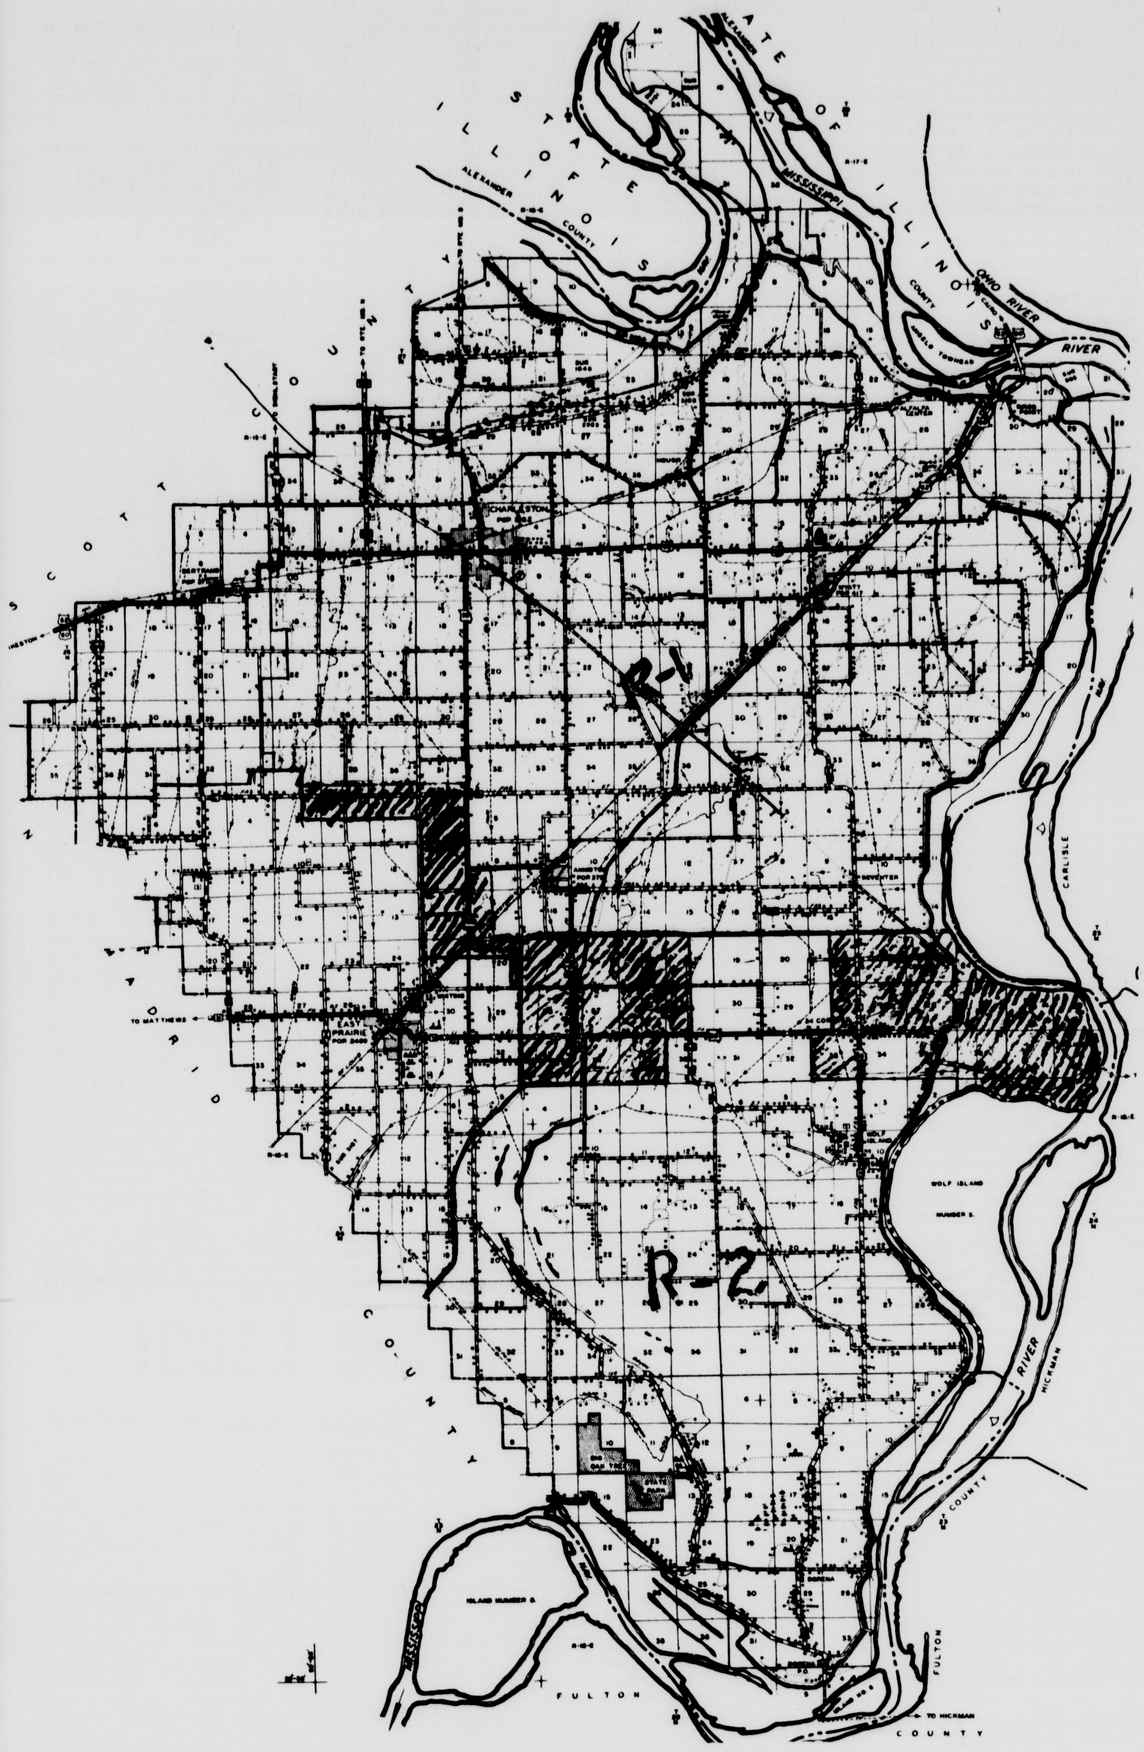
OUR 55TH YEAR | 10¢ PER COPY | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, FRIDAY, MARCH 19, 1965 | NUMBER 148



The Shaded areas of this map are the 33 square miles that are in the boundary dispute between Mississippi county R-1 and Mississippi county R-2 school districts.

Residents Request To Be Assigned to R-2 District

EAST PRAIRIE-- A number of residents and voters of the Charleston R-1 school district, filed a petition, requesting a vote be taken in the April 6 election on a boundary line change. The proposed area is now in the R-1 district, after being voted into the district about a year ago.

The Charleston R-1 school board contend that the petition is not adequate, and have filed a suit in circuit court, declaring the petition illegal and inadequate. A second petition has been filed by the voters of this area to include a proposal for a change in the boundary line, to include their area in the R-2 school district, and to be voted on April 6.

Reasons given by the residents of the approximate 33-mile area, is that the area is much closer and that the residents are tied together socially and economically with the East Prairie school. Also that it would reduce long school bus travel for the children, and that the educational facilities are equal to that of the R-1 district they are now in.

Richard Reed, a member of the R-2 school board stated, "that the present petition had been on file with the R-1 school board since last May, and that only this week found the petitions to be illegal."

MISSISSIPPI COUNTY BOARD ENDORSES BOUNDARY CHANGE

The Mississippi County Board of Education has endorsed a proposed boundary change between the Charleston R-1 and the East Prairie R-2 School Districts, according to a statement from Board President, Noah Heath, delivered to the Charleston Newspaper Wednesday morning by Lloyd Hall, a member of the county board.

The county board's statement is as follows:

"Inasmuch as the prime duty of county school boards is the consolidation of small and inefficient districts into larger units by a process called reorganization, and inasmuch as such consolidation of entire districts may necessitate an adjustment of boundaries, the Mississippi County School Board endorses the proposed boundary change to be voted on at the annual school election, April 6, by the voters of Mississippi County Reorganized District No. 1 and No. 2.

"The change is justified for valid reasons:

The petition requiring the vote on April 6 was circulated by parents living in the area in question and was signed by nearly 100 percent of the voters, indicating their desire to attend school in R-2 District.

The area affected lies much nearer R-2 Schools, at the nearest point within less than one mile. Patrons there claim East Prairie "town" as to trade, newspapers and churches.

The transportation maze would be greatly simplified and the cost reduced.

"The value of land involved is 6.8 per cent of the valuation of R-1. The present valuation per pupil in R-1 is about $430 more than R-2. The change would bring per pupil values much closer together. With proposed further reorganization the relative size, valuation, number, etc. of R-1 District would be unaffected. Total income from the land affected by the boundary at the present R-1 District school tax rate is $44,017.87 out of which amount 102 pupils must be supported.

A Story Of Bravery, Love and Prayers

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — James Deckard is 7 years old today, but he's already had his present.

Nine days ago, doctors removed the stainless steel tube he has worn through a hole in his neck for the past 18 months.

They sewed up the hole and an adjacent opening in his windpipe that enabled him to breathe.

The windpipe closure leaked a little air, his doctor says, with the result that his head swelled up "like a balloon."

But the swelling is subsiding as nature gradually closes off the leak. And James — up and about the family home in nearby Placentia -- is cheerfully busy with crayons and first-grade "homework."

He's quick to smile, slow to cry. His recovery is a story of bravery, prayers and love.

"The doctors say he's a fighter," said his mother, Mrs. Jay Deckard, "and that he has a quick comeback. When he starts on the road to recovery he just pops right out of it."

James, a veteran of 14 operations — the last when they sewed up his neck — is "a real good boy," says his surgeon, Dr. John Wilcox.

James was 3 when he developed a croupy cough and began having trouble breathing, his mother said. His trouble was diagnosed as juvenile papilloma — a noncancerous wart in the larynx, or voice box.

The wart multiplied until his vocal cords and throat were covered with them, his mother said.

Doctors inserted the tube so he could breathe and began the series of operations to remove the warts.

Now remaining, says Dr. Wilcox, is "one little tiny one, nothing to be alarmed about." Is James' trouble behind him? "It's too early to say."

Early in his ordeal, his mother says, James "told us he was going to go to live with Jesus. We told him no, and after the real bad first part was over he began to joke and when we'd tell him he was going to surgery he'd just pack his suitcase and go."

Prayers helped, she says. "So many people of different faiths we saw at the hospital —people we didn't know — gave special prayers for him."

Voskhod 2 Lands

MOSCOW AP -- Spaceship Voskhod 2 landed safely today west of the Ural Mountains after a spectacular 24-hour orbit during which one of the two cosmonauts aboard frolicked outside the craft. There were indications that something went wrong in the landing process.

An announcement by Tass, the Soviet news agency, that the pilot had steered the spaceship to a landing ended hours of mystery and official silence on the Voskhod's fate. Tass said both cosmonauts were well.

The time the Voskhod was aloft indicated it had completed 17 orbits and was on its 18th when it landed.

The exploit of Col. Pavel Belayayev and Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov meant another big step toward travel to the moon. It was Leonov who ventured outside the craft and floated 10 minutes in the void, proving men could work there to assemble space platforms for shots to the moon.

The spaceship landed at 12:02 p.m. - 4:02 a.m. EST-- near Perm, west of the Ural Mountains and 725 miles northeast of Moscow. This is far north of the usual landing spot for Soviet spaceships.

This fact and the character of radio signals toward the end of the flight suggested to the Bochum Space Observatory in West Germany that the landing process was irregular, a Bochum spokesman said.

The Perm area is on the western slopes of the Ural Mountains. Half the area is forested and unfit for a landing, but there is a plain.

Whatever the success of the landing, Tass said Belyayev and Leonov had carried out their experiment successfully.

It was steered down by manual controls by Belyayev, the announcement said.

Belyayev and Leonov "feel well," Tass added. "The scientific program has been fully accomplished."

The delay in announcing the landing was not immediately explained.

The ship came down 500 miles northwest of the usual cosmonaut landing area of Soviet central Asia and southwest Siberia, north of the launching center at Baikonur.

The landing of the two cosmonauts inside their spaceship followed the pattern of the Voskhod, 1, the first multimanned Soviet capsule named with the Russian word for sunrise. It spent 24 hours in orbit last Oct. 12-13.

Voskhod 2 was up 26 hours. It had time to complete 17 orbits and be in its 18th when it landed.

Earlier Soviet space flights in the Vostok series of capsules required the cosmonauts to parachute from the craft. But the Voskhod series is equipped for soft landings on retroactive jets, a report on Voskhod 1 said.

The Tass announcement of the landing said:

"Their program of scientific experiments was carried out in full.

"A complex experiment was made successfully during the flight, opening a new stage in man's conquest for space: a cosmonaut dressed in a special space suit with an autonomous life support system floated freely in outer space.

"The data received during the flight of Voskhod 2 are being tabulated and analysed."

Voters Asked to Approve $2.90 Levy

BLOOMFIELD: -- Voters in the R-14 Reorganized School District at Bloomfield will be asked to approve a $2.90 school levy for the 1965-66 fiscal year and elect two school board members Tuesday, April 6. The $2.90 levy is the same as last year.

A breakdown of the levy shows 70 cents on the $100 assessed valuation is earmarked for the paying of the building bonds for the vocational arts building and the cafeteria. This 70 cents does not need voter approval since it was approved by the voters last year. Nor does the $1.00 on the $100 assessed valuation which is levied by the board without voters approval.

Actually, the voters are being asked to approve a 35 cent rate for the teachers' fund, 55 cents for the incidental fund and 30 cents for the building fund, or a total of $1.20. In other words the voters of the district will be voting on a $1.20 levy, the 70 cents for bonds being approved last year and the $1.00 not needing voter approval.

To date only two men have filed their candidacy for membership on the board of directors. They are Vernon Marquis and Clarence Henry, both incumbents.

The polling place will be the ticket office of the school gymnasium. Voting hours are between 6 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Hearnes said he hoped the commission could complete the job well before the six months limit it has for its work. If the re-aligning is not completed in time Senate elections would be on an at-large basis.

The Democratic members of the commission include:

Edward J. Roche of St. Louis, William Morris of Kansas City, Gerald Lowther of Springfield, Hal E. Hunter Jr. of New Madrid and Sidney Salomon Jr. of St. Louis County.

Republican members:

Gas Users May Save

A reduction of nearly $12 million annually in wholesale natural gas rates by Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America has been ordered by the Power Commission.

Natural Gas, Chicago, supplies gas to 39 utilities in Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Wisconsin.

The amount to be refunded was not determined, but it apparently will exceed $12 million, plus interest.

The commission said Thursday the reduction results from its decision that the company must flow through to its wholesale customers the tax benefits made available by taking liberalized depreciation on its property.

Joseph Swidler, commission chairman, wrote the opinion, joined by Charles R. Ross. Commissioner Lawrence J. O'Conner Jr., concurred but Commissioner David S. Black dissented in part.

According to Bruce Lewis, local manager of Associated Natural Gas, the only gas purchased in this area from Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America is sold to the communities of Jackson and Puxico, Mo. Mr. Lewis said that if there is a saving it would be passed on to the consumer.

California's San Bernardino County is so large it could hold combined areas of Delaware, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Rhode Island.

Mo. Praised For Mental Health

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Missouri's plan of establishing nine regional centers for the diagnosis and treatment of mental retardation has received the commendation of Sargent Shriver and other officials of the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes reported today that a letter from Dr. Stafford L. Warren, special assistant to the President for mental health retardation, requested copies of a bill to create the centers so other states could be told of Missouri's action in the field.

"This plan for regional centers would put Missouri in the forefront of states in the effort to combat mental retardation," the letter said.

Long To Head Red Cross Drive

Albert Long was selected as Stoddard County chairman for the Red Cross drive during March. James Spain was appointed chairman for Bloomfield, Mrs. Ray Williams, Aid; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Light, Advance; Rev. A. W. Freese, Bell City and Earl D. Williams, Painton. Chairmen in other towns are still to be appointed.

According to Mr. Long records show that $10.00 worth of aid was received from the Red Cross in the county for every $1.00 contributed because of the high water near Green Oaks and Dudley and the tornado at Advance.

BROADCASTING'S FAT CATS

The 4,000 radio and television executives who come to Washington for the National Association of Broadcasters' 43rd annual convention, opening Sunday, March 21, should be able to concentrate on having a good time. Profits are soaring for most segments of the industry and, better yet, the federal government isn't trying to press any new regulatory scheme on broadcasting.

On the eve of last year's convention, the Federal Communications Commission announced a proposal that would limit the number of commercials which radio and television stations would be allowed to air during a given period of time. The House rushed to the rescue by passing a bill prohibiting the F. C. C. from setting standards to govern the length or frequency of commercials. The Senate took no action, but the bill's purpose was achieved when the F. C. C. withdrew the proposed rule.

This year the only small cloud hanging over the industry's freedom is the F.C.C.'s proposed investigation into whether the networks exercise too much control over television programming. Also, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D Conn.) was making sounds about an investigation by Congress into excessive violence on television, but has quieted down since his re-election.

Broadcasting Magazine reports (Feb. 22) that 1964 was the best year in radio and television history--moneywise, that is. Combined time sales of the two media totalled $2.3 billion last year, a rise of more than $223 million over 1963. This should assure a mood of well-being at the convention, which will spill over into two hotels (the Shoreham and Sheraton-Park). Highlight of the gathering is likely to be the March 23 evening reception for Congress and government leaders; a similar party several years ago cost the N. A. B. $35,000.

NEWSPAPER REPORTERS' EXPOSE' CASTS DOUBT ON HONESTY OF OKLAHOMA RESULTS

The Oklahoma City Times, one of the state's biggest circulation dailies, has raised serious challenges concerning the results of the May 5 Right to Work referendum. Two of its crack reporters have dug up facts indicating that wholesale fraud may have accounted for substantially more votes than contained in the razor-thin margin given compulsory unionism, and that a correct count of the legal ballots might have produced a victory for the proposed Right to Work law.

The extensive investigation being made by Reporters Daniel Webster and Jim Standard resulted after they had made a cursory check of charges filed with the Oklahoma City Grand Jury by Oklahoma City citizens. The charges cited, for instance, the voting of 41 "persons" who gave their address as 119 1/2 W. Reno Street, a parking lot vacant for years. The Grand Jury will convene shortly to hear testimony and consider the scope of the investigation petitioned by the complaining citizens. Meantime, Webster and Standard are piling up shocking facts and challenging leads.

Under Oklahoma law, the results cannot be reversed regardless of Grand Jury findings. However, indictments against individuals could be returned on evidence of fraudulent voting, conspiracy to thwart the law, and other offenses.

How much work is there in a man? In The Story of Philosophy are accounts of Francis Bacon and Voltaire.

Both men influenced thought as much as any two men who ever lived in what we call modern times.

Bacon, an Englishman, enjoyed a successful and active political career. He entertained lavishly and usually lived beyond his income. His studies and his writings, as profound as anything that ever came from a human mind, were his avocation.

Voltaire wrote monumentally-plays, stories, revolutionary tracts, heavy treatises. He was consulted by hundreds of people. One wonders how one man could compass so much work and activity, yet Voltaire lived to the ripe age of 85.

Neither man ever seemed to have suffered from overwork or from mental strain. Possibly Voltaire died from dissipation, but since he lived to 85, he did pretty well.

We are rarely injured by mental or physical activity. Occasionally at the end of a day a man will find himself exhausted, and will tell himself that his job is too much for him, and then he will recall that he was out until 2 a.m. the night before. Usually we are worn out by overeating and lack of sleep -- not by hard work.

An enterprise which never gets on a profit basis is forced to do everything the most expensive way, buying in small quantities at long prices, using out-of-date equipment, employing lowest priced and least efficient help. The successful company feeds on its own success. Profits are used to cut down every bit of lost motion. Attention is given to such items as lighting and ventilation, which contributes to the productivity of the working force. As new machines and processes are invented, old ones are promptly scrapped.

The outcome is that the margin of efficiency between the successful company and its weak competitor increases every year.

MITES ON MARS?

MIGHT BE

Little Nanorchestes antarcticus couldn't care less, but the discovery of his existence lends a little more impetus to man's determination to explore the other planets of the solar system.

Nanorchestes antarcticus is a pink mite, only one hundredth of an inch long, recently found, says the National Science Foundation, "in a little world of warmth, greenery and water in a mountain range jutting out of the frigid, desolate Antarctic icecap only 309 miles from the pole." As far as is known, no other animal life exists that far south.

If this creature can survive in Antarctica, which at its best is more forbidding than Mars at its worst, then men may be in for some exciting surprises when they or their instruments eventually land on the redplanet.

The Mariner IV probe, which will pass close to Mars this July, is not equipped to discover signs of life on a scale as small as Nanorchestes antarcticus. It could, however, reveal the presence of a similar "little world of warmth, greenery and water."

Of course, no one knows what we would do with Martian mites if we did find them. We might even wish they weren't there.

Scientists would be delighted to be presented with the problem.

JOE DOAKS, ART PATRON

Every taxpayer will be a patron of the arts unless some developments in Washington are brought to a halt, as they should be.

The proposal that the Federal Government subsidize the arts keeps bobbing up, and it has a better chance than ever in this Congress. Art is worthy, by and large, but this is hardly enough justification for paying for it out of our withholding taxes from our paychecks.

The art our public wish to pay for, they may now pay for. And millions upon millions are spent voluntarily each year on literature, music, paintings, opera, theater and architecture. What we are being asked to do essentially is to buy out of tax money the art that nobody is willing to buy voluntarily.

The proposition that anyone who considers himself an artist is entitled to high living standards at public expense is a foolish one. There are great artists who have no trouble earning fine livings, and there are mediocre and poor ones who probably should be encouraged by their failures to turn their hands and minds to other matters. It is hard to see how a Federal Government capable of erecting an esthetic outrage like the Rayburn office building can tell the good from the bad.

This seems to have occurred to the authorities, who propose that a commission of experts decide who qualifies as an artist and who does not, what is art and what is not. Where this leads, nobody knows.

"I quit school when I were sixteen," is the simple and sole message on a sign currently posted in subway cars in New York City.

This soft sell with the obvious grammatical error is intended to impress youngsters with the folly of dropping out of school.

Unfortunately, slogans sometimes have a way of backfiring. One cynical letter-writer to a newspaper pointed out that it only illustrated the sad state of education.

"If, after 10 years of schooling," he asked, "a boy or girl hasn't learned the difference between 'was' and 'were,' how can you justify any additional investment in his or her education?"

"Sorry," said the manager, as they approached the lobby, "but no babies allowed."

So Murphy pleaded with the man and told him that the baby never, ever cried. And the manager finally said, "Okay... but one peep out of that kid, and I'll have to refund your money and throw you out."

Well, this was the worst western you ever saw. Even the horses couldn't act. And when it was only half over, Murphy said to his wife: "This picture is terrible."

"Yes," she answered, "isn't it awful?"

"Well," asked Murphy. "What are you waiting for? Pinch the baby!"

INVENTIONS AND DISCOVERIES

While reliable astronomical records in China date from the 7th century B. C., it was Copernicus (1473-1543) who first recognised the sun as the centre of our universe. In the next century, Galileo adapted the telescope to astronomy. Today, the 200-inch Hall telescope at Palomar--drawn by Russell W. Potter -- and radio telescopes as at Jodrell Bank can probe beyond our galactic system into outer space.

A FAULTY KEYSTONE?

"Counseling" is one of the main features on the War on Poverty, and all over the land counselors are being hired in droves for the first offensive.

The Federal Government seldom risks its reputation as a big spender by testing an idea on a small scale before embarking on it on a vast one. All we have had was hope that the millions to be spent on counseling would work.

But we did hope, because no sensitive person can fail to be stirred by the knowledge of the ignorance and poverty that exist to some degree all over the country. Now that hope is somewhat clouded by doubt, as the Russell Sage Foundation prepares to release the results of a six-year study on the counseling of potentially delinquent girls.

The study shows that girls identified as potentially delinquent and given counseling on an individual basis turned out no better than those so identified and deprived of counseling.

There was no difference in the number who graduated from high school or in their grades. No effect on their truancy could be noted. The same proportion of both groups became pregnant out of wedlock.

Those who conducted the study do not despair. They only feel that with the present knowledge of how to counsel not much can be hoped for-- not that we can't learn how to counsel more effectively.

The point is that the Government is going full steam ahead before the necessary knowledge is available.

Not only that, but such cities as Columbus, Ohio, complain that those hired to counsel youngsters to stay in school are paid far more than those who will have to teach them if they do stay in school.

Washington seems to think we taxpayers have plenty of money for such untried experiments on a grand scale.

FAMILIAR OUTRAGE

Willow Village, a Michigan community, is astonished to find that it is expected to absorb $188,000 in Federal funds under the war on poverty program, and begs to be considered a conscientious objector.

The people don't consider themselves impoverished, and don't want to be labeled as such. The whole affair strongly resembles similar incidents that developed when the depressed areas program resulted in labeling a major part of the U. S. as poor and helpless. Many communities denied such conditions existed in their areas.

The federal folk, along with a cooperating university, give some curious reasons for deciding that Willow Village must swallow our tax money, whether it wants to or not. The 1960 census (now more than four years old) showed high unemployment. There is no hospital in the community. Children must take buses to school. There is no newspaper. There is no self-government.

Roy Smith, supervisor of the township of which Willow Village is part, says unemployment is low there in 1965 and many local residents work in three thriving auto factories not far away. Few people are on relief. There is a doctor's office, and hospitals are not remote in this thickly - settled area. Newspapers come in from Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor.

Smith is a Republican, but the issue is bi-partisan. Raymond Saari, the Democratic township treasurer, said: "I don't think the people who initiated this thing knew what they were doing."

Smith suggests that the grant be returned to the Federal government.

"They've disgraced our community and our residents," he commented.

It's clear that Willow Village hopes Washington will choose some other battlefield for its poverty war. We can all hope that it will not repeat all the old area development mistakes in this new program.

H. L. Hunt Says

ARE NEUTRAL NATIONS WORKABLE?

A country today can be run in one of just two ways. One is the freedom way. The other is the collectivist way.

Mixtures are constantly being tried. But it always turns out that every bit of collectivism restricts freedom and every bit of freedom holds back collectivism. The two may coexist, but they cannot blend. Sooner or later a choice has to be made as to which one is better. Neutral nations in 1965 are not workable.

A favorite trite saying about government is that "It should do for the people only what they cannot do for themselves." Yet there is really very little that people cannot do for themselves, if left to themselves.

Individuals or families cannot raise modern armies. The state is needed to protect individuals against crime. They cannot operate courts of law on the voluntary basis. These are the just powers of the government. But whenever government gets into other areas of life and work, it may become a competitor with personal enterprise. Everything attempted by government which people can do for themselves is always at the expense of private citizens.

Examples are plentiful in our national life today. In fact, goverment is full of people who urge collectivist enterprises on the grounds that they will benefit everybody in the long run. But government cannot create the wealth that will benefit everybody. Only constructive and productive effort can do that.

A government cannot be happy for its inhabitants. A good society involves pride in accomplishment and people can only be happy for themselves.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Can a man find personal happiness while making people laugh at $7,500 a week?

Well, comedian Jack Carter says he can't.

He is troubled by a recurrent nightmare in which he appears before the great tribunal hereafter.

"What did you do in life?" asks a vast voice.

"I told jokes," replies Jack quavering. And then the judge's awful verdict rings in his ears:

"Put him in Hell for 400 years —and throw on more coal!"

Jack is one of the few remaining triple-threat performers in the nation's contracting night club industry. He can sing and dance and ad lib with the best of them. And some of the best of them like to watch him work.

But listening to the wiry, effervescent comedian talk about his career, you'd think it has been a cheerless failure.

"I have to be constantly told it is really worthwhile just making people laugh," he remarked. "I think life is to be enjoyed, but I enjoy it the least of anyone I know.

"I'm a driven man. Offstage, I'm morose — a pretty miserable soul, so introverted people think I'm a snob."

"I'm a born servant. I should be running a cleaning shop. I'm so anxious for everybody to love me that I get upset if a bus boy in a restaurant doesn't smile at me," he says.

"All entertainers seem to have guilt complexes in varying degrees. You're a child for life. You're leading a child's life in a grownup's world.

"You have a terrible feeling of not having a real tie to the rest of the world — as if you were nothing but a laugh machine. You feel life you'd like to take a day off now and then to build a bridge, discover a disease cure, or just go to an office like other people do.

"And despite their outward appearance, entertainers are terribly afraid of being hurt. I try never to hurt anybody, hoping that then they'll never hurt me."

Show business has been Jack's world since he entertained customers as a child by giving mimic impressions atop a table in his dad's candy store in Coney Island. After service as a medic in the Army, he became a star on television.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Mississippi congressmen aren't advertising it, but almost every weekend they are flying back to Mississippi to defend their seats in Congress.

This is not because they are being challenged for reelection, but because a battery of New York lawyers have been taking depositions showing that the congressmen were not elected by all the people of Mississippi -- that Negroes were excluded from voting.

Under the law by which Mississippi was readmitted to the Union, all the people of the state are guaranteed the right to vote and Mississippi Negroes are now claiming the law is not enforced.

Alabama, incidentally, gave similar guarantees when she was readmitted into the Union.

At first the challenge to the seating of Mississippi congressmen was not taken seriously. But it is today. Mississippi congressmen are so worried that they have set up headquarters in room 1003 of the King Edward Hotel in Jackson, under Charlie Griffin, Washington administrative assistant to Rep. John Bell Williams. They have also hired Lyndon Johnson's old friend, ex-Gov. Jim Coleman, as legal counsel.

Rep. Williams, though recently refused all Democratic seniority privileges, has been flying back and forth to Jackson to help both himself and his three other Democratic colleagues keep their seats.

--GOV. JOHNSON BECOMES MODERATE--

Ex-Gov. Jim Coleman, now retained by the congressmen, was slapped down by Mississippi voters when he tried to run for Governor because he was considered a moderate.

Today, however, Jim is considered a possible savior because he once served as an administrative assistant in Congress when Lyndon Johnson was a young congressmen, and knows the President well.

Today the challenge to Mississippi's congressmen is causing such worry that Gov. Paul Johnson has called off a special session of the State Legislature originally planned to denounce the new Civil Rights Act.

"One reason," reported the Tupelo Journal, "was to avoid providing a forum which might produce inflammatory statements or resolutions which might prejudice the congressmen's defense."

When Gov. Johnson returned from the inauguration of President Johnson last January, he immediately warned Mississippi leaders that the challenge to their congressmen was serious. Ever since then, Johnson has endeavored to change the state's image. He has come out emphatically for law and order, has even criticized the "Southern Review," a right- wing publication, for calling him a "first -class integrationist."

"This element is the type that would turn on their own people," Gov. Johnson said. "We're not going to be a pushing boy for that element again."

Only a short time ago, Gov. Johnson was hand-in-glove with Mississippi right - wingers. When Mayor Thompson of Jackson announced publicly that he would obey the new Civil Rights Law, Gov. Johnson publicly advised Mississippians not to obey it.

"Law and order is going to prevail -- particularly for the next six months," Johnson told a gathering of five hundred bankers and business leaders sponsored by the Deposit Guaranty Bank and Trust Company of Jackson last month.

Reported W. F. Minor, Jackson correspondent for the New Orleans Times - Picayune: "There are indications that Mississippi unofficially sees the weakness of its position in the denial of Negroes to vote in the past, and the state is quietly going to set about doing something to change it.

"Compared with every other southern state, Mississippi has just a fraction of the Negro population now registered. The latest unofficial estimates place the figure at around 29,000 out of 600,000 total registered voters in the state."

Since 148 Congressmen voted against seating the Mississippi congressmen last January, events in Alabama have inflamed northern public opinion and brought pressure on every member of Congress. Among the congressmen voting to seat the Mississippi delegation who have been pressured are: James Fulton, R., and William Moorhead, D., both representing heavily Negro districts in Pittsburgh, Pa.; Manny Cellar, D., of Brooklyn, who claims to be a great civil rights advocate; Cecil King, D., of Los Angeles, another civil rights champion; Jed Johnson, D., of Oklahoma; Dante Fascell, D., of Florida, who deserted other Italo-Americans on this vote; George Fallon, D., of Baltimore, a city with a heavily Negro population; Jim Delaney, D., N. Y., a great friend of Cardinal Spellman, a cleric who has just contributed $10,000 to the family of Rev. James Reed.

Among other Democrats who voted with the Mississippians were Wayne Aspinall of Colorado; Edward Derwinski of Chicago; Spark Matsunaga of Hawaii, who claims to be a great civil rights champion; Walter Moeller of Ohio, who once wept and wrung his hands over the oppositon of the Medical Lobby; Claude Pepper of Miami, the one- time New Deal senator and battler for civil rights; John Tunney of California, son of the one-time heavyweight champ; Ben Reifel of South Dakota, the only Indian in Congress; Rolland Redlin of North Dakota, elected by Northwest liberals who got very sore that he voted with Mississippi.

Longshoremen Solve Red Fish Mystery, Outmaneuver the Soviet Strategem

New York: -- There was a touch of James Bond to the latest episode in the campaign of America's longshoremen against the entry of Soviet merchandise into the U. S.

Mysteriously, the U. S. S. R. state marketing trust has been getting millions of dollars worth of frozen fish into our country through the big harbors -- though no longshoremen have knowlingly unloaded Soviet cargo from any freighters.

Obviously the members of the International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA) were handling the Red fish. But how? Where? When? Obviously these imports were hurting American fishermen, cutting down profits and jobs, because the Soviet food has been sold here at slashed prices made possible because the U. S. S. R. has no consequential wage cost aboard its craft.

Finally matters got so tough for America's fishermen they went to Red Moran, vice president of the Boston ILA. They believed they had the answer. Investigation proved they did. Here's what had been happening:

Big Soviet Trawler fleets, bunched in groups of 20, have been steaming into the lush and lucrative fishing beds off the New England Coast -- not too far outside the three mile limit. Thus they are in international waters.

It was a flotilla of such Soviet trawlers which attempted to seize the American lobster net craft "Ruth and Helen" commanded by Capt. John Francis Jr. This happened off Newport, R. I., when the Ruth and Helen's radio went bad.

Capt. Francis asked the Russian captain of the H-3H6 to radio our Coast Guard. The Sovieteer refused. Instead he attempted to seize the American ship as "salvage."

Such flotillas, in which the F-3H6 was one of 20 Red trawlers, catch fish, process and freeze them right on board. The Soviet craft then can stay at sea for long periods. When they're full, they steam off to such Dutch ports as Antwerp or Rotterdam. There the frozen fish, already packaged, is put aboard non-Communist ships bound for the U. S.

Last week the New England fishermen, disturbed by the Soviet incursions on the nearby waters and their income, learned that Russian fish was being transshipped back to America, frequently in American freighters. The fishermen had been tipped off that the United States Line "American Contractor" had such crates of Red fish aboard and was heading from Antwerp to Boston.

Red Moran asked his longshoremen not to unload the cargo. The American Contractor headed for the New York harbor. It hove to on Sunday, March 10, at Pier 76, North River.

A warning was flashed to ILA executive Vice President John Bowers, who knows the docks and his cargo like an Irish tenor his lullabies.

For three days Bowers and his fellow longshoremen went over that cargo. There was nothing at first to indicate that the fish imports -- cod blocks -- were part of the Russian catch.

Finally they hit on 400 cases containing 26 tons of the stuff. They refused to unload the shipment. Then they learned the company might take it down to Philadelphia. Word immediately went out to the brethren there asking them not to handle the cargo.

At the same time Bowers had kept a vigil over at Pier 60 where 100 crates of Soviet vegetable oil had lain for two weeks since it had been unwittingly unloaded from another U. S. Lines freighter, the "Champion". This cargo, too, was not touched.

From now on, Bowers said, the ILA network will keep an alert on what comes from Antwerp, Rotterdam or any other Western European city, to head off transshipped Soviet fish catches.

"This is no red herring matter," Bowers told this columnist. "American fishermen are losing jobs because the Soviet trawlers really poach in our waters, pay their people slave wages and then undersell us. We would be scabbing on our own countrymen and fellow workers if we helped the Soviets in that subterfuge."

News of the ILA action has made the rounds inside labor. Workers in other industries hit by low price Eastern bloc imports are contacting the ILA. Latest request for a similar boycott has come from the glassmakers' union hit by Czechoslovakian competition. American businessmen are also communicating with the dockworkers.

Bowers and his colleagues are not certain how far they can go. But they're willing to try. They don't want to make foreign policy for the U. S. But they say no one can force them to help the opposition.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: After seven years I realized something vital was missing in our marriage. My husband was not unkind nor abusive — just bored to death, and frankly I was bored to death, too. I did not mind that he stopped at his mother's house every evening before coming home (and sometimes ate there).

I saw the signs before we married and I accepted the fact that he was a Mommy's boy. His low sex drive and his total indifference to me is what drove me to the yellow pages in search of a marriage counselor.

Well, Ann, the marriage counselor was the kindest and most understanding man I'd ever met. After four visits he began to tell me about HIS problems. He is unhappy, too. You guessed it. We are in love. He has small children and a nervous wife. He wants me to wait until he is in a position to "do something." Now I REALLY need help. — DILEMMA

Dear Dil: Simply because a marriage counselor is listed in the phone book does not mean he is competent, or even on the level.

The best way to select a marriage counselor is to ask your family doctor or your clergyman to direct you. I can personally recommend the Family Service Association and the Y.M.C.A. Obviously, your marriage counselor needs a marriage couselor. And so do you —but not him, Lady.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter may provide an answer to other young mothers who are having daily battles with their children about their eating habits.

Our Barbara is almost two years old. She has a mind of her own and when she makes it up that's it. She refuses to eat vegetables or meat. The child has been living on mashed potatoes, cake, candy and cookies. Barbara will not drink milk unless I put chocolate syrup in it. I've tried all sorts of tricks, like putting sugar on the carrots but it didn't work. She threw it on the floor.

Two weeks ago, out of sheer desperation, I called our pediatrician. He said, "When you find out who is boss in your house call me back." And then he hung up.

I was furious, then hurt. Later I began to think seriously about what he had said. I decided to BE boss and I set out that very day to serve Barbara the food she should have. When she refused to eat it I took it away. The next day it was the same story. By evening she was so hungry she ate everything on her plate. The battle is over. —THE WINNER

Dear Winner: The happy part of your story is that your child wins, too.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl who just turned 15. My parents promised I could date on my 15th birthday provided I did well in school and lived up to my responsibilities at home. I have kept my part of the bargain and they are keeping theirs.

I have had four dates, three with the same boy. I will call him Earl. He is very good-looking and my girl friends think he is great, but Earl has Roman hands and Russian impulses if you know what I mean.

On two separate occasions I have told him what I stand for but he doesn't pay any attention to me. I need help from an outsider because I am not doing very well. Thank you. — LOSING

Dear Losing: Since Earl is not much impressed by what you stand for perhaps you'd better tell him what you WON'T stand for.

Some boys need to have things spelled out for them in very plain language and I suggest you start learning to spell.

Confidential to SHOULD I?: Heavens NO!!! What if the children inherit his looks and your brains?

Canalou P.T.A. And 4-H Meets

CANALOU -- The art and music room of the elementary school displayed work created by the art classes of Miss Pat Williams, Monday, March 8, when the P. T. A. met for its regular meeting; the parents enjoyed a program presented by 4-H members under the direction of their leaders, Mrs. Peter Myres.

This program explained the work that is being done around the world and emphasized the Ifye program, in memory of a recent guest, C. F. Avad, from India.

It is said that a penny from each 4-H member would support the Ifye program. A collection of $5.17 was made at the meeting for this purpose.

The 4-H program was correlated with Spanish music and songs under the direction of Mrs. Elmer Gruen, with Ruth Ann Lumsdwen at the piano. The program was highlighted by the soprano voice of Terri Lowery and the alto voice of Shiela Beardsley as they sang a Duet in Spanish and A Spanish dance by Barbara Barnes, Pamela Lasters, Joe Myres and Rickey Whiffen, which Mrs. Peter Myres had taught them.

After the program, and during the business meeting, the pupils and their leaders enjoyed games and refreshments in Mrs. Gruen's room. For the first time many of them tasted Jalabi, on Indian food which Mr. Avad taught Mrs. Gruen to make while he was a guest in her home last fall. Mrs. Myres served fruit punch to compliment the Jalabi.

The attendance banner was won by Miss Pat Williams.

Stuart Welcomed With Open Arms By Philadelphia

Dr. Strangeglove exploded a couple of baseball bombs and the fallout reached all the way from Florida where the Philadelphia Phillies are training to Arizona where the Boston Red Sox are working out.

Dick Stuart, whose fielding feats have earned him a variety of nicknames in previous stops at Pittsburgh and Boston, is a welcome addition to Philadelphia's cast this season, strange glove and all.

Stuart earns his living by hitting, not fielding, and the outspoken first baseman demonstrated his specialty Wednesday helping the Phillies edge the Detroit Tigers in an exhibition game, 6-5 in 12 innings.

Gene Mauch's new power man socked a pair of homers, the second one winning the game in the 12th. Listen to Stuart and you'd think he was only doing what comes naturally. "I expect to be one of the top home-runs and runs-batted-in men in the National League this season," he said recently.

Stuart's huge ego was dented somewhat by the deal which sent him from the Red Sox to Philadelphia in exchange for pitcher Dennis Bennett.

Bennett's 12-14 record last year did suffer a bit by comparison with Stuart's 33 home runs and 114 RBI but the left-hander had some arm trouble which hampered him after a good start.

While the Phillies were savoring Stuart's muscle-flexing, the Red Sox were becoming a bit concerned over Bennett's arm. The southpaw allowed two runs and four hits in three innings in his first test this spring as Boston lost to Cleveland 7-3.

After the game, Bennett, who didn't throw hard, received an ice-pack treatment for his ailing shoulder.

St. Louis' World Series hero Bob Gibson hurled three hitless innings against the Cincinnati Reds. In the fourth, the Reds got two men on and Gordie Coleman hit a three-run homer as Cincinnati went on to a 4-1 victory over the World Champions.

Sandy Koufax, the Los Angeles Dodgers' ace, struck out five in the first three innings he worked but then was tagged for home runs by Washington's Woodie Held and Brant Alyea in his final frame. The Dodgers parlayed a 20-hit attack into a 13-5 victory.

In other games, the Chicago White Sox held off the New York Yankees 6-5, Pittsburgh downed Kansas City 7-1, Houston beat the New York Mets 7-4, the Los Angeles Angels sneaked past San Francisco 8-7 and Minnesota nipped Milwaukee 9-8.

Just where will the Bulldogs go in this new season of golf? That question at this point is hard to answer. They have three returning lettermen from last years squad, which had a 9-6 record. They finished up in second place in the district tournament, where they won four of the five matches played. Cape defeated them and then went on to tie Mexico, Mo. for the State Championship.

It's possible that the Bulldogs can again gain the second place position again this year, but that will probably be as far as they get, for the Central Tigers did not lose a single man from their foursome last year.

The three lettermen back for the Bulldogs are Clayton Vandivort, Paul Hill, and Charles Stamp. Vandivort and Hill are seniors, and Stamp, fortunately for the Bulldogs, is just a sophomore.

A first in Sikeston's brief history on the golf course is that they will play the Malden Green Wave this year. This is the third year for the Bulldogs to have a golf team.

Breda Kolff Considers Himself Fortunate To Play The Wolvernines

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "No," said Princeton Coach Butch van Breda Kolff in answer to a question. "We haven't scouted any of the other teams. But we've played Michigan, so I guess we're fortunate to get them again."

He said it with a wry little grin and was answered with a ripple of laughter through the press conference that was grilling the coaches of the four teams competing in the NCAA national basketball championship tourney.

Van Breda Kolff's long-shot Ivy League Tigers go against the powerful Wolverines, the nation's top-ranked college power, at 10 p.m., EST, tonight in the tourney opener.

Defending champion UCLA, ranked No. 2 in the nation, plays unranked Wichita in the other half of the doubleheader at 12 midnight, EST.

The winners of tonight's games play for the title at 10 p.m., EST, Saturday, with the losers playing a preliminary game at 8 p.m., EST.

Both semifinal games are scheduled for regional television coverage. The championship game will be telecast over some 135 stations by Sports Network Inc.

Van Breda Kolff's reference to Michigan was meant to be a funny one. In a previous meeting, Princeton's Bill Bradley, College Player of the Year, scored 41 points and paced the Tigers to a 12-point lead before he fouled out with 3½ minutes to go.

Michigan came on and won it 80-78 on a 20-foot jump shot by All-America Cazzie Russell with three seconds to go.

Michigan, again, is a solid favorite to win its semifinal game, as is UCLA, although UCLA Coach John Wooden had second thoughts about the matter.

"I don't believe any one of the four can be much of a favorite over the others," Wooden said.

Be that as it may, his swift Bruins are favored to take it all and become only the fifth team to win back-to-back titles.

The Bruins come in with the best record in the tourney, 26-2, and are sparked by All-America Gail Goodrich and 6-5 Keith Erickson.

Michigan is easily the biggest, strongest team in the tourney and has four returning starters from last year's team that finished No. 3 in the nation. They are 6-6 Russell, Bill Buntin and Oliver Darden, each 6-7 and about 230 pounds, and Larry Tregoning, 6-5.

Princeton, 22-5, relies to a large extent on the individual all-round brilliance of the 6-5 Bradley.

Wichita, 21-7, rallied to win the Missouri Valley Crown. The team scoring leader is 6-1 Kelly Pete. The Shockers are the smallest team in the tourney, with no starter over 6-5.

Stagg Preferred Scrawny Players

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Amos Alonzo Stagg preferred scrawny but willing players to mechanical musclemen on his football teams.

Through 57 years as a head coach, Stagg was the vigorous champion of the little guy and the long-shot cause.

He was a small, rugged and alert man.

His greatest players were like Walter Eckersall and Clarence Herschberger at the University of Chicago—slight of build, keen of mind.

As a believer in the power of emotion, Stagg never gave up on a boy because he didn't look like a football player, physically.

As a harsh taskmaster, the Grand Old Man deplored those who did not think like football players.

Twice this restless pioneer moved westward to spread his gospel of victory through fair play.

Stagg, a one-time Yale divinity student picked on the first All-America team, started football at the partially completed Chicago campus in 1892 with a squad of 13. He built the Maroons into a Big Ten Conference power which won six titles and enjoyed five unbeaten seasons in his 41 years there.

When faced with compulsory retirement by Chicago in 1933, Stagg, 70, termed himself "fit, able and willing," and migrated to College of The Pacific with the comment, "I refuse to be idle and a nuisance."

To critics of his policy to send the little Stockton, Calif., school against top-flight opposition, Stagg replied:

"Well, if you don't schedule the big fellow how can you ever expect to defeat him?"

From 1947 until 1953 he aided his son, Amos Alonzo Stagg Jr., at Susquehanna College in Pennsylvania and came up with a double flanker formation which befuddled opponents.

When the illness of his wife, Stella, convinced Stagg he should remain in Stockton the year around, he took a job as advisory coach at the local junior college. Until a few years ago he gave special instruction to the punters.

Mrs. Stagg died in 1964.

"Coaching is the primary factor in football," Stagg once wrote. "I should put school traditions second and raw material not better than third."

His over-all record shows 309 victories, 200 defeats and 35 ties.

In 1899 Stagg turned out his first unbeaten team which captured the championship of the Big Ten, a conference which he had helped to create. In 1904 he became a member of the national football rules committee.

The following year Stagg successfully plotted the end of a 56-game unbeaten streak for Fielding Yost's point-a-minute Michigan powerhouse. Eckersall's quick thinking and sure punting were major factors in the stunning upset fashioned on a safety, 2-0.

After the 1905 season, President Theodore Roosevelt became alarmed at the growing casualty rate resulting from the close order, battering type of play. Roosevelt's ultimatum to gridiron leaders: Change the game or abandon it.

The forward pass which completely opened up football was the answer. Though the revolutionary weapon was not Stagg's idea in 1906, he pioneered its use.

Stagg had 64 different pass patterns worked out for use against Minnesota in the big game that season but rain and mud forced him to abandon the tactics in a 4-2 loss. The next week Stagg gave the okay to throw the ball around a little and Chicago trounced Illinois 63-0.

Chicago lost only two games in the period 1905 through 1909 as Stagg enjoyed the most prosperous era of his career.

The Team With The Worst Doctors Report May Win The NIT Championship

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The team with the worst doctor's report may win the National Invitation Tournament basketball championship.

That could be the case if Bill Melchionni and Ken McIntyre carry their present conditions over to Saturday afternoon's final between top-seeded Villanova and St. John's.

Despite their various injuries and illnesses, Melchionni starred in Villanova's 91-69 breeze past New York University and McIntyre sparked St. John's to a 67-60 triumph over Army in semifinal games Thursday night.

"If I was missing, I would have taken myself out," said the 6-foot Melchionni, who felt dizzy before and after the game.

In between, though, he poured in 28 points, hitting 11 of 20 tries from the field. Following the Wildcats' victory over Manhattan last Monday night, Melchionni spent part of Tuesday in the school infirmary, feeling sick and weak.

"I think I have some sort of virus," he decided.

McIntyre, on the other hand, still suffered from a leg injury incurred against Boston College a week ago and an upset stomach which he picked up last Sunday night.

With all of these aches and pains, the 6-foot-3 McIntyre tallied 21 points and extended his free-throw streak to 42 straight.

As soon as Villanova crushed NYU, the eighth-ranked Wildcats, 23-4, then started thinking of how they are going to stop McIntyre, who has scored 83 points in three games.

Villanova, which beat St. John's 52-43 earlier this season, will be trying for its first NIT title while St. John's, 20-8 goes after an unprecedented fourth crown. The game will be the last for St. John's Coach Joe Lapchick, who retires next month.

The consolation game will feature the same teams that played for third place last season. In that one, Army edged NYU 60-59.

Antarctic's Area

Antarctica, with an area of 5.1 million square miles, is almost as large as the United States and Europe combined, according to Britannica Junior Encyclopaedia.

NEW YORK AP -- Fordham University track star Sam Perry underwent surgery on his right knee Wednesday that will keep him out of competition this spring.

Perry, who tied the world record for the 60-yard dash with a 5.9 clocking last month, had damaged cartilage removed from his right knee at St. Vincent's Hospital.

NEW YORK AP -- The National Basketball Association playoffs open next Wednesday with Philadelphia at Cincinnati and Baltimore at St. Louis. The regular season schedule ends Sunday.

These are the semifinal best-of-5 divisional playoffs. Cincinnati finished second to Boston in the Eastern Division with Philadelphia third. St. Louis has cinched runner - up honors to Los Angeles in the Western Division with Baltimore third.

School Of The Ozarks A New Approach

By HANK BILLINGS
Springfield Leader and Press
Written For
The Associated Press

POINT LOOKOUT, Mo. (AP) —This hilltop community above Lake Taneycomo, in the heart of the Ozarks lake country, is the home of the unique School of the Ozarks.

Although it has most of the facilities of a city, Point Lookout is not an incorporated town or village, but it has a postoffice dating back to 1930.

Its population is about 1,100. That includes 700 students, 200 faculty members, staffers and dependents, working together to overcome two new challenges:

Making do and rebuilding after a Christmas vacation fire destroyed the Green Building, one of the largest and oldest on the 1,000-acre campus;

Expanding from a junior college to a four-year liberal arts college to meet the changing needs of the hill country since transportation and reorganization have brought a high school education within reach of everyone.

The school was organized in 1906 by the Rev. James Forsyth, a Presbyterian minister, as a grade and high school to meet a need before buses and mergers extended opportunities for a high school education.

Although the emphasis has shifted from the lower grades to junior colleges and now toward a four-year program, the basic religious and earn-while-you-learn precepts are unchanged.

All the students earn all their tuition at tasks which serve a dual function of supporting the school and teaching them a trade along with a liberal arts background.

All are required to attend Sunday morning chapel services. Blessings are said before each generous meal, apt to include vegetables from the school's farm or canning factory; milk and ice cream from its dairy; bread and cookies from its bakery and meat from its packing plant.

Other student industries provide Point Lookout with its own furniture plant, printing shop, newspaper, beauty and barber shop; water, sewer, telephone and electric systems; a 60-bed hospital and an FM radio station.

There is a student-manned fire department and a one-man police force. The latter has no traffic problems because none the students is allowed to have a car and all live on the campus.

Many of the student firemen were away for the holidays when fire struck the Green Building, but firemen from nearby resort communities came to the rescue.

With typical self-sufficiency, the school opened on schedule after the fire, in temporary quarters with equipment bought, borrowed, donated, or turned out in its own shops.

Dr. M. Graham Clark, former Atlanta, Ga., business executive who has been president since 1946, has been on the go steadily since and has raised, with insurance, $357,009 toward an estimated replacement cost of $500,000. It includes a pledge from one donor to match any $1,000 gift.

Dr. Clark took over the school reins from D. R.M. Good, who steered the college through the depression years.

"I can remember the time when Dr. Good had to find contributions to pay for that day's operations," recalled Charles Fain, a Branson lawyer, who is past president of the alumni association.

Dr. Good, still at the school as president emeritus, works just as hard in support of its changing image.

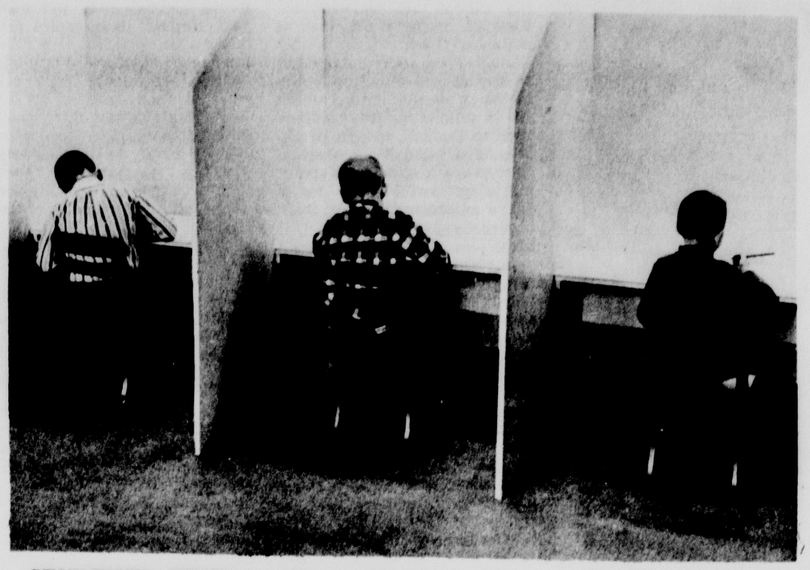
Beginning June 1, the school will add a junior class. It will drop the first year of high school and limit freshman applications.

"We already have 772 applications for 200 to 250 freshmen spots," reports Dr. James E. Findlay, vice president of academic affairs.

Next year a senior class will be started.

"We'll add about 25 students a year until we level off at 1,000," Dr. Clark added.

"But one thing won't be changed—the school's devotion to prayer and work in getting an education."



STUDENTS STUDY in their individual offices in the Easter Seals Class in Springfield, Mo. for children with learning disorders. The class is sponsored by the Greene County Society for Crippled Children and Adults in cooperation with the Springfield Public Schools. It is the first voluntary educational program of its kind in the state.

Easter Seal Classes for Children

ST. LOUIS--An Easter Seals Class for children with learning disorders has been opened in Springfield, Mo. under the sponsorship of the Greene County Society for Crippled Children and Adults in cooperation with the Springfield Public Schools.

This is the first voluntary educational program in the state geared exclusively to children with normal or potentially normal intelligence who have learning disorders or a perceptual, conceptual, or coordinative nature. Such learning disorders prevent children from responding to usual techniques employed by the public schools. The majority of these children have underlying neurological damage caused by pre-natal or neo-natal injury or a severe childhood illness or accident.

Organic abnormalities are frequently difficult to diagnose; however, these children can often be identified by the following behavioral symptoms; perceptual difficulty, distractibility, perserveration, hyperactivity, and impulsiveness. All children have these characteristics to some degree, but in those with learning disorders, they may appear in extreme or inappropriate forms. All these children do not exhibit the same symptoms to the same degree, but rather in varying degrees and in varying combinations.

Children with learning disorders have always been among us. They have only recently been identified as invisibly crippled human beings for they have little or no physical handicap. Their "crippling" involves their ability to perceive their world, to think about it, and to respond to it in effective ways.

Unfortunately, these children are usually not found until after they have suffered failure in school. Then there is usually no place for them except the classroom for the mentally retarded, and they do not belong there. They need a special program tailored to their individual needs where they can learn the basic skills by special methods so they can eventually take their places in a normal public school classroom.

According to Mrs. W. Yates Trotter, Jr., coordinator of the Easter Seals Class, "Our present program is for six and seven-year-old children. We prefer to reach the child before he suffers the trauma of school failure or acquires poor learning habits."

The classroom and the teacher are the two most important factors in such a program. The Easter Seals Class has five children, although ten children are the maximum number. The room needs to be free from auditory and visual stimuli; therefore, the colors of the walls and furniture are uniform, the floor is carpeted, no pictures or displays are on the walls, and each child has his own cubicle or "office". A teacher's aide, in addition to the teacher, is present throughout the school day so that each child receives the proper attention so necessary to his progress.

Mrs. JoAnne Brown, a graduate of Central Missouri State College, is the teacher of the Easter Seals Class. In preparation for this class, she attended a summer workshop at Syracuse University, New York on "Teaching of Brain - Injured Children".

There are no "cookbooks" available for this type of program. The teacher must be highly imaginative so that she can perceive the world as her students do. She must have much ingenuity as she has to make different lesson plans for each child. She must be impatient with herself if her methods do not bring results, for she must then change her methods. Some normal children will learn in spite of their teacher, but not children with learning disorders.

Such a program is very expensive but is a worthwhile investment for any community.

Patricia Neal Taken Home From Hospital

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Patricia Neal, her speech hobbled and her right side paralyzed by three massive strokes, remained "very cheerful" today, although the life of her unborn child still hung in the balance, her husband said.

"She's displayed tremendous courage — and has never been depressed," said British mystery writer Roald Dahl. "She's always joking now."

Dahl, who brought his wife home from UCLA Medical Center Wednesday night, disclosed Thursday that she is five months pregnant.

"But we don't know whether or not she'll be able to have the baby," he said. "We'll have to evaluate the effect of the medication and X-ray treatment she's received."

The Academy Award-winning actress, 39, was stricken Feb 17 while giving the oldest of her three children, Tessa, a bath. She had just returned to their rented Pacific Palisade home after doing her first big scene in the film, "Seven Women."

"She felt this terrible pain in her neck," said Dahl, recounting the ordeal.

"She lost consciousness, but regained it on the way to the hospital. Thirty minutes later she suffered a second stroke."

While she was being X-rayed and given other diagnostic tests, Miss Neal suffered a third stroke, her husband said.

"We didn't know when she went into surgery whether she'd survive. Her chances seemed a little better when she came out of surgery alive."

She remained in surgery seven hours, while doctors removed a blood clot and accumulated blood from massive hemorrhaging and clipped together the broken blood vessel in her brain, Dahl said.

"She was unconscious about 2½ weeks," said Dahl. "But gradually she began to come out of it."

Friends have taken care of the children, Ophelia, 10 months, Theo, 5, and Tessa, since their mother's illness.

Dahl said his wife's first words were halting.

"But within a year, she should be able to speak well again."

He said he hoped to take Miss Neal and the children back to their home in England in four to six weeks.

Report from Hashua, N. H., advised that one airplane landed on top of another "by accident." It is nice to know nobody is doing that sort of thing on purpose.

HE MUST BE ALL

If Jesus Christ is anything to me He must be everything. How can one believe in His audacious claims and not cry out with Thomas, "My Lord and my God?"

How can one perceive the challenge underlying His statements and be content to compromise with the unworthy?

How can one hear Him say, "Follow Me," and be willing to go less than all the way?

How can one accept His love and not be prepared to share His Cross? If one refuses to give Him first place can that one really believe in Him as God, Redeemer, Saviour and Friend?

"Will ye also go away?" asked Jesus of His disciples as the fickle multitude forsook Him.

"To whom shall we go?" asked Peter.

"Thou hast the words of eternal life."

Truly, if He is not all to me, can He be anything at all? Jean Brown

Guerin Signs New Pact With St. Louis

ST. LOUIS AP -- There may be no place like home, but Richie Guerin of the St. Louis Hawks decided Thursday he can stay away for at least one more year.

Guerin signed for another year of self-imposed exile from his New York home by accepting a substantial raise to return as player-coach of the Hawks.

Nearing the end of his brilliant playing career in the National Basketball Association, the 32-year-old backcourt ace thus laid the groundwork for at least a brief coaching career.

"I don't want to make a career of coaching because of all the travel," said Guerin, who almost quit after the 1963-64 season because basketball in St. Louis took him away too much from his family in New York.

Despite numerous injuries that put Guerin, Bob Pettit and others out for prolonged periods, Guerin coached the club to a 26-19 finish after replacing Harry Gallatin on Dec. 29. St. Louis took second place in the Western Division.

THE IMAGE OF GOD

Give me ev'ning quiet, still,
Waiting hushed to learn His will;
Make a canopy of stars,
Up where nothing hides or mars;
Show me rip'ning tree and field,
Ready soon for harvest yield;
Loose the storms then warm with sun
Let the seasons have their run.

God of night, of height, of care,
God of nature bright and bare;
Lord of earth and Heav'n above,
Prince of peace, of hope, of love;
May I see in all I view,
God of might, Thy image true.

Today's Spanish Lesson

By William Archer
Lesson No.22
Reading time 5 Min. Study time 5 Min.

Yesterday we gave you the English sound "ray" that enables you to use the third person singular of the verb 'to want':

A) He wants. B) El quiere. C) l/key-AIR-ray

Now we give you the sound "day" to enable you to use the third person singular of the verb 'to be able':

A) He can. B) El puede. C) l/poo-AID-day

"RAY" and "DAY" -- remember these sounds because they give you the conditional mood in the present tense: A) I can go, but he doesn't want to go. B) Puedo ir, pero el no quiere ir. C) POO AID-doe/ear/PAIR-oh/l/no/key-AIR-ray/ear

A) I am going if he wants to go. B) Yo voy si el quiere ir. C) yo/voy/see/l/key-AIR-ray/ear

A) I can go if he can go. B) Puedo ir si el puede ir. C) poo -AID-doe/ear/see/l/poo-AID-day/ear

A)He can go, but I can't. B) El puede ir, pero yo no puedo. C) l/poo- AID-day/ear/PAIR-oh/yo/no/poo-AID-doe

Here are your new sounds: key-AIR-'o' -- 'I' want.; l/key-AIR-'ray' -- 'He' wants; poo-AID-'doe' -- 'I' can. ; l/poo-AID-'day' -- 'He' can.

'Key-AIR-' and 'poo'AID-' are the stems of these "keys". Just add the endings "ray" and "day" to the stems and you add a completely new world to your conversational ability.

See how simply a child learns? "O" was the first sound he employed to say, 'quiero' and 'puedo'. Now he changes the endings to "ray" and "day." Small wonder that a child can learn so rapidly!

FOR TIME OF PUNISHMENT

When we must punish him, then, gracious Lord,
Instruct us well that in the afterward
His small-boy heart may know that we forgive
And that we love him with a shoreless love
O God, that what we say and do may be
As candlelight upon the road that he
Will travel through an often rugged land,
A golden light to help him understand
Thy love and Thy forgiveness vaster far
Than all the avenues from star to star.

The State Reorganization Commission of Missouri

CHAPTER X
DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE

The Department of Revenue was created by Section 22, Article IV of the state constitution and the broad outlines of its organizational structure are set up constitutionally.

The Department of Revenue's director is appointed by the Governor, with Senate Confirmation, and he is subject to removal by the Governor at any time.

Two divisions of the department are established by the constitution. They are the Division of Collection and the Division of Budget and Comptroller. The method of selecting these division heads is determined by Chapters 32 and 33 of the statutes. At the present time the collector is appointed by the director of revenue with the approval of the Governor. The comptroller is appointed directly by the Governor, with confirmation by the Senate, and is subject to removal by the Governor at any time.

Other divisions have been assigned to the Department of Revenue by statutes and by executive orders. They are: (1) Division of Procurement; (2) Division of Fund Commissioners; (3) Division of Public Buildings; and (4) the Tax Commission. The chief executives of these divisions are appointed directly by the Governor rather than by the head of the Department of Revenue.

The operation of the Department of Revenue comprises three types of activities: (1) the physical handling of state moneys; (2) those activities and services that may be easily recognized as necessary for administering a particular statute or group of related statutes; and (3) those activites and services provided by the department for all internal divisions and operating units.

The Division of Collection was created in 1946 following the adoption of the present constitution. All tax collections were made the responsibility of the Division of Collection. Since the creation of this division, the work load has been constantly growing, reflecting increases in the state's population and increases in revenue receipts. The Division of Collection now collects well over $700 million annually for transmission to the State Treasurer. There are about 880,000 automobile title transactions each year, and passenger car license renewals number approximately 1,460,000 during the same period. The driver's license unit issues almost 925,000 licenses and permits annually. The income tax unit processes over 1,300,000 personal income tax returns; and about 2 million information reports are received from employers during a one - year period. The Sales-Use Tax unit maintains about 75,000 current accounts from which tax is collected quarterly, and 1,200 accounts from which tax is collected monthly. Total sales - use tax collections amount to more than $173 million per year.

The problems in operating this division involve processing a great volume of paper work. The divison probably contacts more individual citizens of the state than any other unit of state government; therefore, citizens have an interest in the efficient operation of the division. The department is attempting to carry out the provisions of legislation with an administrative structure not designed for a large work volume.

The Division of Collection is now operating as a decentralized group of individual units. Each unit provides its own office services, tax collecting and tax enforcing media. Such policies have allowed duplication of common functions among the units.

Modern administrative organizations recognize characteristics observed within the Department of Revenue as indicative of need for a strong, centralized organization emphasizing common functions. These characteristics include: (1) large work volume; (2) large numbers of semi-skilled workers; (3) relative low pay for most workers; (4) repetitive work routines; and (5) evidence of inadequacy in the present decentralized system.

The 1955 State Reorganization Commission recognized administrative problems within the Department of Revenue. During the past ten years developments have emphasized these problems-- increase in work volume has overburdened some units, causing untimely delays in processing documents.

The 1965 Commission proposes departmental reorganization according to work functions, i.e., money collection, tax law enforcement, and common administrative services. Such a reorganization would enable the department to utilize the limited number of specialists more effectively, as well as install assembly - line methods for common departmental functions.

The proposed departmental structure is merely an extension of recommendations by the 1955 Commission.

"FREE ENTERPRISE"

As I peruse these Western newspapers I am more than sure that Will Rodgers was right as we only know what we read in these sheets.

In this following article I will try and convey to the public my views as to the Right to Wr to Work.

I am including an article of my previous writings.

The busy bee plainly shows man the natural way of life.

Coming up soon our President will have to make his dedision on the Right to Work.

This will come under States Rights and there will be no racial argument. If the Presidnet allows these union leaders to quelch States Rights then we will know how strong politics really are.

Of course we know that Franklin D. Roosevelt and Adolph Hitler were the greatest politicians since Solomon destroyed Israel.

I must not only be chaste but above suspicion.

Abe Lincoln -- 1849

J. C. MAY

A half century ago bubbling surface springs of cool clear water flowed over the white sand of the beautiful branches of the foothills and there was abundant supply for all forms of "Life" at all times. Man's greed has changed this natural scene as these springs have disappeared and posterity will not see this beauty. Even in extended rainless periods this water would burst forth and flow as it came from subterranean pressure. Man can change natural thing, but in the end he will find that nature belongs to God.

In the Virgin state, the mighty trees with their natural evaporation supplied enough water to sustain all life. During the hot summer months the morning dew of their leafy branches was equal to a thunder shower.

On the upper reaches of our great rivers and their tributaries, more and more dams are being built in the battle for water and each new dam lowers the underground pressure and the life giving water has gone to lower depths. The chestnut, the elm and now the mighty oaks are withering and dying as their roots search for moisture. To stand the diseases and pests of nature, trees and man must have water in abundance to survive.

In the underground caverns of the Ozarks, you can see how much the water level has dropped in a few decades and this may soon become noticeable in the major springs of the state. In the upper reaches of the Missouri, more and more water is being used for irrigation of the arid states east of the Great Divide, and millions of gallons of this is lost in evaporation. In addition to this the damand for more water becomes heavier each year for the expanding population of this area. In the 7 western states the battle for water has become critical and some cities may become ghost towns due to this situation, as the majority of this territory is desert land.

The waters of the mighty Colorado have been impounded by the mighty dams of man and this river where ships once sailed into the Imperial Vallery is now a tepish stagnated stream as it flows through the rich volcanic ash on its circuitous route through Mexico to the Pacific.

The subterranean water that gave Arizona its boom of recent years is dropping at the alarming rate of ten feet per year and the irrigation pumps have to go deeper for the necessary supply to maintain life.

The Winter Garden of America in the Imperial Valley is wholly dependent on the water of the Colorado and before the day of these dams this river flooded this valley and cut a new river across the desert and flowing through deposits of salt created the Salton Sea that is near the bottom of the bowl as this valley is 200 feet below sea level. This happened after the turn of the century and latest reports say that this body of water is slowly disappearing.

EVAPORATION

If nature should destroy Hoover dam the waters of Lake Meade would become a raging sea from the Superstitious Mountains to the San Jacinto Range. Engineers are now figuring on a way to divert water from the Columbia to ease the situation in California.

I was at Brewster, Washington when they broke ground for the Grand Covelee Dam and the estimate was that they would pour enough concrete to build a sidewalk four feet wide, six inches thick that would reach one and one half times around the globe. The estimate also stated that over a million acres of the great American Desert would come under this irrigation plan.

At the great Bonneville dam, man tried to compete with nature with his fish ladders for the Salmon or the "Homing Pigeon" of the deep, that at naturity came into the mighty Columbia and its tributaries to reproduce and die. This is one of the wonders of nature as the spawn follows the fresh waters back to the salt waters of the sea. The latest biological reports say that the main species stay in the deep for 7 years and then return to their birthplace with the same God given instinct that the lower animals and insects possess. This great source of food is slowly disappearing and may soon follow the passenger pigeon.

Man will never be able to duplicate nature or make a distillery as perfect as a tree planted by the water. The most perfect example of Life has been before man's eyes since the Creation and man knows as little about it as he does about the "Elixir of Life" that is known as one of the 7 follies of science. The busy little bee that supplies one of the greatest and purest foods for mankind and shows where "Royalty" is a deserving title. When the new Queen Bee emerges from the hive with her new swarm, she takes a straight course upward and the entire swarm will disappear from sight. During this flight she is inoculated for life and as the swarm descends and settles, which is usually on a tree branch she becomes the center of attraction. After this they must have a place to live and work and scouts are sent out to search for a suitable place. If man places the new swarm in an artificial hive he must be sure the Queen is among them or his work will be in vain. If the Queen accepts her Royal quarters the first battle begins as the male bee or drone has finished his course and after this execution, work really begins. This execution is the first duty of the "workers" as they supply the necessities of life.

The Queen is assigned to her Royal quarters with her special attendants. She must produce enough eggs for new recruits to replace the old workers as they supply the pollen from the golden nectar of flowers, as the average life of the worker is forty days.

During this period they literally work themselves to death in carrying their heavy loads and wear their wings until many fall and die before reaching the entrance to deliver their final load to the keepers of the household. At the entrance of this castle are the eternal guards ready to sacrifice their life, for when they lose their stinger they die. These must be replaced with new guards.

Inside this castle are many mysteries as this is a technical structure. The first line of workers receive the nectar of pollen from the field workers and this is consumed as food in the natural state and must pass through their bodies and through perspiration it is purified before going into the pure state of honey. The Royal attendants must now prepare the Queens food as she is the agent for all posterity and even another batch of lazy drones will be necessary. These castles were air conditioned long before man thought of the idea.

I wonder if the instinct of the bee is strong enough to detect the poison that man has sprayed on the nectar of the flowers and if the system of their purification could eliminate same. This source of food may soon be lost to man.

Below the dams of the Missouri and the Mississippi, the water is at times too low for transportation and also creates a dangerous condition to the water supply of millions of people. With the refuse of his body and the chemicals of his plants, man has contaminated the rivers until aquatic life cannot survive for long and this is a source of food that could be obtained throughout the year. With an extended period of drought man may walk dryshod across the bed of the Father of Waters, and the mighty barges of water transportation will settle in the mud and the steel wheels will again have to carry this load.

READING PREFERENCE OF AMERICA CHANGING TO MORE DIVERSE BOOKS

NEW YORK - The reading of books has been steadily increasing during the past five years, especially paperbacks books which bring popular literature within the means of all.

What types of books are Americans reading today?

Carl W. Holstrom, head of book operations of F. W. Woolworth Co., largest paperback book seller in the nation -- more than 20 million last year -- surveyed some 2,106 retail outlets for books in Woolworth stores throughout the United States and Puerto Rico to find out.

For the first time in years there is no single outstanding best - seller, but several paperbacks are now top favorites with the reading public, Mr. Holstrom reported. They are "The Spy Who Came In From The Cold," "Harlow," "The Kennedy Wit," "Fail Safe," and "The Americanization of Emily."

"This present trend toward a diversity of good books is in direct contrast with the months preceding the Presidential election when books on politics dominated the public's interest, Mr. Holstrom pointed out.

Detective books are next on the best-seller list, with Erle Stanley Gardner's books and the works of Ian Fleming as top favorites among mysteries. The books by Fleming have been particularly popular in recent months, he said.

The perennial favorite among the ladies is Dr. Spock's "Child Care," which continues as a best-seller, with his new book, "Dr. Spock Speaks To Mothers," also near the top of the list.

Mr. Holstrom pointed out that only good reading is found on Woolworth stands to fill the growing demands for increasingly better reading material by a more discriminating public.

"The survey indicated that there are no regional differences in the reading preferences of people. We sell paperback books in our stores from coast to coast and find that any given book, if good, will be as popular in the East as in the West," Mr. Holstrom said.

"The reading public quickly recognizes a good book and will respond by purchasing them for themselves and their friends," he noted.

DANGERS OF SELF-RIGHTEOUSNESS

"Fringe Benefits For Employees of State Colleges

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A bill allowing increased "fringe benefits" for employes of state colleges was approved Wednesday night by the House Committee on Higher Education.

The measure would permit the Board of Regents of a state college to set up additional benefit programs including hospitalization and workmen's compensation. Under existing laws, regents can contribute only to retirement programs.

Self-supporting patients would gain a chance for treatment at Ellis Fischel State Cancer Hospital in Columbia under a bill approved by another committee.

Under the bill, the indigent would retain first priority at the hospital, but others could be admitted if vacancies existed.

The House Education Committee postponed action on a substitute for a bill establishing educational television in Missouri.

The substitute would set up an educational TV authority but provide no funds to build a network. The original measure called for an expenditure of $1.5 million the first year.

Approved by the committee was a measure allowing voters in St. Louis County to decide whether to set up a vocational high school district. The vocational district would merge with an existing special district for education of the handicapped.

Pocketbooks Reactive As Vital Organs

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "The patient's pocketbook is as real and as reactive as his vital organs and should be treated with the same respect," said Dr. Edward T. Auer.

Dr. James L. Mathis said:

"The technologist is one of the first persons the patient encounters. He is probed, pricked, pushed and pulled by someone usually totally unknown to him for reasons only vaguely understood and always to his physical or mental discomfort."

Dr. Auer is chief of psychiatry at St. Louis University, Dr. Mathis is from the psychiatric staff at the University of Oklahoma and they appeared before the annual convention of the Midwest Hospital Association Thursday to talk about what Dr. Mathis called iatrogenic illnesses.

Roughly translated, these are doctor-caused illnesses; but they can also be blamed on nurses, blood drawers, needlers, samplers, x-rayers and other technologists working on patients.

"Illness produced by stress in turn compounds new stresses," said Dr. Auer. "How does the hospital bill affect the patient's recovery? Is he worried about follow-up care after he returns home? Do we hospital people bother to ask?"

Dr. Mathis said:

"People harbor primitive and irrational emotion about illness. Some feel it is a retribution for past sins. They have a guilt complex. Often they are looking for someone to blame for their predicament. No test should be started without some small personal talk between patient and technologist. The patient should be allowed to question what is goind to happen to him, why things are being done.

Which U.S. Dollars Going Abroad Are Doing us Any Good?

NEW YORK (AP) — Just which U.S. dollars going abroad are good for the country and which are causing trouble? A wide difference of opinion is developing, both in the Congress and in the business and banking community.

The administration is asking U.S. banks to limit loans to foreigners and U.S. corporations to curtail investments in other lands — but just certain kinds of investments and not in all lands.

The administration says this may cut down the excess outflow of dollars which over the last seven years has caused a drain on U.S. gold reserves and caused some nations, notably France, to question the role of the dollar as ranking with gold in the monetary reserves of other countries.

Critics of the plan for voluntary cutting down of private overseas investments by Americans charge that this would push the United States into economic isolation.

And the widening split in the thinking on how best to bolster the dollar and keep more of them at home comes out in the open with the filing this week of the annual report of the Joint House-Senate Economic Committee.

Democrats on the group want to save the dollar by the program the administration has launched, but also by cutting the number of U.S. troops in Europe, especially in France.

The Republicans say private investment abroad, over the long run, returns more dollars than are sent out. Such investments make the American economy strong, they contend, and aren't the real cause of the excess flow of dollars overseas. They think government spending is.

They also contend that the better way to stop excess dollar outflows, such as in the final months of 1964, would be to raise interest rates here. This would narrow the gap between the yield from money invested in this country and the return on dollars invested at the higher interest rates obtaining in almost all other lands.

To Digest an Education, Take it in Smaller Bites

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Advice from the president of Yale University on how to digest an education?

Take smaller bites.

Several times since he took office last October as the 17th president of Yale, Kingman Brewster Jr. has hinted that he would like to do something about the treadmill aspect of acquiring an education.

"I think there ought to be more landings and detours along this escalator of academic achievement," he said in a recent interview.

What bothers Brewster is that formal education has become, for many young Americans, a nonstop process that goes on for 20 years. Small wonder some of the participants get a little weary along the way.

Brewster said he feels it might be sensible to "build in some discontinuity."

One way, he said, would be to make the conventional four-year program leading to a bachelor of arts degree five years instead. The student could have a year along the way to take a break if so inclined.

Another approach would be for students, immediately after completing high school or prep school, to spend one year in some worthwhile nonacademic activity.

"I think there's a kind of blind conformity to the expectation that you must go straight from school to college," Brewster said.

Brewster does not intend that young men should defer starting college just to spend a year lying on a beach. He wants this year off to be invested in stretching the mind.

"It could be a job," he said, "it could be travel, it could be domestic Peace Corps work."

So far, Brewster has not altered the undergraduate program at Yale to test his theories. The university still is what it was when Brewster, then 44, succeeded the late A. Whitney Griswold as president.

He actually had been running Yale for some time before the inauguration last April. When Griswold died in April 1963, Brewster already was provost, the university's chief educational officer.

Now that he is president, Brewster feels a little more heavily the weight that rests on the man who speaks for a university.

But in one respect, he said, presidents have it easier now than in the past. This advantage, he said, is the growing tendency to value brains.

No Letup From Blasting Winds For Missouri

KANSAS CITY AP -- Cold north winds blasted Missouri today and the weatherman says there isn't much relief in sight for a day or so.

Temperatures this morning ranged from two above at Maryville to 25 at Cape Girardeau. But there wasn't much snow, just some flurries over the state.

The lows tonight are expected to tip to zero to five above in the north, 5 to 10 in the west central and 10 to 20 in the rest of the state.

The highs Friday will be around 30, with some readings in the south reaching the mid-30s.

Other low temperatures this morning included St. Joseph 10, Kirksville 11, Kansas City 12, Columbia 15, Springfield 19 and St. Louis 20.

While awaiting shipment to Korea from a southern Arizona army base our group was assigned a number of what we considered were degrading duties for combat soldiers. Finally, on the day before we we were to ship out, came the crowning indignity -- we were assigned to seed the lawn in front of the general's quarters.

All morning we worked, spading, hoeing, and sowing grass seed. During our lunch break several of us visited the post exchange. That afternoon we finished seeding the general's lawn -- with turnip, pansy, rose, spinach and watermelon seed.

Rivals!

It has often been said that the only logical substitute for a new Cadillac is one that has seen previous service. Whatever you plan to invest in your next car, above all consider Cadillac.

If you are like most people, you hope someday to own a new Cadillac motor car. For Cadillac's continuing greatness in design and engineering has made it one of the world's most desirable and sought-after possessions. But if a new Cadillac is not presently feasible, you should consider the pleasure and satisfaction that would be yours with a late model, previously-owned Cadillac. Your dealer currently offers an unusually wide selection of fine used Cadillacs at a cost in line with that of many new cars of far less stature and quality. These fine Cadillacs are all in superb condition, and many offer features not yet available on other makes. And from a standpoint of investment, remember that a Cadillac traditionally returns more of its cost at resale than any other car at or near its price. So visit your authorized Cadillac dealer, and let him show you a Cadillac—new or used—that will fit your budget. Your visit will be the wisest motoring move you have ever made. Why not make it this week?

Football Player Finds Religious Life Not Dull

BY BUDDY DIAL
Star End of Dallas Cowboys

So many people I've met -- athletes, businessmen, college girls, young marrieds-- avoid God and stay away from church for a reason that I feel is all wrong. They believe that God wants to take away their fun and make life dull for them.

It hasn't worked that way for me. On three specific occasions I was tempted to turn away from God for strictly worldly reasons. When the temptation was resisted, God seemed to bless my obedience and bring me added joy and happiness.

The first test came when I was 13. I had grown up in a small Texas community called Pinehurst. As members of the Assembly of God church, my family always was involved in church activities: a revival, a prayer meeting or a hymn sing, or a supper or an outing.

But at age 13 I primarily was interested in football, not religion. And if it wasn't football, I would be fooling around with my guitar.

11TH OF SERIES

One night while Dad was at work, I heard Mother cry out from her room. When I rushed in, she was gasping for breath. Then her breathing seemed to stop. I knelt by her bed and in a panic cried to God to save her.

Then it seemed I heard a voice say, "Give your life to Me." I was startled and confused. This couldn't be God, speaking to me--or could it? For a few moments, I fought a battle within myself over my wants and what God might want for me.

Then I whispered, "Lord, I give You my life."

I'll never forget what happened next. Mother stirred and suddenly she began to breathe normally again.

Was this experience simply imagination at work in an impressionable boy? I'm sure many people will think so, but it was vividly real to me. Furthermore, from that moment I entered fully into church life. Soon I was playing my guitar and singing Gospel hymns at revivals and services, God came first in my life.

Meanwhile, I also went out for high school football. When I made the varsity football team, my second big test came. The high school games were played on Friday night. But Friday was also a church night.

"You can go to church on Sunday," the coach told me.

I wrestled a long time with this one. Finally, I told the coach, "I would love to play, but I know you'll get along okay without me." The people at church praised me, but I really took it from the kids at school.

The problem was solved for me the next year when the church service was changed to another night.

When it came time to choose a career after my graduation from college, I decided to go into professional football. Some of the church people considered pro football too worldly. Others objected because the games were played on Sunday.

The guidance I received from God was that I could be a good Chrisitian and do the Lord's work as a professional football player just as well as in any other profession. My father worked at his job in an oil refinery on Sunday. If my job in football called for me to work Sunday, so be it.

My third test came not because we played our games on Sunday, but because first, we had to be at a team breakfast at 10:30 Sunday morning and, secondly, we had to go directly to the field after breakfast in order to be taped and suited up for the game. This made it difficult to attend church at all.

When I played for the Pittsburgh Steelers back in 1963, I discovered that the Roman Catholic men on our squad got up early for Mass, but there was no service early enough for Protestant players.

My strong inner guidance was that I should try to work out something for myself and other Protestant players as well. But what?

I knew a young minister -- also a sports enthusiast-- in Pittsburgh by the name of Bob Messenger. I talked to him and we worked out a plan. Then Bob and I spoke to the coach of the Steelers, Bud Parker, who endorsed our idea.

After the next Saturday practice, Coach Parker called the team together, and I made a simple announcement that there would be a short devotional period before our pregame breakfast, led by our friend Bob Messenger.

There were 26 Protestant men on our squad. Bob and I expected eight or 10 to be there but 26 were on hand that Sunday morning -- and we had good attendance every Sunday from then on.

My goal is to live and play with such zest that people will say, "Here's a man who truly enjoys life and plays for a higher purpose than winning a football game."

Blueprint for Total Federal Regimentation

EDUCATION AT EVERY LEVEL FROM THE GRADE SCHOOL THROUGH GRADUATE SCHOOL

In his message transmitting the Act to Congress President Kennedy said: "I have heretofore requested the Congress and request again today the enactment of legislation to assist education at every level from grade school through graduate school." The following steps are proposed:

(1) Under Title VI, Federal financial assistance to education would carry with it Congressional approval of Federal control of education by administrative and executive orders, without limitation, without judicial process and without further legislative action. "Assistance" carries with it "control." This is applicable to all existing as well as future programs.

(2) Vocational education in all of its major phases would be taken over by the Federal government at an intial annual cost of between $400 million and one-billion dollars, if Congress enacts recommendations A through F of paragraph (2) of Section III of the President's message.

(3) A radical and unprecedented departure from the Brown decision and all Supreme Court and other court decisions in the field of education is embodied in Title III of the Act. The Federal courts have recognized the right of state and local governments to administer their schools, but by orders and judgments in judicial proceedings have required admission to schools and colleges of qualified students who wished to attend, without discrimination on the basis of race, color or creed. Title III would vest in the Commissioner of Education of the United States administrative control in this field of every public school and college board in the United States through (a) Federal personnel employed by him with unlimited right of conditions and restrictions, (c) special Federally devised courses for "teachers, supervistors, counselors and other elementary or secondary school personnel," and (d) suits and injunctions instituted by the Attorney General in the name of the United States with penalties of fine and imprisonment.

(4) The power given the Commissioner of Education to bring about a removal of "racial imbalance" in public educational institutions at all levels in the United States is also a radical and unprecedented departure from all Supreme Court decisions. The use of Federal administrative authority to force (by means mentioned above) complete race mixing by the transfer and transportation of students from one school to another goes far beyond the court decisions.

(5) Control by the Federal government of both state and local governments in the educational field is provided in Title III, through the broad power conferred upon the Attorney General to bring suits against state and local governments without any actual limitation whatsoever. The wording used in Section 307 (a) and (b) is designed to permit such suits in the sole discretion of the Attorney General.

CONTROL OF STATE AND LOCAL ELECTORAL MACHINERY

The Act takes the first two steps in Federal control of all state, local and Federal elections including any "general, special or primary election held solely or in part for the purpose of electing or selecting any candidate for public office" within the United States. Section 101 modifies all state laws defining qualifications for voting. It transfers from local officials to Federally appointed "voting referees" the registration and qualification of voters upon certain allegations being made in suits by the Attorney General without the necessity of proof. It ousts the jurisdiction of local officials under specified circumstances during the pendency of litigation and before trial. The Attorney General could move into sensitive areas just before a national election, register tens of thousands of voters whose votes would count, even if the appointment of the referees or the registrations were later set aside.

If this Act is adopted the precedent will be set for Federal take-over of those steps in all state and local elections in the United States recommended by the United States Commission on Civil Rights on pages 15-24 of Volume 6 of its 1961 Report:

(1) The qualifications of all voters;
(2) The registration of voters;
(3) The establishment of voting districts;
(4) The holding of elections and the counting of votes;
(5) The establishment of electoral districts;
(6) The authorization of Federal prosecution (with penalties including fine and imprisonment) of state or local officials who, in the opinion of Federal personnel, are guilty of "any arbitrary act of (where there is a duty to act) inaction" in the area of registration, voting or counting of votes in any Federal election, i.e., complete Federal control of state and local officials.

Matter of Fact

In 1884, Gen. U. S. Grant, leader of the U. S. forces in the Civil War and twice president of his country, was penniless and suffering from cancer of the throat. Nevertheless, when approached by a magazine to write his memoirs, he undertook the work and finished it four days before his death. The articles later appeared in the form of a book which was so popular that it earned $500,000 for his surviving family.

Looking Back Over the Years

50 years ago
March 19, 1915

J. H. Barnett has sold his three-year-old pacing filly to Phil Simpkins for close on to $500. She won over $900 in stakes the past season.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bowman on Sunday, an eight-pound girl.

The City Dads have recently changed the name of King street to North Kingshighway and South Kingshighway. This was in keeping with the D.A.R. chapter of this city, who is co-operating with other chapters to make this noted highway from New Madrid to St. Louis.

The Hoosier Land and Investment Co., sold to a Chicago party, the first of the week, 160 acres of land belonging to A.C. Sikes and A. J. Matthews, lying Southeast of Malden, at $100 per acre.

March 19, 1925

Over $2,700 was raised in cash and pledges last week by the local Presbyterian Church, acting with the assistance of the Rev. H. L. Saunders on their plan to erect a church in Sikeston. Mr. Saunders, who is the State Presbyterian Evangelist, spent last week here getting the campaign started. The building is to be erected on their lot at the corner of Matthews and East street.

The American Legion is making plans for a large Easter egg hunt to which all the children in Sikeston will be invited. The Post hopes to be able to get the Fair Grounds for the hunt, which will be held on Easter Sunday afternoon.

As Mrs. Jarvis took her seat on the gaily decorated stage, Mrs. Helen Reuber sang a special song arrangement for this occasion. The retiring Woman of the Year, Mrs. J. R. Harwell, presented Mrs. Jarvis with a silver bowl, which was followed by an announcement by N. E. Fuchs that Gov. Warren E. Hearnes would send her special recognition for the coveted honor.

The address of the principal speaker, Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, gave the speaker an occasion to laud his neighboring state of Missouri for the past fine leadership, after which he took occasion to point out the many accomplishments of his own state including the number of "firsts" in the nation. Highlights of his address are as follows:

"This is an occasion which lends itself admirably to the recognition of the American woman. The B. & P. W. Club, through their objectives and code of ethics, has had no little part in bringing woman to the forefront in American economic and social activities. Therefore, on this occasion, let us turn back the pages of history and briefly review the unparalleled progress of the American woman during the past century.

"History has recorded down through the years that America is commonly represented by two figures — one an extremely thin, tall old man, dressed in clothes of a by-gone era embellished with the stars and stripes of the national flag: the other a portly maternal female dressed in flowing robes of classical style, crowned with a diadem and holding a torch in her hand. Uncle Sam, the old man referred to above, represents the government of America in its demanding aspects — he wants your savings for war loans, your money for taxes and most of all, to the young men in every whistle stop post office over the country, he points a stern finger saying "I want you."

"In far difference case is the Goddess of Liberty. She is America the bountiful, pouring out endless treasures from her cornucopia: she is America the land of the free, holding high her torch to illuminate the path to democracy, the land of opportunity, yielding her favors to those who are industrious, energetic, and ingenious. In the shorthand of symbolism, these figures represent a most important psychological truth. America in its benevolent, rich, idealistic aspects is envisaged (by Americans) as feminine: it is masculine only in its grasping and demanding aspects.

"I want to point out a few 'firsts' in our state:

"Mississippi was the first state in the nation in establishing Memorial Day for the Confederate and National soldiers. The first decoration day in the nation was held on May 30, 1868 at Columbus, Mississippi. The National Commander, Honorable John Alexander of the Grand Army of the Republic, set aside the date as Memorial Day and requested that the custom be followed throughout the nation. The custom of paying tribute to our honored dead had its beginning by thoughtful ladies of the Magnolia State when flowers were placed on the graves of Confederate and National soldiers in Columbus, Mississippi, on May 30, 1868.

"The first Order of Eastern Star ever promulgated in the world was organized in Mississippi. So Mississippi is the birthplace of the Order of Eastern Star. The idea was conceived in 1847 by Rob Morris, a prominent Mississippi school teacher.

"Mississippi has more certified tree farms than any other state in the nation. Our state has been the number one tree farm state in the nation since October, 1955.

"The first steam ginny in our nation was established in Mississippi by Doctor Rush Nutt, an outstanding physician and cotton breeder in Jefferson County, Mississippi.

"The first state in the nation to substitute steam for horse power in cotton ginning. This occurred in 1830. The world's largest inland long staple cotton market is located at Greenwood.

"In 1839 the State of Mississippi led the English speaking world in legislation protecting the property rights of married women.

"The dental certificate, used throughout the nation to encourage school children to have proper dental care was first used in Mississippi. The idea of the dental certificate originated with the Mississippi State Board of Health in the 1920's. Mississippi's slogan "Send Your Child to School with a Dental Certificate" began to be adopted in other states until today its use is nationwide.

"The first soil sedimentation laboratory in the nation, used exclusively for soil sedimentation and research, was established at Oxford.

"The first cotton crop in the world produced entirely by machinery was in Coahoma County, Mississippi.

"The first 4-H Club movement in the nation originated in Mississippi. In 1907 Corn Club Smith, a school teacher, started what was known at the time as Corn Club For Boys.

"The first state land grant college for women in the nation was established at Columbus, Mississippi, by an act of the Mississippi legislature, March 12, 1884, known as the Mississippi Industrial Institute and College, now known as Mississippi State College for Women.

"The first permanent white settlement in the Lower Mississippi Valley was the beautiful scenic and historic Biloxi, Mississippi, in 1669. The settlement was made through the efforts of P. L. D'Iberville for King Lewis XIV of France.

"Mississippi has more churches in proportion to population than any other state in the nation. It has one church for every 289 persons. The national average in 1957 was 814 persons per church.

"In 1962 Mississippi had next to the lowest crime rate in the nation, and in 1963 it had the lowest crime rate in the nation according to the F.B.I.

"Approximately 30 years ago the people of Mississippi took a firm and unwavering stand against socialistic trends and left-wing theories, and here is what two great industrialists said of and concerning the people of Mississippi:

"We, like you, still believe in the dignity of man, in a state's sovereign rights, that the Christian principles should be put ahead."

"An industrialist said:

"Mississippi is one of the last of the old frontiers where industry can still make a profit and where its employees can work together in peace and harmony and perfect understanding."

"The largest single unit ever erected in oil refinery construction — a 488-ton vessel used as part of the isocracking reactor — was set in place at the new Standard Oil Refinery at Pascagoula in late March, 1963.

"The largest carpet plant under one roof in the world is located at Greenville, Mississippi.

"Bordered on the west by 400 miles of the Mississippi River, on the South by the Gulf of Mexico, and with numerous inland rivers and streams, Mississippi offers unexceled opportunities in water and marine resources. (I was speaking to 110 industrial prospects in New York. Plants in Louisiana. Mississippi River.)

"Mississippi was the first state in the nation to start a "tree farm family" plan of forest management for small woodland owners.

"The world's largest cotton plantation is located at Scott, Mississippi. It contains 38,000 acres.

"The highest price on record paid by an individual for a polled Hereford bull was set by B. C. Rogers of Morton at the National Polled Hereford Show in Jackson, Mississippi in 1963. Mr. Rogers paid $102,000 for the National Grand Champion.

"Mississippi's school record system is being copied by many states. The system helps guide teachers and instructors in charting the proper courses for the student — preparing him to become a better educated citizen.

"In 1946 Mississippi initiated the first medical correction program of its type in the nation. The program has given new hope and medical correction to some 10,000 children since initiated.

"The National Association of Junior Auxiliaries originated in Greenville, Mississippi, at a meeting of ladies' organizations from some 10 towns in Southern states, on November 3, 1941.

"The Mississippi Department of the American Legion has led in its membership activity over other state departments five times since 1937. It led for three consecutive years and then two consecutive years.

"Two of Mississippi's favorite songs are "The Missouri Waltz" and "St. Louis Blues."

"Mississippi in 1962 held first place in the nation in the number of persons rehabilitated through vocational training, per 100,000 population.

"Mississippi, in 1895, became the first state in the nation to abolish the practice of leasing convicts to private contractors.

"Mississippi was the first state to:

Have a levee system; by Act of Congress, September 28, 1859. Establish a "literacy fund" for free education for poor children.

"The first state land grant college for Negroes established in the United States was at Lorman, Mississippi, now known as Alcorn A & M — an A-1 institution.

"A University of Mississippi surgery team, at the University Medical Center in Jackson, on January 21, 1961, successfully completed the first operation on a human being ever performed under electrical anesthesia in the United States —possibly in the world.

"Mississippi was the birth place of bigtime boxing. The first great championship fight in American ring history was fought on February 7, 1882, at Mississippi City, when John L. Sullivan, strong boy from Boston, defeated Paddy Ryan in 8 rounds for the heavy-weight title of the world.

The Governor changed his remarks to more recent comments when he said,

"The proposed act of Congress on voting apparently is unconstitutional. However, the United States Supreme Court will ultimately pass on the constitutionality of the act and I understand from the news media that the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court was leading the cheering section while the President was talking. It was apparent that all Congressmen were not present when the President made his speech. Someone seems to have had the House chambers packed with capital office help and pages to make it appear that all Congressmen were there, when in fact, they were not.

"The voting laws in Mississippi are fair to all people. Anyone who can meet the legal requirements will be eligible to vote. They are as fair to one as to another. The law is to be applied to all in the same manner. It seems to me that the purpose of the proposed new legislation on voting rights is to replace Southern Senators, Congressmen and others with radicals. We would not have any trouble in the South if we were let alone. This legislation is punitive, and punitive legislation is not for the best interests of the people. The state of Alaska is very much disturbed over it. People there are beginning to realize what it means. Our Congressmen from the Far West was asked to vote to do away with all literacy tests in voting. He talked favorable at first and then he said — but you know that will affect my state.

"There is a significant relationship between New Jersey's first constitution of 1776 and Section IV of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States, which in effect guarantees to each state such protection as might be necessary to control its own domestic affairs.

"The only thing today between the people of America and Dictatorship in the Constitution of the United States as it was written and not as it is being interpreted by judicial decrees and by executive orders.

"Millions of Americans, in every state, are deeply concerned, and rightly so, about the state of affairs in our nation today. The future of constitutional government in the United States is in grave danger from selfish minority blocs that have the open support of high government officials.

"Right thinking Americans are disturbed, they are disappointed and many are shocked by the complacency of some of our would-be statesmen, who for the sake of political expediency would forefeit your birthright which was paid for in blood and sacrifice. There are too many selfish, mealy - mouth-pussy-footing fence - riding politicians who are selling the American people down the river for their own personal political ambition and gain.

"Gov. Wallace is a truly great statesman.

"The only proper way to change the form of this government, if it need be changed at all, is by submitting the proposals to the people? Neither the Congress, the President nor the Supreme Court has the power to make this change. To accomplish the ends sought, the Constitution would have to be scraped and a new one set

"There I was at 30,000 feet, when my foot went to sleep!"

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, March 19, the 78th day of 1965. There are 287 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1920, the Senate rejected the Versailles Peace Treaty and its accompanying League of Nations.

On this date

In 1960, the General Court of Massachusetts issued a call for the First Congress of the American colonies.

In 1860, William Jennings Bryan was born.

In 1898, the battleship Oregon began its historic voyage around Cape Horn.

In 1928, Col. Charles Lindbergh received the Woodrow Wilson Foundation's medal and $25,000 peace award.

In 1941, the United States and Canada signed a treaty to develop the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway for defense purposes.

Ten years ago — France reported a new agreement to give West Germany a greater share in economic activities in the Ruhr Valley.

Five years ago—The NAACP announced plans for the legal defense of more than 1,000 Negroes arrested in civil rights demonstrations throughout the South.

One year ago — President Johnson asked Congress for $3.4 billion in foreign aid.

Burglar Does Not Love Cats

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A 25-pound cat and his 105-pound mistress combined forces today to rout a burglar.

Mrs. Alice Whitney, 47, a commercial decorator, said her cat, Lord Samuel, is overweight because of a fondness for candy and she is underweight because of illness.

Alone Wednesday night because her husband, Ray Whitney, was traveling, Mrs. Whitney got up about 4:30 a.m. to get some medicine and found a man in her living room. He had prepared himself some food and was eating at a coffee table.

"I was good and mad," Mrs. Whitney told police later. She grabbed a shovel from the fire place.

"I belted him a good one alongside the head. His false teeth fell out . . . he grabbed a pair of scissors — my scissors — and came after me."

Mrs. Whitney said she had learned judo in Texas and continued:

"I tried to grab him around the head to apply a judo hold. I couldn't get hold of his head. I got him by the sweater. . . tried to throw him over my shoulder but I didn't get the right leverage and I threw him against the fireplace wall. His hip was hurt. . . He reached down and picked up his false teeth. . . I opened the bedroom door and turned Lord Samuel loose on him."

The cat, she said, has been trained to fight on command.

"Lord Samuel was clawing him viciously about the face and head. He begged me to call the cat off. I had to pull Lord Samuel off him. The man dragged himself into the kitchen, me following him and whacking him with the shovel on the back. . He went outside. . . I called the police."

When patrolmen Robert Clave and Charles Cordell arrived they found the intruder gone with $65 in cash, a carton of cigarettes and the Whitney living room, kitchen and garage were stained with blood.

OF DOGS AND WAGGING

Is this for better, or for worse?
And then, there is the feeling, too,
Your dog is really wagging you.

up in its place.

"For the sake of our individual freedoms; for the sake of local self-government; for the sake of our basic Constitutional Law; for the very life of our nation as "The land of the free and the home of the brave"; We must work together, we must pool our energies and our talents, from every state of this nation, in order to save our great nation from destruction from within.

"Today, in America, we stand at the crossroads of a great turning point in human history. This is the greatest threat of changing our friends since reconstruction days. Our people are divided on fundamental principles more than ever before since the birth of our nation. Our land is under a state of siege. Today, we are living in extraordinary times. To my humble way of thinking, we must get back to the great and matchless fundamental principles which were so graciously handed down to us by the wise and courageous founders of this government. This we must do if we are to survive. These fundamental principals have made our nation the greatest in the world. We have become the greatest nation on the face of the globe because we adhered to the fundamental principles of government which our forefathers promulgated. No other nation has such a glorious past as ours. We must return to the basic principles upon which our civilization was built in order to replace the theories of centralization of government, Left-Wing theories and concentration of power. We must have faith in our fundamental principles and we must remember that a crusading faith is defeated only by a greater faith.

"This nation was federally centralized for the purpose of protecting our freedoms from foreign aggression and decentralized in the states for the preservation of our individual liberties and freedom of action on the local level. We must continue to fight hard to perpetuate these fundamental principles because we believe in them and because we know they have proven to be for the best interest of the American people.

"Today, more than at any other time in this century, men and women, north and south, east and west, are rallying to the defense of our Constitutional government based on the historic, fundamental and timeless principles of government of, by and for the people. The government that governs best governs least.

"States" rights, local self-government, liberty, freedom, constitutional government -- These are not just of interest to southern people -- these, my friends, are the foundation stones upon which this great nation was built and without which this nation will weaken, crumble and fall.

"The time has now arrived to reverse the present trend of centralization of power in Washington. If we do not reverse this trend and restore sanity in government, we will surely perish in the castastrophe.

"The rights of the states are being sacrificed and ruthlessly destroyed by an all-consuming Federal Government. The Federal Government is constantly making a whipping boy of the states and is overstepping its constitutional powers. The Federal Government is assuming to exercise powers it does not have under the Constitution and that, by the Constitution, were expressly reserved in the states and the people thereof by the Tenth Amendment.

"Not only the Southern states, but all of the States of the Union are conscious of the present peril to state sovereignty. All of the states have a common interest in their own survival and the restoration of their respective constitutional powers.

"Surely, the states are conscious of their peril and of the peril to their people. We must no longer remain idle or complacent. The clarion call must be sounded for the states to come to their own defense and obtain a restoration of constitutional government.

"States rights and constitutional government are inseparable. The Tenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States very clearly states that the position of the states as related to the Federal government, and here is what it says:

"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution nor prohibited by it to the states are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

"States rights and local self-government are older than the Constitution. They existed before the union was formed and were recognized and protected by Thomas Jefferson and the other founding fathers when they wrote the Constitution.

"Our businesses shall ever be subjected to Washington bureaucratic police rule. If we lose state's rights which safeguard the most precious of all human rights — the right to control and govern ourselves at home — the right of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness — then may we ask, "For what is a man profiteth if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

"A state that loses the right to exercise exclusive jurisdiction over its own local affairs, loses it political soul and its citizens have lost their most valuable freedom.

"I wish to emphasize that the term "state's rights" means much more to the people of this nation than simple theory. It means the preservation of democracy and freedom itself.

"Every section of this nation favors human rights. But it is a fraud upon the American people to pretend that human rights can long endure without constitutional restrictions on the power of government.

"The proposal to take from you the right to deal with your local problems in the state of Missouri in a way that is satisfactory to you and to invest the right to deal with those problems in Washington in a way that is wholly unsatisfactory to you is so antagonistic to our form of government and so contrary to everything that we have stood for since 1776 that it is obliged to be un-American in principle and undemocratic in execution.

"The moment that government becomes remote, distant, mysterious and beyond the comprehension of the people themselves, danger arises and we subject ourselves to abuse of power and ultimate dictatorship. When the United States of America was formed and the Constitution was written, the people were insistent in demanding that local government be forever preserved in all of its dignity and all of its safeguards. In the drafting in the Constitution, it was specifically provided that the right and authority of the states to conduct their own affairs should be preserved inviolate and there was conferred upon the Federal government only so much power and authority as was necessary to control and regulate the relationships of the states one with another and the conduct of this nation's foreign affairs and unified defense.

"Ratification of the Constitution by the original states was obtained only after the citizens in each state received definite and positive assurances that this fundamental concept of government was recognized by the Constitution. Is this principle of states' rights an archaic doctrine, as insisted by those who seek the concentration of power in Washington? I say to you that it is a living principle, as vital and essential today as it was in the foundation days of the Republic —the doctrine of free society and free men, as opposed to regimentation of thought and action.

"Democracy is not a thing of Washington. Democracy is a thing of the crossroads. It is at the crossroads of America that the children of this nation live. It is at the crossroads that their children are born — that they go to church on Sunday — that the schools are placed — that the average American citizen lives his life and is finally taken to his reward. It is at the crossroads that the life of America takes place — not in Washington.

"I am convinced that our schools are local affairs, as is the police force, the fire department, the city and county governments, the habits of the people, the conduct of local business and all the hundreds of affairs of daily life. The right to work, or play, to choose our vocation and to change our job, to guide the education of our children, to attend the church of our choice, to work with whom we please, to go where we choose. These rights are ours solely because the Federal government by the Constitution, was denied the power to interfere with them. Also, the fields of education, housing, employment, apportionment of state legislatures, voting qualifications, police powers, and others are reserve powers under the Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution."

A Story Of Bravery, Love and Prayers

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — James Deckard is 7 years old today, but he's already had his present.

Nine days ago, doctors removed the stainless steel tube he has worn through a hole in his neck for the past 18 months.

They sewed up the hole and an adjacent opening in his windpipe that enabled him to breathe.

The windpipe closure leaked a little air, his doctor says, with the result that his head swelled up "like a balloon."

But the swelling is subsiding as nature gradually closes off the leak. And James — up and about the family home in nearby Placentia -- is cheerfully busy with crayons and first-grade "homework."

He's quick to smile, slow to cry. His recovery is a story of bravery, prayers and love.

"The doctors say he's a fighter," said his mother, Mrs. Jay Deckard, "and that he has a quick comeback. When he starts on the road to recovery he just pops right out of it."

James, a veteran of 14 operations — the last when they sewed up his neck — is "a real good boy," says his surgeon, Dr. John Wilcox.

James was 3 when he developed a croupy cough and began having trouble breathing, his mother said. His trouble was diagnosed as juvenile papilloma — a noncancerous wart in the larynx, or voice box.

The wart multiplied until his vocal cords and throat were covered with them, his mother said.

Doctors inserted the tube so he could breathe and began the series of operations to remove the warts.

Now remaining, says Dr. Wilcox, is "one little tiny one, nothing to be alarmed about." Is James' trouble behind him? "It's too early to say."

Early in his ordeal, his mother says, James "told us he was going to go to live with Jesus. We told him no, and after the real bad first part was over he began to joke and when we'd tell him he was going to surgery he'd just pack his suitcase and go."

Prayers helped, she says. "So many people of different faiths we saw at the hospital —people we didn't know — gave special prayers for him."

Voskhod 2 Lands

MOSCOW AP -- Spaceship Voskhod 2 landed safely today west of the Ural Mountains after a spectacular 24-hour orbit during which one of the two cosmonauts aboard frolicked outside the craft. There were indications that something went wrong in the landing process.

An announcement by Tass, the Soviet news agency, that the pilot had steered the spaceship to a landing ended hours of mystery and official silence on the Voskhod's fate. Tass said both cosmonauts were well.

The time the Voskhod was aloft indicated it had completed 17 orbits and was on its 18th when it landed.

The exploit of Col. Pavel Belayayev and Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov meant another big step toward travel to the moon. It was Leonov who ventured outside the craft and floated 10 minutes in the void, proving men could work there to assemble space platforms for shots to the moon.

The spaceship landed at 12:02 p.m. - 4:02 a.m. EST-- near Perm, west of the Ural Mountains and 725 miles northeast of Moscow. This is far north of the usual landing spot for Soviet spaceships.

This fact and the character of radio signals toward the end of the flight suggested to the Bochum Space Observatory in West Germany that the landing process was irregular, a Bochum spokesman said.

The Perm area is on the western slopes of the Ural Mountains. Half the area is forested and unfit for a landing, but there is a plain.

Whatever the success of the landing, Tass said Belyayev and Leonov had carried out their experiment successfully.

It was steered down by manual controls by Belyayev, the announcement said.

Belyayev and Leonov "feel well," Tass added. "The scientific program has been fully accomplished."

The delay in announcing the landing was not immediately explained.

The ship came down 500 miles northwest of the usual cosmonaut landing area of Soviet central Asia and southwest Siberia, north of the launching center at Baikonur.

The landing of the two cosmonauts inside their spaceship followed the pattern of the Voskhod, 1, the first multimanned Soviet capsule named with the Russian word for sunrise. It spent 24 hours in orbit last Oct. 12-13.

Voskhod 2 was up 26 hours. It had time to complete 17 orbits and be in its 18th when it landed.

Earlier Soviet space flights in the Vostok series of capsules required the cosmonauts to parachute from the craft. But the Voskhod series is equipped for soft landings on retroactive jets, a report on Voskhod 1 said.

The Tass announcement of the landing said:

"Their program of scientific experiments was carried out in full.

"A complex experiment was made successfully during the flight, opening a new stage in man's conquest for space; a cosmonaut dressed in a special space suit with an autonomous life support system floated freely in outer space.

"The data received during the flight of Voskhod 2 are being tabulated and analysed."

Residents Request To Be Assigned to R-2 District

EAST PRAIRIE-- A number of residents and voters of the Charleston R-1 school district, filed a petition, requesting a vote be taken in the April 6 election on a boundary line change. The proposed area is now in the R-1 district, after being voted into the district about a year ago.

The Charleston R-1 school board contend that the petition is not adequate, and have filed a suit in circuit court, declaring the petition illegal and inadequate. A second petition has been filed by the voters of this area to include a proposal for a change in the boundary line, to include their area in the R-2 school district, and to be voted on April 6.

Reasons given by the residents of the approximate 33-mile area, is that the area is much closer and that the residents are tied together socially and economically with the East Prairie school. Also that it would reduce long school bus travel for the children, and that the educational facilities are equal to that of the R-1 district they are now in.

Richard Reed, a member of the R-2 school board stated, "that the present petition had been on file with the R-1 school board since last May, and that only this week found the petitions to be illegal."

MISSISSIPPI COUNTY BOARD ENDORSES BOUNDARY CHANGE

The Mississippi County Board of Education has endorsed a proposed boundary change between the Charleston R-1 and the East Prairie R-2 School Districts, according to a statement from Board President, Noah Heath, delivered to the Charleston Newspaper Wednesday morning by Lloyd Hall, a member of the county board.

The county board's statement is as follows:

"Inasmuch as the prime duty of county school boards is the consolidation of small and inefficient districts into larger units by a process called reorganization, and inasmuch as such consolidation of entire districts may necessitate an adjustment of boundaries, the Mississippi County School Board endorses the proposed boundary change to be voted on at the annual school election, April 6, by the voters of Mississippi County Reorganized District No. 1 and No. 2.

"The change is justified for valid reasons:

The petition requiring the vote on April 6 was circulated by parents living in the area in question and was signed by nearly 100 percent of the voters, indicating their desire to attend school in R-2 District.

The area affected lies much nearer R-2 Schools, at the nearest point within less than one mile. Patrons there claim East Prairie "town" as to trade, newspapers and churches.

The transportation maze would be greatly simplified and the cost reduced.

"The value of land involved is 6.8 per cent of the valuation of R-1. The present valuation per pupil in R-1 is about $430 more than R-2. The change would bring per pupil values much closer together. With proposed further reorganization the relative size, valuation, number, etc. of R-1 District would be unaffected. Total income from the land affected by the boundary at the present R-1 District school tax rate is $44,017.87 out of which amount 102 pupils must be supported.

Hal Hunter Appointed to Redistricting

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today named the 10 members of a Senatorial Redistricting Commission.

He chose the membership from two panels of 10 each submitted by the state chairmen of the Democratic and Republican parties.

The commission will meet on the governor's call, probably April 12, to begin the court-ordered task of realigning the state's senatorial districts on a closer population basis than exists now.

Hearnes said he hoped the commission could complete the job well before the six months limit it has for its work. If the re-aligning is not completed in time Senate elections would be on an at-large basis.

The Democratic members of the commission include:

Edward J. Roche of St. Louis, William Morris of Kansas City, Gerald Lowther of Springfield, Hal E. Hunter Jr. of New Madrid and Sidney Salomon Jr. of St. Louis County.

Republican members:

Robert L. Shirkey of Kansas City, H. Kenneth Wangelin of Poplar Bluff, Bill Eseley of Bethany, Mrs. Florence A. Baker of St. Louis and Albert L. Rendlen of Hannibal.

Gas Users May Save

A reduction of nearly $12 million annually in wholesale natural gas rates by Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America has been ordered by the Power Commission.

Natural Gas, Chicago, supplies gas to 39 utilities in Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Wisconsin.

The amount to be refunded was not determined, but it apparently will exceed $12 million, plus interest.

The commission said Thursday the reduction results from its decision that the company must flow through to its wholesale customers the tax benefits made available by taking liberalized depreciation on its property.

Joseph Swidler, commission chairman, wrote the opinion, joined by Charles R. Ross. Commissioner Lawrence J. O'Conner Jr., concurred but Commissioner David S. Black dissented in part.

According to Bruce Lewis, local manager of Associated Natural Gas, the only gas purchased in this area from Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America is sold to the communities of Jackson and Puxico, Mo. Mr. Lewis said that if there is a saving it would be passed on to the consumer.

California's San Bernardino County is so large it could hold combined areas of Delaware, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Rhode Island.

Mo. Praised For Mental Health

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Missouri's plan of establishing nine regional centers for the diagnosis and treatment of mental retardation has received the commendation of Sargent Shriver and other officials of the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes reported today that a letter from Dr. Stafford L. Warren, special assistant to the President for mental health retardation, requested copies of a bill to create the centers so other states could be told of Missouri's action in the field.

"This plan for regional centers would put Missouri in the forefront of states in the effort to combat mental retardation," the letter said.

Long To Head Red Cross Drive

Albert Long was selected as Stoddard County chairman for the Red Cross drive during March. James Spain was appointed chairman for Bloomfield, Mrs. Ray Williams, Aid; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Light, Advance; Rev. A. W. Freese, Bell City and Earl D. Williams, Painton. Chairmen in other towns are still to be appointed.

According to Mr. Long records show that $10.00 worth of aid was received from the Red Cross in the county for every $1.00 contributed because of the high water near Green Oaks and Dudley and the tornado at Advance.

New Madrid Principal Called Meeting

NEW MADRID-- The New Madrid High School Principal, Glenn Dyke, called a Senior class meeting Monday, March 15. Purpose of this meeting was to present various awards.

Brenda Quinn received a Curators Scholarship to Missouri University. The presentation of this scholarship was based on the results of the Ohio Psychological Test.

Several persons received certificates of recognition. They were Mike Trout, Reta Tisher, Pat Taylor, Kathy La-Valle, Janis Pearson, Mary Porter, George Bock, Jeanette Cravens, Bill Dawson, and Mike Gunther. These people are eligible to apply for curators scholarships.

Those students planning to attend Southeast Missouri State in Cape Girardeau who ranked in the 75th percentile or above on the Ohio Psychological Test and are in the upper one-fourth of his class is eligible to apply for a general scholarship. Anyone interested may get an application form to fill out at the office.

Voters Asked to Approve $2.90 Levy

BLOOMFIELD: -- Voters in the R-14 Reorganized School District at Bloomfield will be asked to approve a $2.90 school levy for the 1965-66 fiscal year and elect two school board members Tuesday, April 6. The $2.90 levy is the same as last year.

A breakdown of the levy shows 70 cents on the $100 assessed valuation is earmarked for the paying of the building bonds for the vocational arts building and the cafeteria. This 70 cents does not need voter approval since it was approved by the voters last year. Nor does the $1.00 on the $100 assessed valuation which is levied by the board without voters approval.

Actually, the voters are being asked to approve a 35 cent rate for the teachers' fund, 55 cents for the incidental fund and 30 cents for the building fund, or a total of $1.20. In other words the voters of the district will be voting on a $1.20 levy, the 70 cents for bonds being approved last year and the $1.00 not needing voter approval.

To date only two men have filed their candidacy for membership on the board of directors. They are Vernon Marquis and Clarence Henry, both incumbents.

The polling place will be the ticket office of the school gymnasium. Voting hours are between 6 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Your hair grows .01714 inches in a 24-hour period according to computations.

Little Miss Pageant To Be Held At Bloomfield

The annual Little Miss Bloomfield contest will be held at 7:30 p.m., April 30 in the new gymnasium. Plans for the affair were made at a meeting of the AMVETS Auxiliary held at Tucker's Cafe, Monday night, March 8.

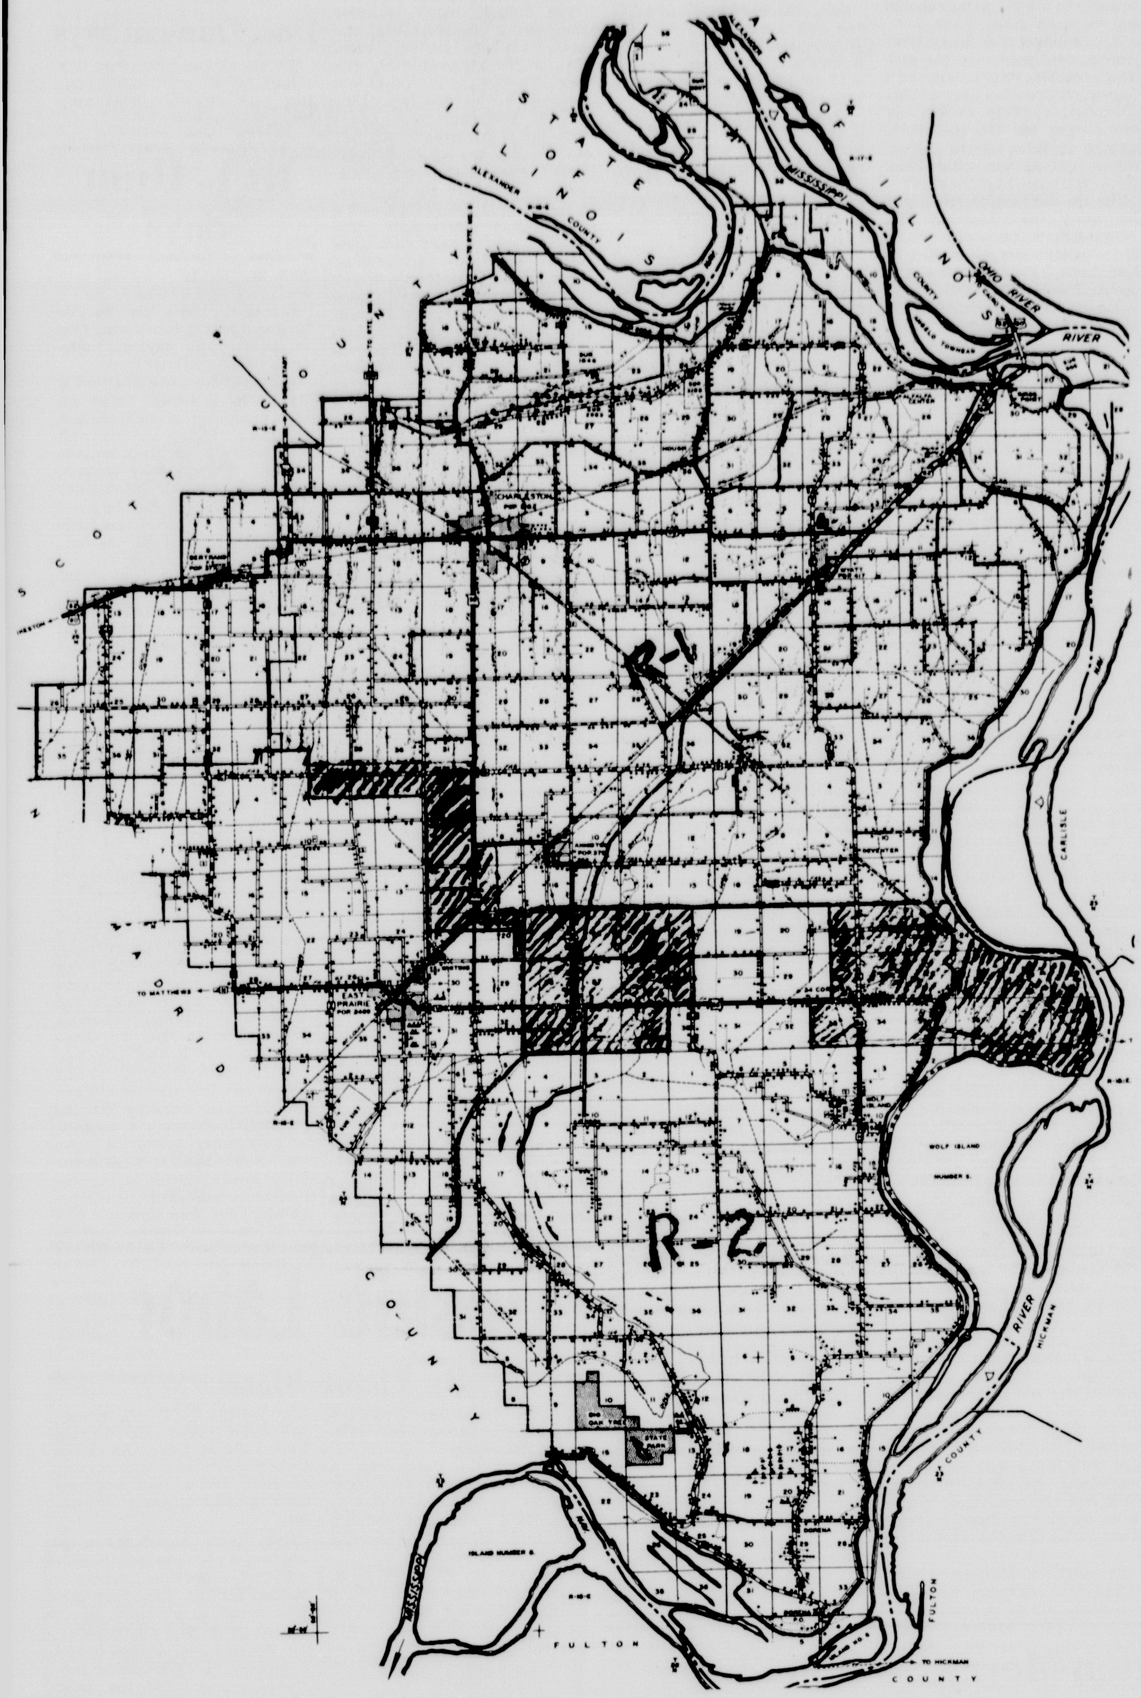
Mrs. EARL R. JARVIS was chosen as Sikeston's "Outstanding Woman of the Year" last night at the Business and Professional Womens banquet at the American Legion Hall.



The Shaded areas of this map are the 33 square miles that are in the boundary dispute between Mississippi county R-1 and Mississippi county R-2 school districts.

Residents Request To Be Assigned to R-2 District

EAST PRAIRIE-- A number of residents and voters of the Charleston R-1 school district, filed a petition, requesting a vote be taken in the April 6 election on a boundary line change. The proposed area is now in the R-1 district, after being voted into the district about a year ago.

The Charleston R-1 school board contend that the petition is not adequate, and have filed a suit in circuit court, declaring the petition illegal and inadequate. A second petition has been filed by the voters of this area to include a proposal for a change in the boundary line, to include their area in the R-2 school district, and to be voted on April 6.

Reasons given by the residents of the approximate 33-mile area, is that the area is much closer and that the residents are tied together socially and economically with the East Prairie school. Also that it would reduce long school bus travel for the children, and that the educational facilities are equal to that of the R-1 district they are now in.

Richard Reed, a member of the R-2 school board stated, "that the present petition had been on file with the R-1 school board since last May, and that only this week found the petitions to be illegal."

MISSISSIPPI COUNTY BOARD ENDORSES BOUNDARY CHANGE

The Mississippi County Board of Education has endorsed a proposed boundary change between the Charleston R-1 and the East Prairie R-2 School Districts, according to a statement from Board President, Noah Heath, delivered to the Charleston Newspaper Wednesday morning by Lloyd Hall, a member of the county board.

The county board's statement is as follows:

"Inasmuch as the prime duty of county school boards is the consolidation of small and inefficient districts into larger units by a process called reorganization, and inasmuch as such consolidation of entire districts may necessitate an adjustment of boundaries, the Mississippi County School Board endorses the proposed boundary change to be voted on at the annual school election, April 6, by the voters of Mississippi County Reorganized District No. 1 and No. 2.

"The change is justified for valid reasons:

The petition requiring the vote on April 6 was circulated by parents living in the area in question and was signed by nearly 100 percent of the voters, indicating their desire to attend school in R-2 District.

The area affected lies much nearer R-2 Schools, at the nearest point within less than one mile. Patrons there claim East Prairie "town" as to trade, newspapers and churches.

The transportation maze would be greatly simplified and the cost reduced.

"The value of land involved is 6.8 per cent of the valuation of R-1. The present valuation per pupil in R-1 is about $430 more than R-2. The change would bring per pupil values much closer together. With proposed further reorganization the relative size, valuation, number, etc. of R-1 District would be unaffected. Total income from the land affected by the boundary at the present R-1 District school tax rate is $44,017.87 out of which amount 102 pupils must be supported.

A Story Of Bravery, Love and Prayers

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — James Deckard is 7 years old today, but he's already had his present.

Nine days ago, doctors removed the stainless steel tube he has worn through a hole in his neck for the past 18 months.

They sewed up the hole and an adjacent opening in his windpipe that enabled him to breathe.

The windpipe closure leaked a little air, his doctor says, with the result that his head swelled up "like a balloon."

But the swelling is subsiding as nature gradually closes off the leak. And James — up and about the family home in nearby Placentia -- is cheerfully busy with crayons and first-grade "homework."

He's quick to smile, slow to cry. His recovery is a story of bravery, prayers and love.

"The doctors say he's a fighter," said his mother, Mrs. Jay Deckard, "and that he has a quick comeback. When he starts on the road to recovery he just pops right out of it."

James, a veteran of 14 operations — the last when they sewed up his neck — is "a real good boy," says his surgeon, Dr. John Wilcox.

James was 3 when he developed a croupy cough and began having trouble breathing, his mother said. His trouble was diagnosed as juvenile papilloma — a noncancerous wart in the larynx, or voice box.

The wart multiplied until his vocal cords and throat were covered with them, his mother said.

Doctors inserted the tube so he could breathe and began the series of operations to remove the warts.

Now remaining, says Dr. Wilcox, is "one little tiny one, nothing to be alarmed about." Is James' trouble behind him? "It's too early to say."

Early in his ordeal, his mother says, James "told us he was going to go to live with Jesus. We told him no, and after the real bad first part was over he began to joke and when we'd tell him he was going to surgery he'd just pack his suitcase and go."

Prayers helped, she says. "So many people of different faiths we saw at the hospital —people we didn't know — gave special prayers for him."

Voskhod 2 Lands

MOSCOW AP -- Spaceship Voskhod 2 landed safely today west of the Ural Mountains after a spectacular 24-hour orbit during which one of the two cosmonauts aboard frolicked outside the craft. There were indications that something went wrong in the landing process.

An announcement by Tass, the Soviet news agency, that the pilot had steered the spaceship to a landing ended hours of mystery and official silence on the Voskhod's fate. Tass said both cosmonauts were well.

The time the Voskhod was aloft indicated it had completed 17 orbits and was on its 18th when it landed.

The exploit of Col. Pavel Belayayev and Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov meant another big step toward travel to the moon. It was Leonov who ventured outside the craft and floated 10 minutes in the void, proving men could work there to assemble space platforms for shots to the moon.

The spaceship landed at 12:02 p.m. - 4:02 a.m. EST-- near Perm, west of the Ural Mountains and 725 miles northeast of Moscow. This is far north of the usual landing spot for Soviet spaceships.

This fact and the character of radio signals toward the end of the flight suggested to the Bochum Space Observatory in West Germany that the landing process was irregular, a Bochum spokesman said.

The Perm area is on the western slopes of the Ural Mountains. Half the area is forested and unfit for a landing, but there is a plain.

Whatever the success of the landing, Tass said Belyayev and Leonov had carried out their experiment successfully.

It was steered down by manual controls by Belyayev, the announcement said.

Belyayev and Leonov "feel well," Tass added. "The scientific program has been fully accomplished."

The delay in announcing the landing was not immediately explained.

The ship came down 500 miles northwest of the usual cosmonaut landing area of Soviet central Asia and southwest Siberia, north of the launching center at Baikonur.

The landing of the two cosmonauts inside their spaceship followed the pattern of the Voskhod, 1, the first multimanned Soviet capsule named with the Russian word for sunrise. It spent 24 hours in orbit last Oct. 12-13.

Voskhod 2 was up 26 hours. It had time to complete 17 orbits and be in its 18th when it landed.

Earlier Soviet space flights in the Vostok series of capsules required the cosmonauts to parachute from the craft. But the Voskhod series is equipped for soft landings on retroactive jets, a report on Voskhod 1 said.

The Tass announcement of the landing said:

"Their program of scientific experiments was carried out in full.

"A complex experiment was made successfully during the flight, opening a new stage in man's conquest for space: a cosmonaut dressed in a special space suit with an autonomous life support system floated freely in outer space.

Voters Asked to Approve $2.90 Levy

BLOOMFIELD: -- Voters in the R-14 Reorganized School District at Bloomfield will be asked to approve a $2.90 school levy for the 1965-66 fiscal year and elect two school board members Tuesday, April 6. The $2.90 levy is the same as last year.

A breakdown of the levy shows 70 cents on the $100 assessed valuation is earmarked for the paying of the building bonds for the vocational arts building and the cafeteria. This 70 cents does not need voter approval since it was approved by the voters last year. Nor does the $1.00 on the $100 assessed valuation which is levied by the board without voters approval.

Actually, the voters are being asked to approve a 35 cent rate for the teachers' fund, 55 cents for the incidental fund and 30 cents for the building fund, or a total of $1.20. In other words the voters of the district will be voting on a $1.20 levy, the 70 cents for bonds being approved last year and the $1.00 not needing voter approval.

To date only two men have filed their candidacy for membership on the board of directors. They are Vernon Marquis and Clarence Henry, both incumbents.

The polling place will be the ticket office of the school gymnasium. Voting hours are between 6 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Hal Hunter Appointed to Redistricting

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today named the 10 members of a Senatorial Redistricting Commission.

He chose the membership from two panels of 10 each submitted by the state chairmen of the Democratic and Republican parties.

The commission will meet on the governor's call, probably April 12, to begin the court-ordered task of realigning the state's senatorial districts on a closer population basis than exists now.

Hearnes said he hoped the commission could complete the job well before the six months limit it has for its work. If the re-aligning is not completed in time Senate elections would be on an at-large basis.

The Democratic members of the commission include:

Edward J. Roche of St. Louis, William Morris of Kansas City, Gerald Lowther of Springfield, Hal E. Hunter Jr. of New Madrid and Sidney Salomon Jr. of St. Louis County.

Republican members:

Robert L. Shirkey of Kansas City, H. Kenneth Wangelin of Poplar Bluff, Bill Eseley of Bethany, Mrs. Florence A. Baker of St. Louis and Albert L. Rendlen of Hannibal.

Gas Users May Save

A reduction of nearly $12 million annually in wholesale natural gas rates by Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America has been ordered by the Power Commission.

Natural Gas, Chicago, supplies gas to 39 utilities in Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Wisconsin.

The amount to be refunded was not determined, but it apparently will exceed $12 million, plus interest.

The commission said Thursday the reduction results from its decision that the company must flow through to its wholesale customers the tax benefits made available by taking liberalized depreciation on its property.

Joseph Swidler, commission chairman, wrote the opinion, joined by Charles R. Ross. Commissioner Lawrence J. O'Conner Jr., concurred but Commissioner David S. Black dissented in part.

According to Bruce Lewis, local manager of Associated Natural Gas, the only gas purchased in this area from Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America is sold to the communities of Jackson and Puxico, Mo. Mr. Lewis said that if there is a saving it would be passed on to the consumer.

California's San Bernardino County is so large it could hold combined areas of Delaware, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Rhode Island.

Mo. Praised For Mental Health

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Missouri's plan of establishing nine regional centers for the diagnosis and treatment of mental retardation has received the commendation of Sargent Shriver and other officials of the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes reported today that a letter from Dr. Stafford L. Warren, special assistant to the President for mental health retardation, requested copies of a bill to create the centers so other states could be told of Missouri's action in the field.

"This plan for regional centers would put Missouri in the forefront of states in the effort to combat mental retardation," the letter said.

Long To Head Red Cross Drive

Albert Long was selected as Stoddard County chairman for the Red Cross drive during March. James Spain was appointed chairman for Bloomfield, Mrs. Ray Williams, Aid; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Light, Advance; Rev. A. W. Freese, Bell City and Earl D. Williams, Painton. Chairmen in other towns are still to be appointed.

According to Mr. Long records show that $10.00 worth of aid was received from the Red Cross in the county for every $1.00 contributed because of the high water near Green Oaks and Dudley and the tornado at Advance.

New Madrid Principal Called Meeting

NEW MADRID-- The New Madrid High School Principal, Glenn Dyke, called a Senior class meeting Monday, March 15. Purpose of this meeting was to present various awards.

Anyone interested may get an application form to fill out at the office.

The awards presented by the Daughters of the American Revolution were also given at that time. The Good Citizen awards were presented to Jackie Long and Kenny Davis.

BROADCASTING'S FAT CATS

The 4,000 radio and television executives who come to Washington for the National Association of Broadcasters' 43rd annual convention, opening Sunday, March 21, should be able to concentrate on having a good time. Profits are soaring for most segments of the industry and, better yet, the federal government isn't trying to press any new regulatory scheme on broadcasting.

On the eve of last year's convention, the Federal Communications Commission announced a proposal that would limit the number of commercials which radio and television stations would be allowed to air during a given period of time. The House rushed to the rescue by passing a bill prohibiting the F. C. C. from setting standards to govern the length or frequency of commercials. The Senate took no action, but the bill's purpose was achieved when the F. C. C. withdrew the proposed rule.

This year the only small cloud hanging over the industry's freedom is the F.C.C.'s proposed investigation into whether the networks exercise too much control over television programming. Also, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D Conn.) was making sounds about an investigation by Congress into excessive violence on television, but has quieted down since his re-election.

Broadcasting Magazine reports (Feb. 22) that 1964 was the best year in radio and television history--moneywise, that is. Combined time sales of the two media totalled $2.3 billion last year, a rise of more than $223 million over 1963. This should assure a mood of well-being at the convention, which will spill over into two hotels (the Shoreham and Sheraton-Park). Highlight of the gathering is likely to be the March 23 evening reception for Congress and government leaders; a similar party several years ago cost the N. A. B. $35,000.

NEWSPAPER REPORTERS' EXPOSE' CASTS DOUBT ON HONESTY OF OKLAHOMA RESULTS

The Oklahoma City Times, one of the state's biggest circulation dailies, has raised serious challenges concerning the results of the May 5 Right to Work referendum. Two of its crack reporters have dug up facts indicating that wholesale fraud may have accounted for substantially more votes than contained in the razor-thin margin given compulsory unionism, and that a correct count of the legal ballots might have produced a victory for the proposed Right to Work law.

The extensive investigation being made by Reporters Daniel Webster and Jim Standard resulted after they had made a cursory check of charges filed with the Oklahoma City Grand Jury by Oklahoma City citizens. The charges cited, for instance, the voting of 41 "persons" who gave their address as 119 1/2 W. Reno Street, a parking lot vacant for years. The Grand Jury will convene shortly to hear testimony and consider the scope of the investigation petitioned by the complaining citizens. Meantime, Webster and Standard are piling up shocking facts and challenging leads.

Under Oklahoma law, the results cannot be reversed regardless of Grand Jury findings. However, indictments against individuals could be returned on evidence of fraudulent voting, conspiracy to thwart the law, and other offenses.

How much work is there in a man? In The Story of Philosophy are accounts of Francis Bacon and Voltaire.

Both men influenced thought as much as any two men who ever lived in what we call modern times.

Bacon, an Englishman, enjoyed a successful and active political career. He entertained lavishly and usually lived beyond his income. His studies and his writings, as profound as anything that ever came from a human mind, were his avocation.

Voltaire wrote monumentally-plays, stories, revolutionary tracts, heavy treatises. He was consulted by hundreds of people. One wonders how one man could compass so much work and activity, yet Voltaire lived to the ripe age of 85.

Neither man ever seemed to have suffered from overwork or from mental strain. Possibly Voltaire died from dissipation, but since he lived to 85, he did pretty well.

We are rarely injured by mental or physical activity. Occasionally at the end of a day a man will find himself exhausted, and will tell himself that his job is too much for him, and then he will recall that he was out until 2 a.m. the night before. Usually we are worn out by overeating and lack of sleep -- not by hard work.

An enterprise which never gets on a profit basis is forced to do everything the most expensive way, buying in small quantities at long prices, using out-of-date equipment, employing lowest priced and least efficient help. The successful company feeds on its own success. Profits are used to cut down every bit of lost motion. Attention is given to such items as lighting and ventilation, which contributes to the productivity of the working force. As new machines and processes are invented, old ones are promptly scrapped.

The outcome is that the margin of efficiency between the successful company and its weak competitor increases every year.

MITES ON MARS?
MIGHT BE

Little Nanorchestes antarcticus couldn't care less, but the discovery of his existence lends a little more impetus to man's determination to explore the other planets of the solar system.

Nanorchestes antarcticus is a pink mite, only one hundredth of an inch long, recently found, says the National Science Foundation, "in a little world of warmth, greenery and water in a mountain range jutting out of the frigid, desolate Antarctic icecap only 309 miles from the pole." As far as is known, no other animal life exists that far south.

If this creature can survive in Antarctica, which at its best is more forbidding than Mars at its worst, then men may be in for some exciting surprises when they or their instruments eventually land on the redplanet.

The Mariner IV probe, which will pass close to Mars this July, is not equipped to discover signs of life on a scale as small as Nanorchestes antarcticus. It could, however, reveal the presence of a similar "little world of warmth, greenery and water."

Of course, no one knows what we would do with Martian mites if we did find them. We might even wish they weren't there.

Scientists would be delighted to be presented with the problem.

JOE DOAKS, ART PATRON

Every taxpayer will be a patron of the arts unless some developments in Washington are brought to a halt, as they should be.

The proposal that the Federal Government subsidize the arts keeps bobbing up, and it has a better chance than ever in this Congress. Art is worthy, by and large, but this is hardly enough justification for paying for it out of our withholding taxes from our paychecks.

The art our public wish to pay for, they may now pay for. And millions upon millions are spent voluntarily each year on literature, music, paintings, opera, theater and architecture. What we are being asked to do essentially is to buy out of tax money the art that nobody is willing to buy voluntarily.

The proposition that anyone who considers himself an artist is entitled to high living standards at public expense is a foolish one. There are great artists who have no trouble earning fine livings, and there are mediocre and poor ones who probably should be encouraged by their failures to turn their hands and minds to other matters. It is hard to see how a Federal Government capable of erecting an esthetic outrage like the Rayburn office building can tell the good from the bad.

This seems to have occurred to the authorities, who propose that a commission of experts decide who qualifies as an artist and who does not, what is art and what is not. Where this leads, nobody knows.

SLOW TO LEARN?

"I quit school when I were sixteen," is the simple and sole message on a sign currently posted in subway cars in New York City.

This soft sell with the obvious grammatical error is intended to impress youngsters with the folly of dropping out of school.

Unfortunately, slogans sometimes have a way of backfiring. One cynical letter-writer to a newspaper pointed out that it only illustrated the sad state of education.

"If, after 10 years of schooling," he asked, "a boy or girl hasn't learned the difference between 'was' and 'were,' how can you justify any additional investment in his or her education?"

A FAULTY KEYSTONE?

"Counseling" is one of the main features on the War on Poverty, and all over the land counselors are being hired in droves for the first offensive.

The Federal Government seldom risks its reputation as a big spender by testing an idea on a small scale before embarking on it on a vast one. All we have had was hope that the millions to be spent on counseling would work.

But we did hope, because no sensitive person can fail to be stirred by the knowledge of the ignorance and poverty that exist to some degree all over the country. Now that hope is somewhat clouded by doubt, as the Russell Sage Foundation prepares to release the results of a six-year study on the counseling of potentially delinquent girls.

The study shows that girls identified as potentially delinquent and given counseling on an individual basis turned out no better than those so identified and deprived of counseling.

There was no difference in the number who graduated from high school or in their grades. No effect on their truancy could be noted. The same proportion of both groups became pregnant out of wedlock.

Those who conducted the study do not despair. They only feel that with the present knowledge of how to counsel not much can be hoped for-- not that we can't learn how to counsel more effectively.

The point is that the Government is going full steam ahead before the necessary knowledge is available.

Not only that, but such cities as Columbus, Ohio, complain that those hired to counsel youngsters to stay in school are paid far more than those who will have to teach them if they do stay in school.

Washington seems to think we taxpayers have plenty of money for such untried experiments on a grand scale.

FAMILIAR OUTRAGE

Willow Village, a Michigan community, is astonished to find that it is expected to absorb $188,000 in Federal funds under the war on poverty program, and begs to be considered a conscientious objector.

The people don't co..sider themselves impoverished, and don't want to be labeled as such. The whole affair strongly resembles similar incidents that developed when the depressed areas program resulted in labeling a major part of the U. S. as poor and helpless. Many communities denied such conditions existed in their areas.

The federal folk, along with a cooperating university, give some curious reasons for deciding that Willow Village must swallow our tax money, whether it wants to or not. The 1960 census (now more than four years old) showed high unemployment. There is no hospital in the community. Children must take buses to school. There is no newspaper. There is no self-government.

Roy Smith, supervisor of the township of which Willow Village is part, says unemployment is low there in 1965 and many local residents work in three thriving auto factories not far away. Few people are on relief. There is a doctor's office, and hospitals are not remote in this thickly - settled area. Newspapers come in from Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor.

Smith is a Republican, but the issue is bi-partisan. Raymond Saari, the Democratic township treasurer, said: "I don't think the people who initiated this thing knew what they were doing."

Smith suggests that the grant be returned to the Federal government.

"They've disgraced our community and our residents," he commented.

It's clear that Willow Village hopes Washington will choose some other battlefield for its poverty war. We can all hope that it will not repeat all the old area development mistakes in this new program.

H. L. Hunt Says

ARE NEUTRAL NATIONS WORKABLE?

A country today can be run in one of just two ways. One is the freedom way. The other is the collectivist way.

Mixtures are constantly being tried. But it always turns out that every bit of collectivism restricts freedom and every bit of freedom holds back collectivism. The two may coexist, but they cannot blend. Sooner or later a choice has to be made as to which one is better. Neutral nations in 1965 are not workable.

A favorite trite saying about government is that "It should do for the people only what they cannot do for themselves." Yet there is really very little that people cannot do for them - selves, if left to themselves.

Individuals or families cannot raise modern armies. The state is needed to protect individuals against crime. They cannot operate courts of law on the voluntary basis. These are the just powers of the government. But whenever government gets into other areas of life and work, it may become a competitor with personal enterprise. Everything attempted by government which people can do for themselves is always at the expense of private citizens.

Examples are plentiful in our national life today. In fact, goverment is full of people who urge collectivist enterprises on the grounds that they will benefit everybody in the long run. But government cannot create the wealth that will benefit everybody. Only constructive and productive effort can do that.

A government cannot be happy for its inhabitants. A good society involves pride in accomplishment and people can only be happy for themselves.

NEW YORK (AP) — Can a man find personal happiness while making people laugh at $7,500 a week?

Well, comedian Jack Carter says he can't.

He is troubled by a recurrent nightmare in which he appears before the great tribunal hereafter.

"What did you do in life?" asks a vast voice.

"I told jokes," replies Jack quavering. And then the judge's awful verdict rings in his ears:

"Put him in Hell for 400 years —and throw on more coal!"

Jack is one of the few remaining triple-threat performers in the nation's contracting night club industry. He can sing and dance and ad lib with the best of them. And some of the best of them like to watch him work.

But listening to the wiry, effervescent comedian talk about his career, you'd think it has been a cheerless failure.

"I have to be constantly told it is really worthwhile just making people laugh," he remarked. "I think life is to be enjoyed, but I enjoy it the least of anyone I know.

"I'm a driven man. Offstage, I'm morose — a pretty miserable soul, so introverted people think I'm a snob."

"I'm a born servant. I should be running a cleaning shop. I'm so anxious for everybody to love me that I get upset if a bus boy in a restaurant doesn't smile at me," he says.

"All entertainers seem to have guilt complexes in varying degrees. You're a child for life. You're leading a child's life in a grownup's world.

"You have a terrible feeling of not having a real tie to the rest of the world — as if you were nothing but a laugh machine. You feel life you'd like to take a day off now and then to build a bridge, discover a disease cure, or just go to an office like other people do.

"And despite their outward appearance, entertainers are terribly afraid of being hurt. I try never to hurt anybody, hoping that then they'll never hurt me."

Show business has been Jack's world since he entertained customers as a child by giving mimic impressions atop a table in his dad's candy store in Coney Island. After service as a medic in the Army, he became a star on television.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Mississippi congressmen aren't advertising it, but almost every weekend they are flying back to Mississippi to defend their seats in Congress.

This is not because they are being challenged for reelection, but because a battery of New York lawyers have been taking depositions showing that the congressmen were not elected by all the people of Mississippi -- that Negroes were excluded from voting.

Under the law by which Mississippi was readmitted to the Union, all the people of the state are guaranteed the right to vote and Mississippi Negroes are now claiming the law is not enforced.

Alabama, incidentally, gave similar guarantees when she was readmitted into the Union.

At first the challenge to the seating of Mississippi congressmen was not taken seriously. But it is today. Mississippi congressmen are so worried that they have set up headquarters in room 1003 of the King Edward Hotel in Jackson, under Charlie Griffin, Washington administrative assistant to Rep. John Bell Williams. They have also hired Lyndon Johnson's old friend, ex-Gov. Jim Coleman, as legal counsel.

Rep. Williams, though recently refused all Democratic seniority privileges, has been flying back and forth to Jackson to help both himself and his three other Democratic colleagues keep their seats.

--GOV. JOHNSON BECOMES MODERATE--

Ex-Gov. Jim Coleman, now retained by the congressmen, was slapped down by Mississippi voters when he tried to run for Governor because he was considered a moderate.

Today, however, Jim is considered a possible savior because he once served as an administrative assistant in Congress when Lyndon Johnson was a young congressmen, and knows the President well.

Today the challenge to Mississippi's congressmen is causing such worry that Gov. Paul Johnson has called off a special session of the State Legislature originally planned to denounce the new Civil Rights Act.

"One reason," reported the Tupelo Journal, "was to avoid providing a forum which might produce inflammatory statements or resolutions which might prejudice the congressmen's defense."

When Gov. Johnson returned from the inauguration of President Johnson last January, he immediately warned Mississippi leaders that the challenge to their congressmen was serious. Ever since then, Johnson has endeavored to change the state's image. He has come out emphatically for law and order, has even criticized the "Southern Review," a right- wing publication, for calling him a "first-class integrationist."

"This element is the type that would turn on their own people," Gov. Johnson said. "We're not going to be a pushing boy for that element again."

Only a short time ago, Gov. Johnson was hand-in-glove with Mississippi right - wingers. When Mayor Thompson of Jackson announced publicly that he would obey the new Civil Rights Law, Gov. Johnson publicly advised Mississippians not to obey it.

"Law and order is going to prevail -- particularly for the next six months," Johnson told a gathering of five hundred bankers and business leaders sponsored by the Deposit Guaranty Bank and Trust Company of Jackson last month.

Reported W. F. Minor, Jackson correspondent for the New Orleans Times - Picayune: "There are indications that Mississippi unofficially sees the weakness of its position in the denial of Negroes to vote in the past, and the state is quietly going to set about doing something to change it.

"Compared with every other southern state, Mississippi has just a fraction of the Negro population now registered. The latest unofficial estimates place the figure at around 29,000 out of 600,000 total registered voters in the state."

Since 148 Congressmen voted against seating the Mississippi congressmen last January, events in Alabama have inflamed northern public opinion and brought pressure on every member of Congress. Among the congressmen voting to seat the Mississippi delegation who have been pressured are: James Fulton, R., and William Moorhead, D., both representing heavily Negro districts in Pittsburgh, Pa.; Manny Cellar, D., of Brooklyn, who claims to be a great civil rights advocate; Cecil King, D., of Los Angeles, another civil rights champion; Jed Johnson, D., of Oklahoma; Dante Fascell, D., of Florida, who deserted other Italo-Americans on this vote; George Fallon, D., of Baltimore, a city with a heavily Negro population; Jim Delaney, D., N. Y., a great friend of Cardinal Spellman, a cleric who has just contributed $10,000 to the family of Rev. James Reed.

Among other Democrats who voted with the Mississippians were Wayne Aspinall of Colorado; Edward Derwinski of Chicago; Spark Matsunaga of Hawaii, who claims to be a great civil rights champion; Walter Moeller of Ohio, who once wept and wrung his hands over the oppositon of the Medical Lobby; Claude Pepper of Miami, the one- time New Deal senator and battler for civil rights; John Tunney of California, son of the one-time heavyweight champ; Ben Reifel of South Dakota, the only Indian in Congress; Rolland Redlin of North Dakota, elected by Northwest liberals who got very sore that he voted with Mississippi.

Longshoremen Solve Red Fish Mystery, Outmaneuver the Soviet Strategem

New York; -- There was a touch of James Bond to the latest episode in the campaign of America's longshoremen against the entry of Soviet merchandise into the U. S.

Mysteriously, the U. S. S. R. state marketing trust has been getting millions of dollars worth of frozen fish into our country through the big harbors -- though no longshoremen have knowlingly unloaded Soviet cargo from any freighters.

Obviously the members of the International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA) were handling the Red fish. But how? Where? When? Obviously these imports were hurting American fishermen, cutting down profits and jobs, because the Soviet food has been sold here at slashed prices made possible because the U. S. S. R. has no consequential wage cost aboard its craft.

Finally matters got so tough for America's fishermen they went to Red Moran, vice president of the Boston ILA. They believed they had the answer. Investigation proved they did. Here's what had been happening:

Big Soviet Trawler fleets, bunched in groups of 20, have been steaming into the lush and lucrative fishing beds off the New England Coast -- not too far outside the three mile limit. Thus they are in international waters.

It was a flotilla of such Soviet trawlers which attempted to seize the American lobster net craft "Ruth and Helen" commanded by Capt. John Francis Jr. This happened off Newport, R. I., when the Ruth and Helen's radio went bad.

Capt. Francis asked the Russian captain of the H-3H6 to radio our Coast Guard. The Sovieteer refused. Instead he attempted to seize the American ship as "salvage."

Such flotillas, in which the F-3H6 was one of 20 Red trawlers, catch fish, process and freeze them right on board. The Soviet craft then can stay at sea for long periods. When they're full, they steam off to such Dutch ports as Antwerp or Rotterdam. There the frozen fish, already packaged, is put aboard non-Communist ships bound for the U. S.

Last week the New England fishermen, disturbed by the Soviet incursions on the near-by waters and their income, learned that Russian fish was being transshipped back to America, frequently in American freighters. The fishermen had been tipped off that the United States Line "American Contractor" had such crates of Red fish aboard and was heading from Antwerp to Boston.

Red Moran asked his longshoremen not to unload the cargo. The American Contractor headed for the New York harbor. It hove to on Sunday, March 10, at Pier 76, North River.

A warning was flashed to ILA executive Vice President John Bowers, who knows the docks and his cargo like an Irish tenor his lullabies.

For three days Bowers and his fellow longshoremen went over that cargo. There was nothing at first to indicate that the fish imports -- cod blocks -- were part of the Russian catch.

Finally they hit on 400 cases containing 26 tons of the stuff. They refused to unload the shipment. Then they learned the company might take it down to Philadelphia. Word immediately went out to the brethren there asking them not to handle the cargo.

At the same time Bowers had kept a vigil over at Pier 60 where 100 crates of Soviet vegetable oil had lain for two weeks since it had been unwittingly unloaded from another U. S. Lines freighter, the "Champion". This cargo, too, was not touched.

From now on, Bowers said, the ILA network will keep an alert on what comes from Antwerp, Rotterdam or any other Western European city, to head off transshipped Soviet fish catches.

"This is no red herring matter," Bowers told this columnist. "American fishermen are losing jobs because the Soviet trawlers really poach in our waters, pay their people slave wages and then undersell us. We would be scabbing on our own countrymen and fellow workers if we helped the Soviets in that subterfuge."

News of the ILA action has made the rounds inside labor. Workers in other industries hit by low price Eastern bloc imports are contacting the ILA. Latest request for a similar boycott has come from the glassmakers' union hit by Czechoslovakian competition. American businessmen are also communicating with the dockworkers.

Bowers and his colleagues are not certain how far they can go. But they're willing to try. They don't want to make foreign policy for the U. S. But they say no one can force them to help the opposition.

BROADCASTING'S FAT CATS

The 4,000 radio and television executives who come to Washington for the National Association of Broadcasters' 43rd annual convention, opening Sunday, March 21, should be able to concentrate on having a good time. Profits are soaring for most segments of the industry and, better yet, the federal government isn't trying to press any new regulatory scheme on broadcasting.

On the eve of last year's convention, the Federal Communications Commission announced a proposal that would limit the number of commercials which radio and television stations would be allowed to air during a given period of time. The House rushed to the rescue by passing a bill prohibiting the F. C. C. from setting standards to govern the length or frequency of commercials. The Senate took no action, but the bill's purpose was achieved when the F. C. C. withdrew the proposed rule.

This year the only small cloud hanging over the industry's freedom is the F.C.C.'s proposed investigation into whether the networks exercise too much control over television programming. Also, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D Conn.) was making sounds about an investigation by Congress into excessive violence on television, but has quieted down since his re-election.

Broadcasting Magazine reports (Feb. 22) that 1964 was the best year in radio and television history--moneywise, that is. Combined time sales of the two media totalled $2.3 billion last year, a rise of more than $223 million over 1963. This should assure a mood of well-being at the convention, which will spill over into two hotels (the Shoreham and Sheraton-Park). Highlight of the gathering is likely to be the March 23 evening reception for Congress and government leaders; a similar party several years ago cost the N. A. B. $35,000.

NEWSPAPER REPORTERS' EXPOSE' CASTS DOUBT ON HONESTY OF OKLAHOMA RESULTS

The Oklahoma City Times, one of the state's biggest circulation dailies, has raised serious challenges concerning the results of the May 5 Right to Work referendum. Two of its crack reporters have dug up facts indicating that wholesale fraud may have accounted for substantially more votes than contained in the razor-thin margin given compulsory unionism, and that a correct count of the legal ballots might have produced a victory for the proposed Right to Work law.

The extensive investigation being made by Reporters Daniel Webster and Jim Standard resulted after they had made a cursory check of charges filed with the Oklahoma City Grand Jury by Oklahoma City citizens. The charges cited, for instance, the voting of 41 "persons" who gave their address as 119 1/2 W. Reno Street, a parking lot vacant for years. The Grand Jury will convene shortly to hear testimony and consider the scope of the investigation petitioned by the complaining citizens. Meantime, Webster and Standard are piling up shocking facts and challenging leads.

Under Oklahoma law, the results cannot be reversed regardless of Grand Jury findings. However, indictments against individuals could be returned on evidence of fraudulent voting, conspiracy to thwart the law, and other offenses.

How much work is there in a man? In The Story of Philosophy are accounts of Francis Bacon and Voltaire.

Both men influenced thought as much as any two men who ever lived in what we call modern times.

Bacon, an Englishman, enjoyed a successful and active political career. He entertained lavishly and usually lived beyond his income. His studies and his writings, as profound as anything that ever came from a human mind, were his avocation.

Voltaire wrote monumentally-plays, stories, revolutionary tracts, heavy treatises. He was consulted by hundreds of people. One wonders how one man could compass so much work and activity, yet Voltaire lived to the ripe age of 85.

Neither man ever seemed to have suffered from overwork or from mental strain. Possibly Voltaire died from dissipation, but since he lived to 85, he did pretty well.

We are rarely injured by mental or physical activity. Occasionally at the end of a day a man will find himself exhausted, and will tell himself that his job is too much for him, and then he will recall that he was out until 2 a.m. the night before. Usually we are worn out by overeating and lack of sleep -- not by hard work.

An enterprise which never gets on a profit basis is forced to do everything the most expensive way, buying in small quantities at long prices, using out-of-date equipment, employing lowest priced and least efficient help. The successful company feeds on its own success. Profits are used to cut down every bit of lost motion. Attention is given to such items as lighting and ventilation, which contributes to the productivity of the working force. As new machines and processes are invented, old ones are promptly scrapped.

The outcome is that the margin of efficiency between the successful company and its weak competitor increases every year.

MITES ON MARS?

MIGHT BE

Little Nanorchestes antarcticus couldn't care less, but the discovery of his existence lends a little more impetus to man's determination to explore the other planets of the solar system.

Nanorchestes antarcticus is a pink mite, only one hundredth of an inch long, recently found, says the National Science Foundation, "in a little world of warmth, greenery and water in a mountain range jutting out of the frigid, desolate Antarctic icecap only 309 miles from the pole." As far as is known, no other animal life exists that far south.

If this creature can survive in Antarctica, which at its best is more forbidding than Mars at its worst, then men may be in for some exciting surprises when they or their instruments eventually land on the red planet.

The Mariner IV probe, which will pass close to Mars this July, is not equipped to discover signs of life on a scale as small as Nanorchestes antarcticus. It could, however, reveal the presence of a similar "little world of warmth, greenery and water."

Of course, no one knows what we would do with Martian mites if we did find them. We might even wish they weren't there.

Scientists would be delighted to be presented with the problem.

JOE DOAKS, ART PATRON

Every taxpayer will be a patron of the arts unless some developments in Washington are brought to a halt, as they should be.

The proposal that the Federal Government subsidize the arts keeps bobbing up, and it has a better chance than ever in this Congress. Art is worthy, by and large, but this is hardly enough justification for paying for it out of our withholding taxes from our paychecks.

The art our public wish to pay for, they may now pay for. And millions upon millions are spent voluntarily each year on literature, music, paintings, opera, theater and architecture. What we are being asked to do essentially is to buy out of tax money the art that nobody is willing to buy voluntarily.

The proposition that anyone who considers himself an artist is entitled to high living standards at public expense is a foolish one. There are great artists who have no trouble earning fine livings, and there are mediocre and poor ones who probably should be encouraged by their failures to turn their hands and minds to other matters. It is hard to see how a Federal Government capable of erecting an esthetic outrage like the Rayburn office building can tell the good from the bad.

This seems to have occurred to the authorities, who propose that a commission of experts decide who qualifies as an artist and who does not, what is art and what is not. Where this leads, nobody knows.

This soft sell with the obvious grammatical error is intended to impress youngsters with the folly of dropping out of school.

Unfortunately, slogans sometimes have a way of backfiring. One cynical letter-writer to a newspaper pointed out that it only illustrated the sad state of education.

A FAULTY KEYSTONE?

"Counseling" is one of the main features on the War on Poverty, and all over the land counselors are being hired in droves for the first offensive.

The Federal Government seldom risks its reputation as a big spender by testing an idea on a small scale before embarking on it on a vast one. All we have had was hope that the millions to be spent on counseling would work.

But we did hope, because no sensitive person can fail to be stirred by the knowledge of the ignorance and poverty that exist to some degree all over the country. Now that hope is somewhat clouded by doubt, as the Russell Sage Foundation prepares to release the results of a six-year study on the counseling of potentially delinquent girls.

The study shows that girls identified as potentially delinquent and given counseling on an individual basis turned out no better than those so identified and deprived of counseling.

There was no difference in the number who graduated from high school or in their grades. No effect on their truancy could be noted. The same proportion of both groups became pregnant out of wedlock.

Those who conducted the study do not despair. They only feel that with the present knowledge of how to counsel not much can be hoped for-- not that we can't learn how to counsel more effectively.

The point is that the Government is going full steam ahead before the necessary knowledge is available.

Not only that, but such cities as Columbus, Ohio, complain that those hired to counsel youngsters to stay in school are paid far more than those who will have to teach them if they do stay in school.

Washington seems to think we taxpayers have plenty of money for such untried experiments on a grand scale.

FAMILIAR OUTRAGE

Willow Village, a Michigan community, is astonished to find that it is expected to absorb $188,000 in Federal funds under the war on poverty program, and begs to be considered a conscientious objector.

The people don't consider themselves impoverished, and don't want to be labeled as such. The whole affair strongly resembles similar incidents that developed when the depressed areas program resulted in labeling a major part of the U. S. as poor and helpless. Many communities denied such conditions existed in their areas.

The federal folk, along with a cooperating university, give some curious reasons for deciding that Willow Village must swallow our tax money, whether it wants to or not. The 1960 census (now more than four years old) showed high unemployment. There is no hospital in the community. Children must take buses to school. There is no newspaper. There is no self-government.

Roy Smith, supervisor of the township of which Willow Village is part, says unemployment is low there in 1965 and many local residents work in three thriving auto factories not far away. Few people are on relief. There is a doctor's office, and hospitals are not remote in this thickly - settled area. Newspapers come in from Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor.

Smith is a Republican, but the issue is bi-partisan. Raymond Saari, the Democratic township treasurer, said; "I don't think the people who initiated this thing knew what they were doing."

Smith suggests that the grant be returned to the Federal government.

"They've disgraced our community and our residents," he commented.

It's clear that Willow Village hopes Washington will choose some other battlefield for its poverty war. We can all hope that it will not repeat all the old area development mistakes in this new program.

H. L. Hunt Says

ARE NEUTRAL NATIONS WORKABLE?

A country today can be run in one of just two ways. One is the freedom way. The other is the collectivist way.

Mixtures are constantly being tried. But it always turns out that every bit of collectivism restricts freedom and every bit of freedom holds back collectivism. The two may coexist, but they cannot blend. Sooner or later a choice has to be made as to which one is better. Neutral nations in 1965 are not workable.

A favorite trite saying about government is that "it should do for the people only what they cannot do for themselves." Yet there is really very little that people cannot do for them - selves, if left to themselves.

Individuals or families cannot raise modern armies. The state is needed to protect individuals against crime. They cannot operate courts of law on the voluntary basis. These are the just powers of the government. But whenever government gets into other areas of life and work, it may become a competitor with personal enterprise. Everything attempted by government which people can do for themselves is always at the expense of private citizens.

Examples are plentiful in our national life today. In fact, goverment is full of people who urge collectivist enterprises on the grounds that they will benefit everybody in the long run. But government cannot create the wealth that will benefit everybody. Only constructive and productive effort can do that.

A government cannot be happy for its inhabitants. A good society involves pride in accomplishment and people can only be happy for themselves.

NEW YORK (AP) — Can a man find personal happiness while making people laugh at $7,500 a week?

Well, comedian Jack Carter says he can't.

He is troubled by a recurrent nightmare in which he appears before the great tribunal hereafter.

"What did you do in life?" asks a vast voice.

"I told jokes," replies Jack quavering. And then the judge's awful verdict rings in his ears:

"Put him in Hell for 400 years —and throw on more coal!"

Jack is one of the few remaining triple-threat performers in the nation's contracting night club industry. He can sing and dance and ad lib with the best of them. And some of the best of them like to watch him work.

But listening to the wiry, effervescent comedian talk about his career, you'd think it has been a cheerless failure.

"I have to be constantly told it is really worthwhile just making people laugh," he remarked. "I think life is to be enjoyed, but I enjoy it the least of anyone I know.

"I'm a driven man. Offstage, I'm morose — a pretty miserable soul, so introverted people think I'm a snob."

"I'm a born servant. I should be running a cleaning shop. I'm so anxious for everybody to love me that I get upset if a bus boy in a restaurant doesn't smile at me," he says.

"All entertainers seem to have guilt complexes in varying degrees. You're a child for life. You're leading a child's life in a grownup's world.

"You have a terrible feeling of not having a real tie to the rest of the world — as if you were nothing but a laugh machine. You feel life you'd like to take a day off now and then to build a bridge, discover a disease cure, or just go to an office like other people do.

"And despite their outward appearance, entertainers are terribly afraid of being hurt. I try never to hurt anybody, hoping that then they'll never hurt me."

Show business has been Jack's world since he entertained customers as a child by giving mimic impressions atop a table in his dad's candy store in Coney Island. After service as a medic in the Army, he became a star on television.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Mississippi congressmen aren't advertising it, but almost every weekend they are flying back to Mississippi to defend their seats in Congress.

This is not because they are being challenged for reelection, but because a battery of New York lawyers have been taking depositions showing that the congressmen were not elected by all the people of Mississippi -- that Negroes were excluded from voting.

Under the law by which Mississippi was readmitted to the Union, all the people of the state are guaranteed the right to vote and Mississippi Negroes are now claiming the law is not enforced.

Alabama, incidentally, gave similar guarantees when she was readmitted into the Union.

At first the challenge to the seating of Mississippi congressmen was not taken seriously. But it is today. Mississippi congressmen are so worried that they have set up headquarters in room 1003 of the King Edward Hotel in Jackson, under Charlie Griffin, Washington administrative assistant to Rep. John Bell Williams. They have also hired Lyndon Johnson's old friend, ex-Gov. Jim Coleman, as legal counsel.

Rep. Williams, though recently refused all Democratic seniority privileges, has been flying back and forth to Jackson to help both himself and his three other Democratic colleagues keep their seats.

--GOV. JOHNSON BECOMES MODERATE--

Ex-Gov. Jim Coleman, now retained by the congressmen, was slapped down by Mississippi voters when he tried to run for Governor because he was considered a moderate.

Today, however, Jim is considered a possible savior because he once served as an administrative assistant in Congress when Lyndon Johnson was a young congressmen, and knows the President well.

Today the challenge to Mississippi's congressmen is causing such worry that Gov. Paul Johnson has called off a special session of the State Legislature originally planned to denounce the new Civil Rights Act.

"One reason," reported the Tupelo Journal, "was to avoid providing a forum which might produce inflammatory statements or resolutions which might prejudice the congressmen's defense."

When Gov. Johnson returned from the inauguration of President Johnson last January, he immediately warned Mississippi leaders that the challenge to their congressmen was serious. Ever since then, Johnson has endeavored to change the state's image. He has come out emphatically for law and order, has even criticized the "Southern Review," a right- wing publication, for calling him a "first -class integrationist."

"This element is the type that would turn on their own people," Gov. Johnson said. "We're not going to be a pushing boy for that element again."

Only a short time ago, Gov. Johnson was hand-in-glove with Mississippi right - wingers. When Mayor Thompson of Jackson announced publicly that he would obey the new Civil Rights Law, Gov. Johnson publicly advised Mississippians not to obey it.

"Law and order is going to prevail -- particularly for the next six months," Johnson told a gathering of five hundred bankers and business leaders sponsored by the Deposit Guaranty Bank and Trust Company of Jackson last month.

Reported W. F. Minor, Jackson correspondent for the New Orleans Times - Picayune: "There are indications that Mississippi unofficially sees the weakness of its position in the denial of Negroes to vote in the past, and the state is quietly going to set about doing something to change it.

"Compared with every other southern state, Mississippi has just a fraction of the Negro population now registered. The latest unofficial estimates place the figure at around 29,000 out of 600,000 total registered voters in the state."

Since 148 Congressmen voted against seating the Mississippi congressmen last January, events in Alabama have inflamed northern public opinion and brought pressure on every member of Congress. Among the congressmen voting to seat the Mississippi delegation who have been pressured are: James Fulton, R., and William Moorhead, D., both representing heavily Negro districts in Pittsburgh, Pa.; Manny Cellar, D., of Brooklyn, who claims to be a great civil rights advocate; Cecil King, D., of Los Angeles, another civil rights champion; Jed Johnson, D., of Oklahoma; Dante Fascell, D., of Florida, who deserted other Italo-Americans on this vote; George Fallon, D., of Baltimore, a city with a heavily Negro population; Jim Delaney, D., N. Y., a great friend of Cardinal Spellman, a cleric who has just contributed $10,000 to the family of Rev. James Reed.

Among other Democrats who voted with the Mississippians were Wayne Aspinall of Colorado; Edward Derwinski of Chicago; Spark Matsunaga of Hawaii, who claims to be a great civil rights champion; Walter Moeller of Ohio, who once wept and wrung his hands over the oppositon of the Medical Lobby; Claude Pepper of Miami, the one- time New Deal senator and battler for civil rights; John Tunney of California, son of the one-time heavyweight champ; Ben Reifel of South Dakota, the only Indian in Congress; Rolland Redlin of North Dakota, elected by Northwest liberals who got very sore that he voted with Mississippi.

Longshoremen Solve Red Fish Mystery, Outmaneuver the Soviet Strategem

New York: -- There was a touch of James Bond to the latest episode in the campaign of America's longshoremen against the entry of Soviet merchandise into the U. S.

Mysteriously, the U. S. S. R. state marketing trust has been getting millions of dollars worth of frozen fish into our country through the big harbors -- though no longshoremen have knowlingly unloaded Soviet cargo from any freighters.

Obviously the members of the International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA) were handling the Red fish. But how? Where? When? Obviously these imports were hurting American fishermen, cutting down profits and jobs, because the Soviet food has been sold here at slashed prices made possible because the U. S. S. R. has no consequential wage cost aboard its craft.

Finally matters got so tough for America's fishermen they went to Red Moran, vice president of the Boston ILA. They believed they had the answer. Investigation proved they did. Here's what had been happening:

Big Soviet Trawler fleets, bunched in groups of 20, have been steaming into the lush and lucrative fishing beds off the New England Coast -- not too far outside the three mile limit. Thus they are in international waters.

It was a flotilla of such Soviet trawlers which attempted to seize the American lobster net craft "Ruth and Helen" commanded by Capt. John Francis Jr. This happened off Newport, R. I., when the Ruth and Helen's radio went bad.

Capt. Francis asked the Russian captain of the H-3H6 to radio our Coast Guard. The Sovieteer refused. Instead he attempted to seize the American ship as "salvage."

Such flotillas, in which the F-3H6 was one of 20 Red trawlers, catch fish, process and freeze them right on board. The Soviet craft then can stay at sea for long periods. When they're full, they steam off to such Dutch ports as Antwerp or Rotterdam. There the frozen fish, already packaged, is put aboard non-Communist ships bound for the U. S.

Last week the New England fishermen, disturbed by the Soviet incursions on the nearby waters and their income, learned that Russian fish was being transshipped back to America, frequently in American freighters. The fishermen had been tipped off that the United States Line "American Contractor" had such crates of Red fish aboard and was heading from Antwerp to Boston.

Red Moran asked his longshoremen not to unload the cargo. The American Contractor headed for the New York harbor. It hove to on Sunday, March 10, at Pier 76, North River.

A warning was flashed to ILA executive Vice President John Bowers, who knows the docks and his cargo like an Irish tenor his lullabies.

For three days Bowers and his fellow longshoremen went over that cargo. There was nothing at first to indicate that the fish imports -- cod blocks -- were part of the Russian catch.

Finally they hit on 400 cases containing 26 tons of the stuff. They refused to unload the shipment. Then they learned the company might take it down to Philadelphia. Word immediately went out to the brethren there asking them not to handle the cargo.

At the same time Bowers had kept a vigil over at Pier 60 where 100 crates of Soviet vegetable oil had lain for two weeks since it had been unwittingly unloaded from another U. S. Lines freighter, the "Champion". This cargo, too, was not touched.

From now on, Bowers said, the ILA network will keep an alert on what comes from Antwerp, Rotterdam or any other Western European city, to head off transshipped Soviet fish catches.

"This is no red herring matter," Bowers told this columnist. "American fishermen are losing jobs because the Soviet trawlers really poach in our waters, pay their people slave wages and then undersell us. We would be scabbing on our own countrymen and fellow workers if we helped the Soviets in that subterfuge."

News of the ILA action has made the rounds inside labor. Workers in other industries hit by low price Eastern bloc imports are contacting the ILA. Latest request for a similar boycott has come from the glassmakers' union hit by Czechoslovakian competition. American businessmen are also communicating with the dockworkers.

Bowers and his colleagues are not certain how far they can go. But they're willing to try. They don't want to make foreign policy for the U. S. But they say no one can force them to help the opposition.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: After seven years I realized something vital was missing in our marriage. My husband was not unkind nor abusive — just bored to death, and frankly I was bored to death, too. I did not mind that he stopped at his mother's house every evening before coming home (and sometimes ate there).

I saw the signs before we married and I accepted the fact that he was a Mommy's boy. His low sex drive and his total indifference to me is what drove me to the yellow pages in search of a marriage counselor.

Well, Ann, the marriage counselor was the kindest and most understanding man I'd ever met. After four visits he began to tell me about HIS problems. He is unhappy, too. You guessed it. We are in love. He has small children and a nervous wife. He wants me to wait until he is in a position to "do something." Now I REALLY need help. — DILEMMA

Dear Dil: Simply because a marriage counselor is listed in the phone book does not mean he is competent, or even on the level.

The best way to select a marriage counselor is to ask your family doctor or your clergyman to direct you. I can personally recommend the Family Service Association and the Y.M.C.A. Obviously, your marriage counselor needs a marriage couselor. And so do you —but not him, Lady.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter may provide an answer to other young mothers who are having daily battles with their children about their eating habits.

Our Barbara is almost two years old. She has a mind of her own and when she makes it up that's it. She refuses to eat vegetables or meat. The child has been living on mashed potatoes, cake, candy and cookies. Barbara will not drink milk unless I put chocolate syrup in it. I've tried all sorts of tricks, like putting sugar on the carrots but it didn't work. She threw it on the floor.

Two weeks ago, out of sheer desperation, I called our pediatrician. He said, "When you find out who is boss in your house call me back." And then he hung up.

I was furious, then hurt. Later I began to think seriously about what he had said. I decided to BE boss and I set out that very day to serve Barbara the food she should have. When she refused to eat it I took it away. The next day it was the same story. By evening she was so hungry she ate everything on her plate. The battle is over. —THE WINNER

Dear Winner: The happy part of your story is that your child wins, too.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl who just turned 15. My parents promised I could date on my 15th birthday provided I did well in school and lived up to my responsibilities at home. I have kept my part of the bargain and they are keeping theirs.

I have had four dates, three with the same boy. I will call him Earl. He is very good-looking and my girl friends think he is great, but Earl has Roman hands and Russian impulses if you know what I mean.

On two separate occasions I have told him what I stand for but he doesn't pay any attention to me. I need help from an outsider because I am not doing very well. Thank you. — LOSING

Dear Losing: Since Earl is not much impressed by what you stand for perhaps you'd better tell him what you WON'T stand for.

Some boys need to have things spelled out for them in very plain language and I suggest you start learning to spell.

Confidential to SHOULD I?: Heavens NO!!! What if the children inherit his looks and your brains?

"The Bride's Guide," ANN LANDERS' booklet, gives authoritative and complete information on how to plan a wedding. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Canalou P.T.A. And 4-H Meets

CANALOU -- The art and music room of the elementary school displayed work created by the art classes of Miss Pat Williams, Monday, March 8, when the P. T. A. met for its regular meeting; the parents enjoyed a program presented by 4-H members under the direction of their leaders, Mrs. Peter Myres.

This program explained the work that is being done around the world and emphasized the Ifye program, in memory of a recent guest, C. F. Avad, from India.

It is said that a penny from each 4-H member would support the Ifye program. A collection of $5.17 was made at the meeting for this purpose.

The 4-H program was correlated with Spanish music and songs under the direction of Mrs. Elmer Gruen, with Ruth Ann Lumsdwen at the piano. The program was highlighted by the soprano voice of Terri Lowery and the alto voice of Shiela Beardsley as they sang a Duet in Spanish and A Spanish dance by Barbara Barnes, Pamela Lasters, Joe Myres and Rickey Whiffen, which Mrs. Peter Myres had taught them.

After the program, and during the business meeting, the pupils and their leaders enjoyed games and refreshments in Mrs. Gruen's room. For the first time many of them tasted Jalabi, on Indian food which Mr. Avad taught Mrs. Gruen to make while he was a guest in her home last fall. Mrs. Myres served fruit punch to compliment the Jalabi.

The attendance banner was won by Miss Pat Williams.

Miss Sidwell Presents Program To A.A.U.W.

The local chapter of the American Association of University Women met Tuesday, March 9, in the home of Mrs. Nell Matthews with the president, Miss Callie Burket, presiding.

The business session consisted of reading of the minutes; a report on the Fellowship Fund given by Mrs. Margaret Cain; and a report on the next year's program given by Miss Mary Ellen Bridges. A committee was chosen to nominate a slate of officers to be presented at the next meeting on April 5. Mrs. Helen Reuber and Mrs. Catherine Matthews were appointed to this committee with Miss Burket serving as chairman. Mrs. Robinson was appointed as chairman of the May meeting which is to be a tea for the senior girls who are interested in attending a college or university.

After the adjournment of the business session, the program was given by Miss Almarietta Sidwell. She gave a most interesting program on the culture of the people of New Zealand, Australia, and New Guiana. A film shown on Australia and an album of pictures from New Guiana, which were taken by her brother, made that culture seem much more meaningful to us as Americans.

Following the program, Mrs. Matthews showed films of her trip to Hawaii by request of the group. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed that trip into a different culture of our own United States.

At the conclusion of the films, the group was served by Mrs. Matthews. Members present were Mrs. Mildred Robinson, Miss Almarietta Sidwell, Mrs. Margaret Cain, Miss Mary Ellen Bridges, Miss Joan Lemmons, Miss Callie Burket, and guests, Mrs. Helen Jones and Mrs. Gladys Renner.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: After seven years I realized something vital was missing in our marriage. My husband was not unkind nor abusive — just bored to death, and frankly I was bored to death, too. I did not mind that he stopped at his mother's house every evening before coming home (and sometimes ate there).

I saw the signs before we married and I accepted the fact that he was a Mommy's boy. His low sex drive and his total indifference to me is what drove me to the yellow pages in search of a marriage counselor.

Well, Ann, the marriage counselor was the kindest and most understanding man I'd ever met. After four visits he began to tell me about HIS problems. He is unhappy, too. You guessed it. We are in love. He has small children and a nervous wife. He wants me to wait until he is in a position to "do something." Now I REALLY need help. — DILEMMA

Dear Dil: Simply because a marriage counselor is listed in the phone book does not mean he is competent, or even on the level.

The best way to select a marriage counselor is to ask your family doctor or your clergyman to direct you. I can personally recommend the Family Service Association and the Y.M.C.A. Obviously, your marriage counselor needs a marriage couselor. And so do you — but not him, Lady.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter may provide an answer to other young mothers who are having daily battles with their children about their eating habits.

Our Barbara is almost two years old. She has a mind of her own and when she makes it up that's it. She refuses to eat vegetables or meat. The child has been living on mashed potatoes, cake, candy and cookies. Barbara will not drink milk unless I put chocolate syrup in it. I've tried all sorts of tricks, like putting sugar on the carrots but it didn't work. She threw it on the floor.

Two weeks ago, out of sheer desperation, I called our pediatrician. He said, "When you find out who is boss in your house call me back." And then he hung up.

I was furious, then hurt. Later I began to think seriously about what he had said. I decided to BE boss and I set out that very day to serve Barbara the food she should have. When she refused to eat it I took it away. The next day it was the same story. By evening she was so hungry she ate everything on her plate. The battle is over. —THE WINNER

Dear Winner: The happy part of your story is that your child wins, too.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl who just turned 15. My parents promised I could date on my 15th birthday provided I did well in school and lived up to my responsibilities at home. I have kept my part of the bargain and they are keeping theirs.

I have had four dates, three with the same boy. I will call him Earl. He is very good-looking and my girl friends think he is great, but Earl has Roman hands and Russian impulses if you know what I mean.

On two separate occasions I have told him what I stand for but he doesn't pay any attention to me. I need help from an outsider because I am not doing very well. Thank you. — LOSING

Dear Losing: Since Earl is not much impressed by what you stand for perhaps you'd better tell him what you WON'T stand for.

Some boys need to have things spelled out for them in very plain language and I suggest you start learning to spell.

Confidential to SHOULD I?: Heavens NO!!! What if the children inherit his looks and your brains?

Canalou P.T.A. And 4-H Meets

CANALOU -- The art and music room of the elementary school displayed work created by the art classes of Miss Pat Williams, Monday, March 8, when the P. T. A. met for its regular meeting; the parents enjoyed a program presented by 4-H members under the direction of their leaders, Mrs. Peter Myres.

This program explained the work that is being done around the world and emphasized the Ifye program, in memory of a recent guest, C. F. Avad, from India.

It is said that a penny from each 4-H member would support the Ifye program. A collection of $5.17 was made at the meeting for this purpose.

The 4-H program was correlated with Spanish music and songs under the direction of Mrs. Elmer Gruen, with Ruth Ann Lumsdwen at the piano. The program was highlighted by the soprano voice of Terri Lowery and the alto voice of Shiela Beardsley as they sang a Duet in Spanish and A Spanish dance by Barbara Barnes, Pamela Lasters, Joe Myres and Rickey Whiffen, which Mrs. Peter Myres had taught them.

After the program, and during the business meeting, the pupils and their leaders enjoyed games and refreshments in Mrs. Gruen's room. For the first time many of them tasted Jalabi, on Indian food which Mr. Avad taught Mrs. Gruen to make while he was a guest in her home last fall. Mrs. Myres served fruit punch to compliment the Jalabi.

The attendance banner was won by Miss Pat Williams.

Stuart Welcomed With Open Arms By Philadelphia

Dr. Strangeglove exploded a couple of baseball bombs and the fallout reached all the way from Florida where the Philadelphia Phillies are training to Arizona where the Boston Red Sox are working out.

Dick Stuart, whose fielding feats have earned him a variety of nicknames in previous stops at Pittsburgh and Boston, is a welcome addition to Philadelphia's cast this season, strange glove and all.

Stuart earns his living by hitting, not fielding, and the outspoken first baseman demonstrated his specialty Wednesday helping the Phillies edge the Detroit Tigers in an exhibition game, 6-5 in 12 innings.

Gene Mauch's new power man socked a pair of homers, the second one winning the game in the 12th. Listen to Stuart and you'd think he was only doing what comes naturally. "I expect to be one of the top home-runs and runs-batted-in men in the National League this season," he said recently.

Stuart's huge ego was dented somewhat by the deal which sent him from the Red Sox to Philadelphia in exchange for pitcher Dennis Bennett.

Bennett's 12-14 record last year did suffer a bit by comparison with Stuart's 33 home runs and 114 RBI but the lefthander had some arm trouble which hampered him after a good start.

While the Phillies were savoring Stuart's muscle-flexing, the Red Sox were becoming a bit concerned over Bennett's arm. The southpaw allowed two runs and four hits in three innings in his first test this spring as Boston lost to Cleveland 7-3.

After the game, Bennett, who didn't throw hard, received an ice-pack treatment for his ailing shoulder.

St. Louis' World Series hero Bob Gibson hurled three hitless innings against the Cincinnati Reds. In the fourth, the Reds got two men on and Gordie Coleman hit a three-run homer as Cincinnati went on to a 4-1 victory over the World Champions.

Sandy Koufax, the Los Angeles Dodgers' ace, struck out five in the first three innings he worked but then was tagged for home runs by Washington's Woodie Held and Brant Alyea in his final frame. The Dodgers parlayed a 20-hit attack into a 13-5 victory.

In other games, the Chicago White Sox held off the New York Yankees 6-5, Pittsburgh downed Kansas City 7-1, Houston beat the New York Mets 7-4, the Los Angeles Angels sneaked past San Francisco 8-7 and Minnesota nipped Milwaukee 9-8.

Just where will the Bulldogs go in this new season of golf? That question at this point is hard to answer. They have three returning lettermen from last years squad, which had a 9-6 record. They finished up in second place in the district tournament, where they won four of the five matches played. Cape defeated them and then went on to tie Mexico, Mo. for the State Championship.

It's possible that the Bulldogs can again gain the second place position again this year, but that will probably be as far as they get, for the Central Tigers did not lose a single man from their foursome last year.

The three lettermen back for the Bulldogs are Clayton Vandivort, Paul Hill, and Charles Stamp. Vandivort and Hill are seniors, and Stamp, fortunately for the Bulldogs, is just a sophomore.

A first in Sikeston's brief history on the golf course is that they will play the Malden Green Wave this year. This is the third year for the Bulldogs to have a golf team.

Breda Kolff Considers Himself Fortunate To Play The Wolvernines

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "No," said Princeton Coach Butch van Breda Kolff in answer to a question. "We haven't scouted any of the other teams. But we've played Michigan, so I guess we're fortunate to get them again."

He said it with a wry little grin and was answered with a ripple of laughter through the press conference that was grilling the coaches of the four teams competing in the NCAA national basketball championship tourney.

Van Breda Kolff's long-shot Ivy League Tigers go against the powerful Wolverines, the nation's top-ranked college power, at 10 p.m., EST, tonight in the tourney opener.

Defending champion UCLA, ranked No. 2 in the nation, plays unranked Wichita in the other half of the doubleheader at 12 midnight, EST.

The winners of tonight's games play for the title at 10 p.m., EST, Saturday, with the losers playing a preliminary game at 8 p.m., EST.

Both semifinal games are scheduled for regional television coverage. The championship game will be telecast over some 135 stations by Sports Network Inc.

Van Breda Kolff's reference to Michigan was meant to be a funny one. In a previous meeting, Princeton's Bill Bradley, College Player of the Year, scored 41 points and paced the Tigers to a 12-point lead before he fouled out with 3½ minutes to go.

Michigan came on and won it 80-78 on a 20-foot jump shot by All-America Cazzie Russell with three seconds to go.

Michigan, again, is a solid favorite to win its semifinal game, as is UCLA, although UCLA Coach John Wooden had second thoughts about the matter.

"I don't believe any one of the four can be much of a favorite over the others," Wooden said.

Be that as it may, his swift Bruins are favored to take it all and become only the fifth team to win back-to-back titles.

The Bruins come in with the best record in the tourney, 26-2, and are sparked by All-America Gail Goodrich and 6-5 Keith Erickson.

Michigan is easily the biggest, strongest team in the tourney and has four returning starters from last year's team that finished No. 3 in the nation. They are 6-6 Russell, Bill Buntin and Oliver Darden, each 6-7 and about 230 pounds, and Larry Tregoning, 6-5.

Princeton, 22-5, relies to a large extent on the individual all-round brilliance of the 6-5 Bradley.

Wichita, 21-7, rallied to win the Missouri Valley Crown. The team scoring leader is 6-1 Kelly Pete. The Shockers are the smallest team in the tourney, with no starter over 6-5.

Stagg Preferred Scrawny Players

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Amos Alonzo Stagg preferred scrawny but willing players to mechanical musclemen on his football teams.

Through 57 years as a head coach, Stagg was the vigorous champion of the little guy and the long-shot cause.

He was a small, rugged and alert man.

His greatest players were like Walter Eckersall and Clarence Herschberger at the University of Chicago—slight of build, keen of mind.

As a believer in the power of emotion, Stagg never gave up on a boy because he didn't look like a football player, physically.

As a harsh taskmaster, the Grand Old Man deplored those who did not think like football players.

Twice this restless pioneer moved westward to spread his gospel of victory through fair play.

Stagg, a one-time Yale divinity student picked on the first All-America team, started football at the partially completed Chicago campus in 1892 with a squad of 13. He built the Maroons into a Big Ten Conference power which won six titles and enjoyed five unbeaten seasons in his 41 years there.

When faced with compulsory retirement by Chicago in 1933, Stagg, 70, termed himself "fit, able and willing," and migrated to College of The Pacific with the comment, "I refuse to be idle and a nuisance."

To critics of his policy to send the little Stockton, Calif., school against top-flight opposition, Stagg replied:

"Well, if you don't schedule the big fellow how can you ever expect to defeat him?"

From 1947 until 1953 he aided his son, Amos Alonzo Stagg Jr., at Susquehanna College in Pennsylvania and came up with a double flanker formation which befuddled opponents.

When the illness of his wife, Stella, convinced Stagg he should remain in Stockton the year around, he took a job as advisory coach at the local junior college. Until a few years ago he gave special instruction to the punters.

Mrs. Stagg died in 1964.

"Coaching is the primary factor in football," Stagg once wrote. "I should put school traditions second and raw material not better than third."

His overall record shows 309 victories, 200 defeats and 35 ties.

In 1899 Stagg turned out his first unbeaten team which captured the championship of the Big Ten, a conference which he had helped to create. In 1904 he became a member of the national football rules committee.

The following year Stagg successfully plotted the end of a 56-game unbeaten streak for Fielding Yost's point-a-minute Michigan powerhouse. Eckersall's quick thinking and sure punting were major factors in the stunning upset fashioned on a safety, 2-0.

After the 1905 season, President Theodore Roosevelt became alarmed at the growing casualty rate resulting from the close order, battering type of play. Roosevelt's ultimatum to gridiron leaders: Change the game or abandon it.

The forward pass which completely opened up football was the answer. Though the revolutionary weapon was not Stagg's idea in 1906, he pioneered its use.

Stagg had 64 different pass patterns worked out for use against Minnesota in the big game that season but rain and mud forced him to abandon the tactics in a 4-2 loss. The next week Stagg gave the okay to throw the ball around a little and Chicago trounced Illinois 63-0.

Chicago lost only two games in the period 1905 through 1909 as Stagg enjoyed the most prosperous era of his career.

The Team With The Worst Doctors Report May Win The NIT Championship

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The team with the worst doctor's report may win the National Invitation Tournament basketball championship.

That could be the case if Bill Melchionni and Ken McIntyre carry their present conditions over to Saturday afternoon's final between top-seeded Villanova and St. John's.

Despite their various injuries and illnesses, Melchionni starred in Villanova's 91-69 breeze past New York University and McIntyre sparked St. John's to a 67-60 triumph over Army in semifinal games Thursday night.

"If I was missing, I would have taken myself out," said the 6-foot Melchionni, who felt dizzy before and after the game.

In between, though, he poured in 28 points, hitting 11 of 20 tries from the field. Following the Wildcats' victory over Manhattan last Monday night, Melchionni spent part of Tuesday in the school infirmary, feeling sick and weak.

"I think I have some sort of virus," he decided.

McIntyre, on the other hand, still suffered from a leg injury incurred against Boston College a week ago and an upset stomach which he picked up last Sunday night.

With all of these aches and pains, the 6-foot-3 McIntyre tallied 21 points and extended his free-throw streak to 42 straight.

As soon as Villanova crushed NYU, the eighth-ranked Wildcats, 23-4, then started thinking of how they are going to stop McIntyre, who has scored 83 points in three games.

Villanova, which beat St. John's 52-43 earlier this season, will be trying for its first NIT title while St. John's, 20-8 goes after an unprecedented fourth crown. The game will be the last for St. John's Coach Joe Lapchick, who retires next month.

The consolation game will feature the same teams that played for third place last season. In that one, Army edged NYU 60-59.

Dickinson Tied For Lead With 68

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. AP — Little Gardner Dickinson Jr. and big Bernard Hunt got the best of bad weather and moved into the second round of the $57,500 Greater Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament with a one-stroke lead at 68.

The Lincoln-Douglas debates began on Aug. 21, 1858.

NEW YORK AP -- Fordham University track star Sam Perry underwent surgery on his right knee Wednesday that will keep him out of competition this spring.

Perry, who tied the world record for the 60-yard dash with a 5.9 clocking last month, had damaged cartilage removed from his right knee at St. Vincent's Hospital.

NEW YORK AP -- The National Basketball Association playoffs open next Wednesday with Philadelphia at Cincinnati and Baltimore at St. Louis. The regular season schedule ends Sunday.

These are the semifinal best of-5 divisional playoffs. Cincinnati finished second to Boston in the Eastern Division with Philadelphia third. St. Louis has cinched runner - up honors to Los Angeles in the Western Division with Baltimore third.

Stuart Welcomed With Open Arms By Philadelphia

Dr. Strangeglove exploded a couple of baseball bombs and the fallout reached all the way from Florida where the Philadelphia Phillies are training to Arizona where the Boston Red Sox are working out.

Dick Stuart, whose fielding feats have earned him a variety of nicknames in previous stops at Pittsburgh and Boston, is a welcome addition to Philadelphia's cast this season, strange glove and all.

Stuart earns his living by hitting, not fielding, and the outspoken first baseman demonstrated his specialty Wednesday helping the Phillies edge the Detroit Tigers in an exhibition game, 6-5 in 12 innings.

Gene Mauch's new power man socked a pair of homers, the second one winning the game in the 12th. Listen to Stuart and you'd think he was only doing what comes naturally. "I expect to be one of the top home-runs and runs-batted-in men in the National League this season," he said recently.

Stuart's huge ego was dented somewhat by the deal which sent him from the Red Sox to Philadelphia in exchange for pitcher Dennis Bennett.

Bennett's 12-14 record last year did suffer a bit by comparison with Stuart's 33 home runs and 114 RBI but the left-hander had some arm trouble which hampered him after a good start.

While the Phillies were savoring Stuart's muscle-flexing, the Red Sox were becoming a bit concerned over Bennett's arm. The southpaw allowed two runs and four hits in three innings in his first test this spring as Boston lost to Cleveland 7-3.

After the game, Bennett, who didn't throw hard, received an ice-pack treatment for his ailing shoulder.

St. Louis' World Series hero Bob Gibson hurled three hitless innings against the Cincinnati Reds. In the fourth, the Reds got two men on and Gordie Coleman hit a three-run homer as Cincinnati went on to a 4-1 victory over the World Champions.

Sandy Koufax, the Los Angeles Dodgers' ace, struck out five in the first three innings he worked but then was tagged for home runs by Washington's Woodie Held and Brant Alyea in his final frame. The Dodgers parlayed a 20-hit attack into a 13-5 victory.

In other games, the Chicago White Sox held off the New York Yankees 6-5, Pittsburgh downed Kansas City 7-1, Houston beat the New York Mets 7-4, the Los Angeles Angels sneaked past San Francisco 8-7 and Minnesota nipped Milwaukee 9-8.

Just where will the Bulldogs go in this new season of golf? That question at this point is hard to answer. They have three returning lettermen from last years squad, which had a 9-6 record. They finished up in second place in the district tournament, where they won four of the five matches played. Cape defeated them and then went on to tie Mexico, Mo. for the State Championship.

It's possible that the Bulldogs can again gain the second place position again this year, but that will probably be as far as they get, for the Central Tigers did not lose a single man from their foursome last year.

The three lettermen back for the Bulldogs are Clayton Vandivort, Paul Hill, and Charles Stamp. Vandivort and Hill are seniors, and Stamp, fortunately for the Bulldogs, is just a sophomore.

A first in Sikeston's brief history on the golf course is that they will play the Malden Green Wave this year. This is the third year for the Bulldogs to have a golf team.

Breda Kolff Considers Himself Fortunate To Play The Wolvernines

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "No," said Princeton Coach Butch van Breda Kolff in answer to a question. "We haven't scouted any of the other teams. But we've played Michigan, so I guess we're fortunate to get them again."

He said it with a wry little grin and was answered with a ripple of laughter through the press conference that was grilling the coaches of the four teams competing in the NCAA national basketball championship tourney.

Van Breda Kolff's long-shot Ivy League Tigers go against the powerful Wolverines, the nation's top-ranked college power, at 10 p.m., EST, tonight in the tourney opener.

Defending champion UCLA, ranked No. 2 in the nation, plays unranked Wichita in the other half of the doubleheader at 12 midnight, EST.

The winners of tonight's games play for the title at 10 p.m., EST, Saturday, with the losers playing a preliminary game at 8 p.m., EST.

Both semifinal games are scheduled for regional television coverage. The championship game will be telecast over some 135 stations by Sports Network Inc.

Van Breda Kolff's reference to Michigan was meant to be a funny one. In a previous meeting, Princeton's Bill Bradley, College Player of the Year, scored 41 points and paced the Tigers to a 12-point lead before he fouled out with 3½ minutes to go.

Michigan came on and won it 80-78 on a 20-foot jump shot by All-America Cazzie Russell with three seconds to go.

Michigan, again, is a solid favorite to win its semifinal game, as is UCLA, although UCLA Coach John Wooden had second thoughts about the matter.

"I don't believe any one of the four can be much of a favorite over the others," Wooden said.

Be that as it may, his swift Bruins are favored to take it all and become only the fifth team to win back-to-back titles.

The Bruins come in with the best record in the tourney, 26-2, and are sparked by All-America Gail Goodrich and 6-5 Keith Erickson.

Michigan is easily the biggest, strongest team in the tourney and has four returning starters from last year's team that finished No. 3 in the nation. They are 6-6 Russell, Bill Buntin and Oliver Darden, each 6-7 and about 230 pounds, and Larry Tregoning, 6-5.

Princeton, 22-5, relies to a large extent on the individual all-round brilliance of the 6-5 Bradley.

Wichita, 21-7, rallied to win the Missouri Valley Crown. The team scoring leader is 6-1 Kelly Pete. The Shockers are the smallest team in the tourney, with no starter over 6-5.

Stagg Preferred Scrawny Players

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Amos Alonzo Stagg preferred scrawny but willing players to mechanical musclemen on his football teams.

Through 57 years as a head coach, Stagg was the vigorous champion of the little guy and the long-shot cause.

He was a small, rugged and alert man.

His greatest players were like Walter Eckersall and Clarence Herschberger at the University of Chicago—slight of build, keen of mind.

As a believer in the power of emotion, Stagg never gave up on a boy because he didn't look like a football player, physically.

As a harsh taskmaster, the Grand Old Man deplored those who did not think like football players.

Twice this restless pioneer moved westward to spread his gospel of victory through fair play.

Stagg, a one-time Yale divinity student picked on the first All-America team, started football at the partially completed Chicago campus in 1892 with a squad of 13. He built the Maroons into a Big Ten Conference power which won six titles and enjoyed five unbeaten seasons in his 41 years there.

When faced with compulsory retirement by Chicago in 1933, Stagg, 70, termed himself "fit, able and willing," and migrated to College of The Pacific with the comment, "I refuse to be idle and a nuisance."

To critics of his policy to send the little Stockton, Calif., school against top-flight opposition, Stagg replied:

"Well, if you don't schedule the big fellow how can you ever expect to defeat him?"

From 1947 until 1953 he aided his son, Amos Alonzo Stagg Jr., at Susquehanna College in Pennsylvania and came up with a double flanker formation which befuddled opponents.

When the illness of his wife, Stella, convinced Stagg he should remain in Stockton the year around, he took a job as advisory coach at the local junior college. Until a few years ago he gave special instruction to the punters.

Mrs. Stagg died in 1964.

"Coaching is the primary factor in football," Stagg once wrote. "I should put school traditions second and raw material not better than third."

His over-all record shows 309 victories, 200 defeats and 35 ties.

In 1899 Stagg turned out his first unbeaten team which captured the championship of the Big Ten, a conference which he had helped to create. In 1904 he became a member of the national football rules committee.

The following year Stagg successfully plotted the end of a 56-game unbeaten streak for Fielding Yost's point-a-minute Michigan powerhouse. Eckersall's quick thinking and sure punting were major factors in the stunning upset fashioned on a safety, 2-0.

After the 1905 season, President Theodore Roosevelt became alarmed at the growing casualty rate resulting from the close order, battering type of play. Roosevelt's ultimatum to gridiron leaders: Change the game or abandon it.

The forward pass which completely opened up football was the answer. Though the revolutionary weapon was not Stagg's idea in 1906, he pioneered its use.

Stagg had 64 different pass patterns worked out for use against Minnesota in the big game that season but rain and mud forced him to abandon the tactics in a 4-2 loss. The next week Stagg gave the okay to throw the ball around a little and Chicago trounced Illinois 63-0.

Chicago lost only two games in the period 1905 through 1909 as Stagg enjoyed the most prosperous era of his career.

The Team With The Worst Doctors Report May Win The NIT Championship

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The team with the worst doctor's report may win the National Invitation Tournament basketball championship.

That could be the case if Bill Melchionni and Ken McIntyre carry their present conditions over to Saturday afternoon's final between top-seeded Villanova and St. John's.

Despite their various injuries and illnesses, Melchionni starred in Villanova's 91-69 breeze past New York University and McIntyre sparked St. John's to a 67-60 triumph over Army in semifinal games Thursday night.

"If I was missing, I would have taken myself out," said the 6-foot Melchionni, who felt dizzy before and after the game.

In between, though, he poured in 28 points, hitting 11 of 20 tries from the field. Following the Wildcats' victory over Manhattan last Monday night, Melchionni spent part of Tuesday in the school infirmary, feeling sick and weak.

"I think I have some sort of virus," he decided.

McIntyre, on the other hand, still suffered from a leg injury incurred against Boston College a week ago and an upset stomach which he picked up last Sunday night.

With all of these aches and pains, the 6-foot-3 McIntyre tallied 21 points and extended his free-throw streak to 42 straight.

As soon as Villanova crushed NYU, the eighth-ranked Wildcats, 23-4, then started thinking of how they are going to stop McIntyre, who has scored 83 points in three games.

Villanova, which beat St. John's 52-43 earlier this season, will be trying for its first NIT title while St. John's, 20-8 goes after an unprecedented fourth crown. The game will be the last for St. John's Coach Joe Lapchick, who retires next month.

The consolation game will feature the same teams that played for third place last season. In that one, Army edged NYU 60-59.

Antarctic's Area

Antarctica, with an area of 5.1 million square miles, is almost as large as the United States and Europe combined, according to Britannica Junior Encyclopaedia.

NEW YORK AP -- Fordham University track star Sam Perry underwent surgery on his right knee Wednesday that will keep him out of competition this spring.

Perry, who tied the world record for the 60-yard dash with a 5.9 clocking last month, had damaged cartilage removed from his right knee at St. Vincent's Hospital.

NEW YORK AP -- The National Basketball Association playoffs open next Wednesday with Philadelphia at Cincinnati and Baltimore at St. Louis. The regular season schedule ends Sunday.

These are the semifinal best-of-5 divisional playoffs. Cincinnati finished second to Boston in the Eastern Division with Philadelphia third. St. Louis has cinched runner - up honors to Los Angeles in the Western Division with Baltimore third.

School Of The Ozarks A New Approach

By HANK BILLINGS
Springfield Leader and Press
Written For
The Associated Press

POINT LOOKOUT, Mo. (AP) —This hilltop community above Lake Taneycomo, in the heart of the Ozarks lake country, is the home of the unique School of the Ozarks.

Although it has most of the facilities of a city, Point Lookout is not an incorporated town or village, but it has a postoffice dating back to 1930.

Its population is about 1,100. That includes 700 students, 200 faculty members, staffers and dependents, working together to overcome two new challenges:

Making do and rebuilding after a Christmas vacation fire destroyed the Green Building, one of the largest and oldest on the 1,000-acre campus;

Expanding from a junior college to a four-year liberal arts college to meet the changing needs of the hill country since transportation and reorganization have brought a high school education within reach of everyone.

The school was organized in 1906 by the Rev. James Forsyth, a Presbyterian minister, as a grade and high school to meet a need before buses and mergers extended opportunities for a high school education.

Although the emphasis has shifted from the lower grades to junior colleges and now toward a four-year program, the basic religious and earn-while-you-learn precepts are unchanged.

All the students earn all their tuition at tasks which serve a dual function of supporting the school and teaching them a trade along with a liberal arts background.

All are required to attend Sunday morning chapel services. Blessings are said before each generous meal, apt to include vegetables from the school's farm or canning factory; milk and ice cream from its dairy; bread and cookies from its bakery and meat from its packing plant.

Other student industries provide Point Lookout with its own furniture plant, printing shop, newspaper, beauty and barber shop; water, sewer, telephone and electric systems; a 60-bed hospital and an FM radio station.

There is a student-manned fire department and a one-man police force. The latter has no traffic problems because none the students is allowed to have a car and all live on the campus.

Many of the student firemen were away for the holidays when fire struck the Green Building, but firemen from nearby resort communities came to the rescue.

With typical self-sufficiency, the school opened on schedule after the fire, in temporary quarters with equipment bought, borrowed, donated, or turned out in its own shops.

Dr. M. Graham Clark, former Atlanta, Ga., business executive who has been president since 1946, has been on the go steadily since and has raised, with insurance, $357,009 toward an estimated replacement cost of $500,000. It includes a pledge from one donor to match any $1,000 gift.

Dr. Clark took over the school reins from D. R.M. Good, who steered the college through the depression years.

"I can remember the time when Dr. Good had to find contributions to pay for that day's operations," recalled Charles Fain, a Branson lawyer, who is past president of the alumni association.

Dr. Good, still at the school as president emeritus, works just as hard in support of its changing image.

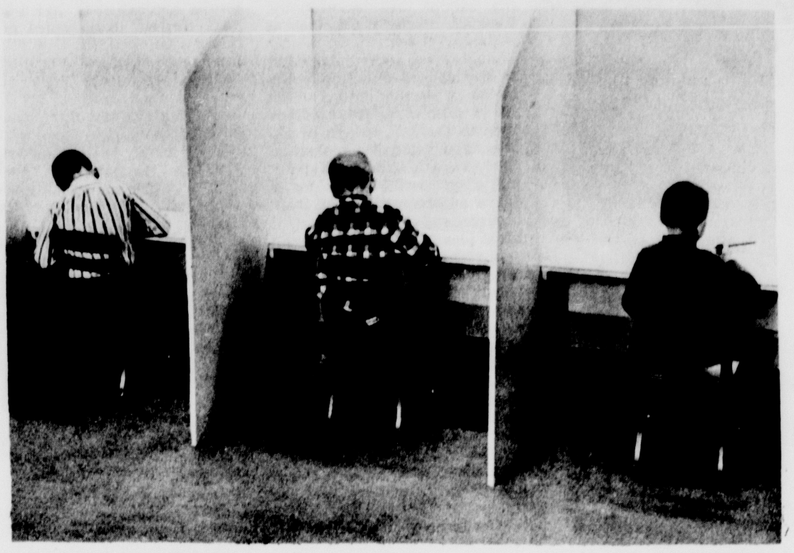
Beginning June 1, the school will add a junior class. It will drop the first year of high school and limit freshman applications.

"We already have 772 applications for 200 to 250 freshmen spots," reports Dr. James E. Findlay, vice president of academic affairs.

Next year a senior class will be started.

"We'll add about 25 students a year until we level off at 1,000," Dr. Clark added.

"But one thing won't be changed—the school's devotion to prayer and work in getting an education."



STUDENTS STUDY in their individual offices in the Easter Seals Class in Springfield, Mo. for children with learning disorders. The class is sponsored by the Greene County Society for Crippled Children and Adults in cooperation with the Springfield Public Schools. It is the first voluntary educational program of its kind in the state.

Easter Seal Classes for Children

ST. LOUIS--An Easter Seals Class for children with learning disorders has been opened in Springfield, Mo. under the sponsorship of the Greene County Society for Crippled Children and Adults in cooperation with the Springfield Public Schools.

This is the first voluntary educational program in the state geared exclusively to children with normal or potentially normal intelligence who have learning disorders or a perceptual, conceptual, or coordinative nature. Such learning disorders prevent children from responding to usual techniques employed by the public schools. The majority of these children have underlying neurological damage caused by pre-natal or neo-natal injury or a severe childhood illness or accident.

Organic abnormalities are frequently difficult to diagnose; however, these children can often be identified by the following behavioral symptoms; perceptual difficulty, distractibility, perserveration, hyperactivity, and impulsiveness. All children have these characteristics to some degree, but in those with learning disorders, they may appear in extreme or inappropriate forms. All these children do not exhibit the same symptoms to the same degree, but rather in varying degrees and in varying combinations.

Children with learning disorders have always been among us. They have only recently been identified as invisibly crippled human beings for they have little or no physical handicap. Their "crippling" involves their ability to perceive their world, to think about it, and to respond to it in effective ways.

Unfortunately, these children are usually not found until after they have suffered failure in school. Then there is usually no place for them except the classroom for the mentally retarded, and they do not belong there. They need a special program tailored to their individual needs where they can learn the basic skills by special methods so they can eventually take their places in a normal public school classroom.

According to Mrs. W. Yates Trotter, Jr., coordinator of the Easter Seals Class, "Our present program is for six and seven-year-old children. We prefer to reach the child before he suffers the trauma of school failure or acquires poor learning habits."

The classroom and the teacher are the two most important factors in such a program. The Easter Seals Class has five children, although ten children are the maximum number. The room needs to be free from auditory and visual stimuli; therefore, the colors of the walls and furniture are uniform, the floor is carpeted, no pictures or displays are on the walls, and each child has his own cubicle or "office". A teacher's aide, in addition to the teacher, is present throughout the school day so that each child receives the proper attention so necessary to his progress.

Mrs. JoAnne Brown, a graduate of Central Missouri State College, is the teacher of the Easter Seals Class. In preparation for this class, she attended a summer workshop at Syracuse University, New York on "Teaching of Brain - Injured Children".

There are no "cookbooks" available for this type of program. The teacher must be highly imaginative so that she can perceive the world as her students do. She must have much ingenuity as she has to make different lesson plans for each child. She must be impatient with herself if her methods do not bring results, for she must then change her methods. Some normal children will learn in spite of their teacher, but not children with learning disorders.

Such a program is very expensive but is a worthwhile investment for any community.

Patricia Neal Taken Home From Hospital

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Patricia Neal, her speech hobbled and her right side paralyzed by three massive strokes, remained "very cheerful" today, although the life of her unborn child still hung in the balance, her husband said.

"She's displayed tremendous courage — and has never been depressed," said British mystery writer Roald Dahl. "She's always joking now."

Dahl, who brought his wife home from UCLA Medical Center Wednesday night, disclosed Thursday that she is five months pregnant.

"But we don't know whether or not she'll be able to have the baby," he said. "We'll have to evaluate the effect of the medication and X-ray treatment she's received."

The Academy Award-winning actress, 39, was stricken Feb 17 while giving the oldest of her three children, Tessa, a bath. She had just returned to their rented Pacific Palisades home after doing her first big scene in the film, "Seven Women."

"She felt this terrible pain in her neck," said Dahl, recounting the ordeal.

"She lost consciousness, but regained it on the way to the hospital. Thirty minutes later she suffered a second stroke."

While she was being X-rayed and given other diagnostic tests, Miss Neal suffered a third stroke, her husband said.

"We didn't know when she went into surgery whether she'd survive. Her chances seemed a little better when she came out of surgery alive."

She remained in surgery seven hours, while doctors removed a blood clot and accumulated blood from massive hemorrhaging and clipped together the broken blood vessel in her brain, Dahl said.

"She was unconscious about 2½ weeks," said Dahl. "But gradually she began to come out of it."

Friends have taken care of the children, Ophelia, 10 months, Theo, 5, and Tessa, since their mother's illness.

Dahl said his wife's first words were halting.

"But within a year, she should be able to speak well again."

He said he hoped to take Miss Neal and the children back to their home in England in four to six weeks.

Report from Hashua, N. H., advised that one airplane landed on top of another "by accident." It is nice to know nobody is doing that sort of thing on purpose. Commercial Appeal

HE MUST BE ALL

If Jesus Christ is anything to me He must be everything. How can one believe in His audacious claims and not cry out with Thomas, "My Lord and my God?"

How can one perceive the challenge underlying His statements and be content to compromise with the unworthy?

How can one hear Him say, "Follow Me," and be willing to go less than all the way?

How can one accept His love and not be prepared to share His Cross? If one refuses to give Him first place can that one really believe in Him as God, Redeemer, Saviour and Friend?

"Will ye also go away?" asked Jesus of His disciples as the fickle multitude forsook Him.

"To whom shall we go?" asked Peter.

"Thou hast the words of eternal life."

Truly, if He is not all to me, can He be anything at all? Jean Brown

Guerin Signs New Pact With St. Louis

ST. LOUIS AP -- There may be no place like home, but Richie Guerin of the St. Louis Hawks decided Thursday he can stay away for at least one more year.

Guerin signed for another year of self-imposed exile from his New York home by accepting a substantial raise to return as player-coach of the Hawks.

Nearing the end of his brilliant playing career in the National Basketball Association, the 32-year-old backcourt ace thus laid the groundwork for at least a brief coaching career.

"I don't want to make a career of coaching because of all the travel," said Guerin, who almost quit after the 1963-64 season because basketball in St. Louis took him away too much from his family in New York.

Despite numerous injuries that put Guerin, Bob Pettit and others out for prolonged periods, Guerin coached the club to a 26-19 finish after replacing Harry Gallatin on Dec. 29. St. Louis took second place in the Western Division.

THE IMAGE OF GOD

Give me ev'ning quiet, still,
Waiting hushed to learn His will;
Make a canopy of stars,
Up where nothing hides or mars;
Show me rip'ning tree and field,
Ready soon for harvest yield;
Loose the storms then warm with sun
Let the seasons have their run.

God of night, of height, of care,
God of nature bright and bare;
Lord of earth and Heav'n above,
Prince of peace, of hope, of love;
May I see in all I view,
God of might, Thy image true.

Yesterday we gave you the English sound "ray" that enables you to use the third person singular of the verb 'to want':

A) He wants. B) El quiere. C) l/key-AIR-ray

Now we give you the sound "day" to enable you to use the third person singular of the verb 'to be able':

A) He can. B) El puede. C) l/poo-AID-day

"RAY" and "DAY" -- remember these sounds because they give you the conditional mood in the present tense: A) I can go, but he doesn't want to go. B) Puedo ir, pero el no quiere ir. C) POO AID-doe/ear/PAIR-oh/l/no/key-AIR-ray/ear

A) I am going if he wants to go. B) Yo voy si el quiere ir. C) yo/voy/see/l/key-AIR-ray/ear

A) I can go if he can go. B) Puedo ir si el puede ir. C) poo-AID-doe/ear/see/l/poo-AID-day/ear

A)He can go, but I can't. B) El puede ir, pero yo no puedo. C) l/poo- AID-day/ear/PAIR-oh/yo/no/poo-AID-doe

Here are your new sounds; key-AIR-'o' -- 'I' want.; l/key-AIR-'ray' -- 'He' wants; poo-AID-'doe' -- 'I' can. ; l/poo-AID-'day' -- 'He' can.

'Key-AIR-' and 'poo'AID-' are the stems of these "keys". Just add the endings "ray" and "day" to the stems and you add a completely new world to your conversational ability.

See how simply a child learns? "O" was the first sound he employed to say, 'quiero' and 'puedo'. Now he changes the endings to "ray" and "day." Small wonder that a child can learn so rapidly!

School Of The Ozarks A New Approach

By HANK BILLINGS
Springfield Leader and Press
Written For
The Associated Press

POINT LOOKOUT, Mo. (AP) —This hilltop community above Lake Taneycomo, in the heart of the Ozarks lake country, is the home of the unique School of the Ozarks.

Although it has most of the facilities of a city, Point Lookout is not an incorporated town or village, but it has a postoffice dating back to 1930.

Its population is about 1,100. That includes 700 students, 200 faculty members, staffers and dependents, working together to overcome two new challenges:

Making do and rebuilding after a Christmas vacation fire destroyed the Green Building, one of the largest and oldest on the 1,000-acre campus;

Expanding from a junior college to a four-year liberal arts college to meet the changing needs of the hill country since transportation and reorganization have brought a high school education within reach of everyone.

The school was organized in 1906 by the Rev. James Forsyth, a Presbyterian minister, as a grade and high school to meet a need before buses and mergers extended opportunities for a high school education.

Although the emphasis has shifted from the lower grades to junior colleges and now toward a four-year program, the basic religious and earn-while-you-learn precepts are unchanged.

All the students earn all their tuition at tasks which serve a dual function of supporting the school and teaching them a trade along with a liberal arts background.

All are required to attend Sunday morning chapel services. Blessings are said before each generous meal, apt to include vegetables from the school's farm or canning factory; milk and ice cream from its dairy; bread and cookies from its bakery and meat from its packing plant.

Other student industries provide Point Lookout with its own furniture plant, printing shop, newspaper, beauty and barber shop; water, sewer, telephone and electric systems; a 60-bed hospital and an FM radio station.

There is a student-manned fire department and a one-man police force. The latter has no traffic problems because none the students is allowed to have a car and all live on the campus.

Many of the student firemen were away for the holidays when fire struck the Green Building, but firemen from nearby resort communities came to the rescue.

With typical self-sufficiency, the school opened on schedule after the fire, in temporary quarters with equipment bought, borrowed, donated, or turned out in its own shops.

Dr. M. Graham Clark, former Atlanta, Ga., business executive who has been president since 1946, has been on the go steadily since and has raised, with insurance, $357,009 toward an estimated replacement cost of $500,000. It includes a pledge from one donor to match any $1,000 gift.

Dr. Clark took over the school reins from D. R.M. Good, who steered the college through the depression years.

"I can remember the time when Dr. Good had to find contributions to pay for that day's operations," recalled Charles Fain, a Branson lawyer, who is past president of the alumni association.

Dr. Good, still at the school as president emeritus, works just as hard in support of its changing image.

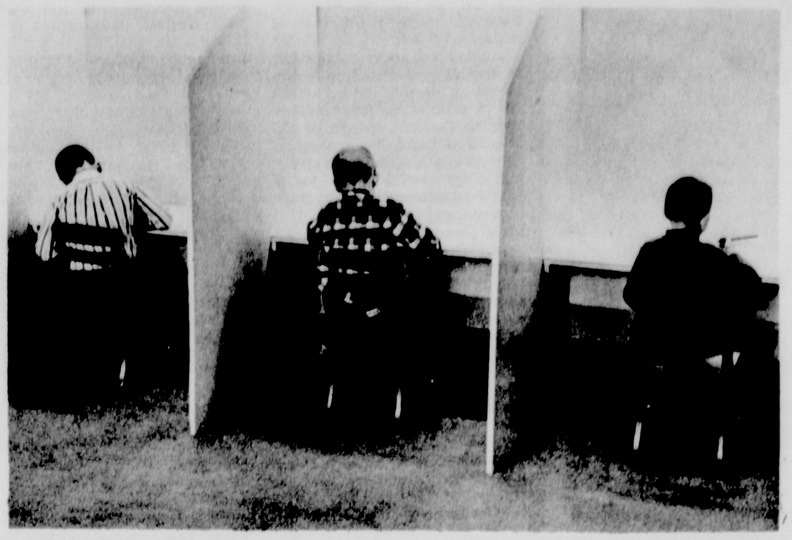
Beginning June 1, the school will add a junior class. It will drop the first year of high school and limit freshman applications.

"We already have 772 applications for 200 to 250 freshmen spots," reports Dr. James E. Findlay, vice president of academic affairs.

Next year a senior class will be started.

"We'll add about 25 students a year until we level off at 1,000," Dr. Clark added.

"But one thing won't be changed—the school's devotion to prayer and work in getting an education."



STUDENTS STUDY in their individual offices in the Easter Seals Class in Springfield, Mo. for children with learning disorders. The class is sponsored by the Greene County Society for Crippled Children and Adults in cooperation with the Springfield Public Schools. It is the first voluntary educational program of its kind in the state.

Easter Seal Classes for Children

ST. LOUIS--An Easter Seals Class for children with learning disorders has been opened in Springfield, Mo. under the sponsorship of the Greene County Society for Crippled Children and Adults in cooperation with the Springfield Public Schools.

This is the first voluntary educational program in the state geared exclusively to children with normal or potentially normal intelligence who have learning disorders or a perceptual, conceptual, or coordinative nature. Such learning disorders prevent children from responding to usual techniques employed by the public schools. The majority of these children have underlying neurological damage caused by pre-natal or neo-natal injury or a severe childhood illness or accident.

Organic abnormalities are frequently difficult to diagnose; however, these children can often be identified by the following behavioral symptoms; perceptual difficulty, distractibility, perserveration, hyperactivity, and impulsiveness. All children have these characteristics to some degree, but in those with learning disorders, they may appear in extreme or inappropriate forms. All these children do not exhibit the same symptoms to the same degree, but rather in varying degrees and in varying combinations.

Children with learning disorders have always been among us. They have only recently been identified as invisibly crippled human beings for they have little or no physical handicap. Their "crippling" involves their ability to perceive their world, to think about it, and to respond to it in effective ways.

Unfortunately, these children are usually not found until after they have suffered failure in school. Then there is usually no place for them except the classroom for the mentally retarded, and they do not belong there. They need a special program tailored to their individual needs where they can learn the basic skills by special methods so they can eventually take their places in a normal public school classroom.

According to Mrs. W. Yates Trotter, Jr., coordinator of the Easter Seals Class, "Our present program is for six and seven-year-old children. We prefer to reach the child before he suffers the trauma of school failure or acquires poor learning habits."

The classroom and the teacher are the two most important factors in such a program. The Easter Seals Class has five children, although ten children are the maximum number. The room needs to be free from auditory and visual stimuli; therefore, the colors of the walls and furniture are uniform, the floor is carpeted, no pictures or displays are on the walls, and each child has his own cubicle or "office". A teacher's aide, in addition to the teacher, is present throughout the school day so that each child receives the proper attention so necessary to his progress.

Mrs. JoAnne Brown, a graduate of Central Missouri State College, is the teacher of the Easter Seals Class. In preparation for this class, she attended a summer workshop at Syracuse University, New York on "Teaching of Brain - Injured Children".

There are no "cookbooks" available for this type of program. The teacher must be highly imaginative so that she can perceive the world as her students do. She must have much ingenuity as she has to make different lesson plans for each child. She must be impatient with herself if her methods do not bring results, for she must then change her methods. Some normal children will learn in spite of their teacher, but not children with learning disorders.

Such a program is very expensive but is a worthwhile investment for any community.

Patricia Neal Taken Home From Hospital

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Patricia Neal, her speech hobbled and her right side paralyzed by three massive strokes, remained "very cheerful" today, although the life of her unborn child still hung in the balance, her husband said.

"She's displayed tremendous courage — and has never been depressed," said British mystery writer Roald Dahl. "She's always joking now."

Dahl, who brought his wife home from UCLA Medical Center Wednesday night, disclosed Thursday that she is five months pregnant.

"But we don't know whether or not she'll be able to have the baby," he said. "We'll have to evaluate the effect of the medication and X-ray treatment she's received."

The Academy Award-winning actress, 39, was stricken Feb 17 while giving the oldest of her three children, Tessa, a bath. She had just returned to their rented Pacific Palisade home after doing her first big scene in the film, "Seven Women."

"She felt this terrible pain in her neck," said Dahl, recounting the ordeal.

"She lost consciousness, but regained it on the way to the hospital. Thirty minutes later she suffered a second stroke."

While she was being X-rayed and given other diagnostic tests, Miss Neal suffered a third stroke, her husband said.

"We didn't know when she went into surgery whether she'd survive. Her chances seemed a little better when she came out of surgery alive."

She remained in surgery seven hours, while doctors removed a blood clot and accumulated blood from massive hemorrhaging and clipped together the broken blood vessel in her brain, Dahl said.

"She was unconscious about 2½ weeks," said Dahl. "But gradually she began to come out of it."

Friends have taken care of the children, Ophelia, 10 months, Theo, 5, and Tessa, since their mother's illness.

Dahl said his wife's first words were halting.

"But within a year, she should be able to speak well again."

He said he hoped to take Miss Neal and the children back to their home in England in four to six weeks.

Report from Hashua, N. H., advised that one airplane landed on top of another "by accident." It is nice to know nobody is doing that sort of thing on purpose.

HE MUST BE ALL

If Jesus Christ is anything to me He must be everything. How can one believe in His audacious claims and not cry out with Thomas, "My Lord and my God?"

How can one perceive the challenge underlying His statements and be content to compromise with the unworthy?

How can one hear Him say, "Follow Me," and be willing to go less than all the way?

How can one accept His love and not be prepared to share His Cross? If one refuses to give Him first place can that one really believe in Him as God, Redeemer, Saviour and Friend?

"Will ye also go away?" asked Jesus of His disciples as the fickle multitude forsook Him.

"To whom shall we go?" asked Peter.

"Thou hast the words of eternal life."

Truly, if He is not all to me, can He be anything at all? Jean Brown

Guerin Signs New Pact With St. Louis

ST. LOUIS AP -- There may be no place like home, but Richie Guerin of the St. Louis Hawks decided Thursday he can stay away for at least one more year.

Guerin signed for another year of self-imposed exile from his New York home by accepting a substantial raise to return as player-coach of the Hawks.

Nearing the end of his brilliant playing career in the National Basketball Association, the 32-year-old backcourt ace thus laid the groundwork for at least a brief coaching career.

"I don't want to make a career of coaching because of all the travel," said Guerin, who almost quit after the 1963-64 season because basketball in St. Louis took him away too much from his family in New York.

Despite numerous injuries that put Guerin, Bob Pettit and others out for prolonged periods, Guerin coached the club to a 26-19 finish after replacing Harry Gallatin on Dec. 29. St. Louis took second place in the Western Division.

THE IMAGE OF GOD

Give me ev'ning quiet, still,
Waiting hushed to learn His will;
Make a canopy of stars,
Up where nothing hides or mars;
Show me rip'ning tree and field,
Ready soon for harvest yield;
Loose the storms then warm with sun
Let the seasons have their run.

God of night, of height, of care,
God of nature bright and bare;
Lord of earth and Heav'n above,
Prince of peace, of hope, of love;
May I see in all I view,
God of might, Thy image true.

The State Reorganization Commission of Missouri

CHAPTER X
DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE

The Department of Revenue was created by Section 22, Article IV of the state constitution and the broad outlines of its organizational structure are set up constitutionally.

The Department of Revenue's director is appointed by the Governor, with Senate Confirmation, and he is subject to removal by the Governor at any time.

Two divisions of the department are established by the constitution. They are the Division of Collection and the Division of Budget and Comptroller. The method of selecting these division heads is determined by Chapters 32 and 33 of the statutes. At the present time the collector is appointed by the director of revenue with the approval of the Governor. The comptroller is appointed directly by the Governor, with confirmation by the Senate, and is subject to removal by the Governor at any time.

Other divisions have been assigned to the Department of Revenue by statutes and by executive orders. They are: (1) Division of Procurement; (2) Division of Fund Commissioners; (3) Division of Public Buildings; and (4) the Tax Commission. The chief executives of these divisions are appointed directly by the Governor rather than by the head of the Department of Revenue.

The operation of the Department of Revenue comprises three types of activities; (1) the physical handling of state moneys; (2) those activities and services that may be easily recognized as necessary for administering a particular statute or group of related statutes; and (3) those activites and services provided by the department for all internal divisions and operating units.

The Division of Collection was created in 1946 following the adoption of the present constitution. All tax collections were made the responsibility of the Division of Collection. Since the creation of this division, the work load has been constantly growing, reflecting increases in the state's population and increases in revenue receipts. The Division of Collection now collects well over $700 million annually for transmission to the State Treasurer. There are about 880,000 automobile title transactions each year, and passenger car license renewals number approximately 1,460,000 during the same period. The driver's license unit issues almost 925,000 licenses and permits annually. The income tax unit processes over 1,300,000 personal income tax returns; and about 2 million information reports are received from employers during a one - year period. The Sales-Use Tax unit maintains about 75,000 current accounts from which tax is collected quarterly, and 1,200 accounts from which tax is collected monthly. Total sales - use tax collections amount to more than $173 million per year.

The problems in operating this division involve processing a great volume of paper work. The divison probably contacts more individual citizens of the state than any other unit of state government; therefore, citizens have an interest in the efficient operation of the division. The department is attempting to carry out the provisions of legislation with an administrative structure not designed for a large work volume.

The Division of Collection is now operating as a decentralized group of individual units. Each unit provides its own office services, tax collecting and tax enforcing media. Such policies have allowed duplication of common functions among the units.

Modern administrative organizations recognize characteristics observed within the Department of Revenue as indicative of need for a strong, centralized organization emphasizing common functions. These characteristics include: (1) large work volume; (2) large numbers of semi-skilled workers; (3) relative low pay for most workers; (4) repetitive work routines; and (5) evidence of inadequacy in the present decentralized system.

The 1955 State Reorganization Commission recognized administrative problems within the Department of Revenue. During the past ten years developments have emphasized these problems-- increase in work volume has overburdened some units, causing untimely delays in processing documents.

The 1965 Commission proposes departmental reorganization according to work functions, i.e., money collection, tax law enforcement, and common administrative services. Such a reorganization would enable the department to utilize the limited number of specialists more effectively, as well as install assembly - line methods for common departmental functions.

"FREE ENTERPRISE"

As I peruse these Western newspapers I am more than sure that Will Rodgers was right as we only know what we read in these sheets.

In this following article I will try and convey to the public my views as to the Right to Wr to Work.

I am including an article of my previous writings.

The busy bee plainly shows man the natural way of life.

Coming up soon our President will have to make his dedision on the Right to Work.

This will come under States Rights and there will be no racial argument. If the Presidnet allows these union leaders to quelch States Rights then we will know how strong politics really are.

Of course we know that Franklin D. Roosevelt and Adolph Hitler were the greatest politicians since Solomon destroyed Israel.

I must not only be chaste but above suspicion.

Abe Lincoln -- 1849

J. C. MAY

A half century ago bubbling surface springs of cool clear water flowed over the white sand of the beautiful branches of the foothills and there was abundant supply for all forms of "Life" at all times. Man's greed has changed this natural scene as these springs have disappeared and posterity will not see this beauty. Even in extended rainless periods this water would burst forth and flow as it came from subterranean pressure. Man can change natural thing, but in the end he will find that nature belongs to God.

In the Virgin state, the mighty trees with their natural evaporation supplied enough water to sustain all life. During the hot summer months the morning dew of their leafy branches was equal to a thunder shower.

On the upper reaches of our great rivers and their tributaries, more and more dams are being built in the battle for water and each new dam lowers the underground pressure and the life giving water has gone to lower depths. The chestnut, the elm and now the mighty oaks are withering and dying as their roots search for moisture. To stand the diseases and pests of nature, trees and man must have water in abundance to survive.

In the underground caverns of the Ozarks, you can see how much the water level has dropped in a few decades and this may soon become noticeable in the major springs of the state. In the upper reaches of the Missouri, more and more water is being used for irrigation of the arid states east of the Great Divide, and millions of gallons of this is lost in evaporation. In addition to this the damand for more water becomes heavier each year for the expanding population of this area. In the 7 western states the battle for water has become critical and some cities may become ghost towns due to this situation, as the majority of this territory is desert land.

The waters of the mighty Colorado have been impounded by the mighty dams of man and this river where ships once sailed into the Imperial Vallery is now a tepish stagnated stream as it flows through the rich volcanic ash on its circuitous route through Mexico to the Pacific.

The subterranean water that gave Arizona its boom of recent years is dropping at the alarming rate of ten feet per year and the irrigation pumps have to go deeper for the necessary supply to maintain life.

The Winter Garden of America in the Imperial Valley is wholly dependent on the water of the Colorado and before the day of these dams this river flooded this valley and cut a new river across the desert and flowing through deposits of salt created the Salton Sea that is near the bottom of the bowl as this valley is 200 feet below sea level. This happened after the turn of the century and latest reports say that this body of water is slowly disappearing.

EVAPORATION

If nature should destroy Hoover dam the waters of Lake Meade would become a raging sea from the Superstitious Mountains to the San Jacinto Range. Engineers are now figuring on a way to divert water from the Columbia to ease the situation in California.

I was at Brewster, Washington when they broke ground for the Grand Covelee Dam and the estimate was that they would pour enough concrete to build a sidewalk four feet wide, six inches thick that would reach one and one half times around the globe. The estimate also stated that over a million acres of the great American Desert would come under this irrigation plan.

At the great Bonneville dam, man tried to compete with nature with his fish ladders for the Salmon or the "Homing Pigeon" of the deep, that at naturity came into the mighty Columbia and its tributaries to reproduce and die. This is one of the wonders of nature as the spawn follows the fresh waters back to the salt waters of the sea. The latest biological reports say that the main species stay in the deep for 7 years and then return to their birthplace with the same God given instinct that the lower animals and insects possess. This great source of food is slowly disappearing and may soon follow the passenger pigeon.

Man will never be able to duplicate nature or make a distillery as perfect as a tree planted by the water. The most perfect example of Life has been before man's eyes since the Creation and man knows as little about it as he does about the "Elixir of Life" that is known as one of the 7 follies of science. The busy little bee that supplies one of the greatest and purest foods for mankind and shows where "Royalty" is a deserving title. When the new Queen Bee emerges from the hive with her new swarm, she takes a straight course upward and the entire swarm will disappear from sight. During this flight she is inoculated for life and as the swarm descends and settles, which is usually on a tree branch she becomes the center of attraction. After this they must have a place to live and work and scouts are sent out to search for a suitable place. If man places the new swarm in an artificial hive he must be sure the Queen is among them or his work will be in vain. If the Queen accepts her Royal quarters the first battle begins as the male bee or drone has finished his course and after this execution, work really begins. This execution is the first duty of the "workers" as they supply the necessities of life.

The Queen is assigned to her Royal quarters with her special attendants. She must produce enough eggs for new recruits to replace the old workers as they supply the pollen from the golden nectar of flowers, as the average life of the worker is forty days.

During this period they literally work themselves to death in carrying their heavy loads and wear their wings until many fall and die before reaching the entrance to deliver their final load to the keepers of the household. At the entrance of this castle are the eternal guards ready to sacrifice their life, for when they lose their stinger they die. These must be replaced with new guards.

Inside this castle are many mysteries as this is a technical structure. The first line of workers receive the nectar of pollen from the field workers and this is consumed as food in the natural state and must pass through their bodies and through perspiration it is purified before going into the pure state of honey. The Royal attendants must now prepare the Queens food as she is the agent for all posterity and even another batch of lazy drones will be necessary. These castles were air conditioned long before man thought of the idea.

I wonder if the instinct of the bee is strong enough to detect the poison that man has sprayed on the nectar of the flowers and if the system of their purification could eliminate same. This source of food may soon be lost to man.

Below the dams of the Missouri and the Mississippi, the water is at times too low for transportation and also creates a dangerous condition to the water supply of millions of people. With the refuse of his body and the chemicals of his plants, man has contaminated the rivers until aquatic life cannot survive for long and this is a source of food that could be obtained throughout the year. With an extended period of drought man may walk dryshod across the bed of the Father of Waters, and the mighty barges of water transportation will settle in the mud and the steel wheels will again have to carry this load.

READING PREFERENCE OF AMERICA CHANGING TO MORE DIVERSE BOOKS

NEW YORK - The reading of books has been steadily increasing during the past five years, especially paperbacks books which bring popular literature within the means of all.

What types of books are Americans reading today?

Carl W. Holstrom, head of book operations of F. W. Woolworth Co., largest paperback book seller in the nation -- more than 20 million last year-- surveyed some 2,106 retail outlets for books in Woolworth stores throughout the United States and Puerto Rico to find out.

For the first time in years there is no single outstanding best - seller, but several paperbacks are now top favorites with the reading public, Mr. Holstrom reported. They are "The Spy Who Came In From The Cold," "Harlow," "The Kennedy Wit," "Fail Safe," and "The Americanization of Emily."

"This present trend toward a diversity of good books is in direct contrast with the months preceding the Presidential election when books on politics dominated the public's interest, Mr. Holstrom pointed out.

Detective books are next on the best-seller list, with Erle Stanley Gardner's books and the works of Ian Fleming as top favorites among mysteries. The books by Fleming have been particularly popular in recent months, he said.

The perennial favorite among the ladies is Dr. Spock's "Child Care," which continues as a best-seller, with his new book, "Dr. Spock Speaks To Mothers," also near the top of the list.

Mr. Holstrom pointed out that only good reading is found on Woolworth stands to fill the growing demands for increasingly better reading material by a more discriminating public.

"The survey indicated that there are no regional differences in the reading preferences of people. We sell paperback books in our stores from coast to coast and find that any given book, if good, will be as popular in the East as in the West," Mr. Holstrom said.

"The reading public quickly recognizes a good book and will respond by purchasing them for themselves and their friends," he noted.

Why you may never catch up with the Joneses

Their car is a slightly battered '56 model. The house could use a coat of paint and some new rugs all around. The family couldn't get away for a vacation last summer. Why should anyone envy them — . . . unless it's a case of their contagious happiness.

They're close as a family, self-sufficient, self-reliant with what they have. Faith in themselves plays a big part in their happiness; a deep religious Faith plays a bigger part. DANGERS OF SELF-RIGHTEOUSNESS

The State Reorganization Commission of Missouri

CHAPTER X
DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE

The Department of Revenue was created by Section 22, Article IV of the state constitution and the broad outlines of its organizational structure are set up constitutionally.

The Department of Revenue's director is appointed by the Governor, with Senate Confirmation, and he is subject to removal by the Governor at any time.

Two divisions of the department are established by the constitution. They are the Division of Collection and the Division of Budget and Comptroller. The method of selecting these division heads is determined by Chapters 32 and 33 of the statutes. At the present time the collector is appointed by the director of revenue with the approval of the Governor. The comptroller is appointed directly by the Governor, with confirmation by the Senate, and is subject to removal by the Governor at any time.

Other divisions have been assigned to the Department of Revenue by statutes and by executive orders. They are: (1) Division of Procurement; (2) Division of Fund Commissioners; (3) Division of Public Buildings; and (4) the Tax Commission. The chief executives of these divisions are appointed directly by the Governor rather than by the head of the Department of Revenue.

The operation of the Department of Revenue comprises three types of activities: (1) the physical handling of state moneys; (2) those activities and services that may be easily recognized as necessary for administering a particular statute or group of related statutes; and (3) those activites and services provided by the department for all internal divisions and operating units.

The Division of Collection was created in 1946 following the adoption of the present constitution. All tax collections were made the responsibility of the Division of Collection. Since the creation of this division, the work load has been constantly growing, reflecting increases in the state's population and increases in revenue receipts. The Division of Collection now collects well over $700 million annually for transmission to the State Treasurer. There are about 880,000 automobile title transactions each year, and passenger car license renewals number approximately 1,460,000 during the same period. The driver's license unit issues almost 925,000 licenses and permits annually. The income tax unit processes over 1,300,000 personal income tax returns; and about 2 million information reports are received from employers during a one - year period. The Sales-Use Tax unit maintains about 75,000 current accounts from which tax is collected quarterly, and 1,200 accounts from which tax is collected monthly. Total sales - use tax collections amount to more than $173 million per year.

The problems in operating this division involve processing a great volume of paper work. The divison probably contacts more individual citizens of the state than any other unit of state government; therefore, citizens have an interest in the efficient operation of the division. The department is attempting to carry out the provisions of legislation with an administrative structure not designed for a large work volume.

The Division of Collection is now operating as a decentralized group of individual units. Each unit provides its own office services, tax collecting and tax enforcing media. Such policies have allowed duplication of common functions among the units.

Modern administrative organizations recognize characteristics observed within the Department of Revenue as indicative of need for a strong, centralized organization emphasizing common functions. These characteristics include: (1) large work volume; (2) large numbers of semi-skilled workers; (3) relative low pay for most workers; (4) repetitive work routines; and (5) evidence of inadequacy in the present decentralized system.

The 1955 State Reorganization Commission recognized administrative problems within the Department of Revenue. During the past ten years developments have emphasized these problems-- increase in work volume has overburdened some units, causing untimely delays in processing documents.

The 1965 Commission proposes departmental reorganization according to work functions, i.e., money collection, tax law enforcement, and common administrative services. Such a reorganization would enable the department to utilize the limited number of specialists more effectively, as well as install assembly - line methods for common departmental functions.

The proposed departmental structure is merely an extension of recommendations by the 1955 Commission.

"Fringe Benefits For Employees of State Colleges

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A bill allowing increased "fringe benefits" for employes of state colleges was approved Wednesday night by the House Committee on Higher Education.

The measure would permit the Board of Regents of a state college to set up additional benefit programs including hospitalization and workmen's compensation. Under existing laws, regents can contribute only to retirement programs.

Self-supporting patients would gain a chance for treatment at Ellis Fischel State Cancer Hospital in Columbia under a bill approved by another committee.

Under the bill, the indigent would retain first priority at the hospital, but others could be admitted if vacancies existed.

The House Education Committee postponed action on a substitute for a bill establishing educational television in Missouri.

The substitute would set up an educational TV authority but provide no funds to build a network. The original measure called for an expenditure of $1.5 million the first year.

Approved by the committee was a measure allowing voters in St. Louis County to decide whether to set up a vocational high school district. The vocational district would merge with an existing special district for education of the handicapped.

Pocketbooks Reactive As Vital Organs

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "The patient's pocketbook is as real and as reactive as his vital organs and should be treated with the same respect," said Dr. Edward T. Auer.

Dr. James L. Mathis said:

"The technologist is one of the first persons the patient encounters. He is probed, pricked, pushed and pulled by someone usually totally unknown to him for reasons only vaguely understood and always to his physical or mental discomfort."

Dr. Auer is chief of psychiatry at St. Louis University, Dr. Mathis is from the psychiatric staff at the University of Oklahoma and they appeared before the annual convention of the Midwest Hospital Association Thursday to talk about what Dr. Mathis called iatrogenic illnesses.

Roughly translated, these are doctor - caused illnesses; but they can also be blamed on nurses, blood drawers, needlers, samplers, x-rayers and other technologists working on patients.

"Illness produced by stress in turn compounds new stresses," said Dr. Auer. "How does the hospital bill affect the patient's recovery? Is he worried about follow-up care after he returns home? Do we hospital people bother to ask?"

Dr. Mathis said:

"People harbor primitive and irrational emotion about illness. Some feel it is a retribution for past sins. They have a guilt complex. Often they are looking for someone to blame for their predicament. No test should be started without some small personal talk between patient and technologist. The patient should be allowed to question what is goind to happen to him, why things are being done.

Which U.S. Dollars Going Abroad Are Doing us Any Good?

NEW YORK (AP) — Just which U.S. dollars going abroad are good for the country and which are causing trouble? A wide difference of opinion is developing, both in the Congress and in the business and banking community.

The administration is asking U.S. banks to limit loans to foreigners and U.S. corporations to curtail investments in other lands — but just certain kinds of investments and not in all lands.

The administration says this may cut down the excess outflow of dollars which over the last seven years has caused a drain on U.S. gold reserves and caused some nations, notably France, to question the role of the dollar as ranking with gold in the monetary reserves of other countries.

Critics of the plan for voluntary cutting down of private overseas investments by Americans charge that this would push the United States into economic isolation.

And the widening split in the thinking on how best to bolster the dollar and keep more of them at home comes out in the open with the filing this week of the annual report of the Joint House-Senate Economic Committee.

Democrats on the group want to save the dollar by the program the administration has launched, but also by cutting the number of U.S. troops in Europe, especially in France.

The Republicans say private investment abroad, over the long run, returns more dollars than are sent out. Such investments make the American economy strong, they contend, and aren't the real cause of the excess flow of dollars overseas. They think government spending is.

They also contend that the better way to stop excess dollar outflows, such as in the final months of 1964, would be to raise interest rates here. This would narrow the gap between the yield from money invested in this country and the return on dollars invested at the higher interest rates obtaining in almost all other lands.

To Digest an Education, Take it in Smaller Bites

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Advice from the president of Yale University on how to digest an education?

Take smaller bites.

Several times since he took office last October as the 17th president of Yale, Kingman Brewster Jr. has hinted that he would like to do something about the treadmill aspect of acquiring an education.

"I think there ought to be more landings and detours along this escalator of academic achievement," he said in a recent interview.

What bothers Brewster is that formal education has become, for many young Americans, a nonstop process that goes on for 20 years. Small wonder some of the participants get a little weary along the way.

Brewster said he feels it might be sensible to "build in some discontinuity."

One way, he said, would be to make the conventional four-year program leading to a bachelor of arts degree five years instead. The student could have a year along the way to take a break if so inclined.

Another approach would be for students, immediately after completing high school or prep school, to spend one year in some worthwhile nonacademic activity.

"I think there's a kind of blind conformity to the expectation that you must go straight from school to college," Brewster said.

Brewster does not intend that young men should defer starting college just to spend a year lying on a beach. He wants this year off to be invested in stretching the mind.

"It could be a job," he said, "it could be travel, it could be domestic Peace Corps work."

So far, Brewster has not altered the undergraduate program at Yale to test his theories. The university still is what it was when Brewster, then 44, succeeded the late A. Whitney Griswold as president.

He actually had been running Yale for some time before the inauguration last April. When Griswold died in April 1963, Brewster already was provost, the university's chief educational officer.

Now that he is president, Brewster feels a little more heavily the weight that rests on the man who speaks for a university.

But in one respect, he said, presidents have it easier now than in the past. This advantage, he said, is the growing tendency to value brains.

Football Player Finds Religious Life Not Dull

BY BUDDY DIAL
Star End of Dallas Cowboys

So many people I've met -- athletes, businessmen, college girls, young marrieds-- avoid God and stay away from church for a reason that I feel is all wrong. They believe that God wants to take away their fun and make life dull for them.

It hasn't worked that way for me. On three specific occasions I was tempted to turn away from God for strictly worldly reasons. When the temptation was resisted, God seemed to bless my obedience and bring me added joy and happiness.

The first test came when I was 13. I had grown up in a small Texas community called Pinehurst. As members of the Assembly of God church, my family always was involved in church activities: a revival, a prayer meeting or a hymn sing, or a supper or an outing.

But at age 13 I primarily was interested in football, not religion. And if it wasn't football, I would be fooling around with my guitar.

11TH OF SERIES

One night while Dad was at work, I heard Mother cry out from her room. When I rushed in, she was gasping for breath. Then her breathing seemed to stop. I knelt by her bed and in a panic cried to God to save her.

Then it seemed I heard a voice say, "Give your life to Me." I was startled and confused. This couldn't be God, speaking to me--or could it? For a few moments, I fought a battle within myself over my wants and what God might want for me.

Then I whispered, "Lord, I give You my life."

I'll never forget what happened next. Mother stirred and suddenly she began to breathe normally again.

Was this experience simply imagination at work in an impressionable boy? I'm sure many people will think so, but it was vividly real to me. Furthermore, from that moment I entered fully into church life. Soon I was playing my guitar and singing Gospel hymns at revivals and services, God came first in my life.

Meanwhile, I also went out for high school football. When I made the varsity football team, my second big test came. The high school games were played on Friday night. But Friday was also a church night.

"You can go to church on Sunday," the coach told me.

I wrestled a long time with this one. Finally, I told the coach, "I would love to play, but I know you'll get along okay without me." The people at church praised me, but I really took it from the kids at school.

The problem was solved for me the next year when the church service was changed to another night.

When it came time to choose a career after my graduation from college, I decided to go into professional football. Some of the church people considered pro football too worldly. Others objected because the games were played on Sunday.

The guidance I received from God was that I could be a good Chrisitian and do the Lord's work as a professional football player just as well as in any other profession. My father worked at his job in an oil refinery on Sunday. If my job in football called for me to work Sunday, so be it.

My third test came not because we played our games on Sunday, but because first, we had to be at a team breakfast at 10:30 Sunday morning and, secondly, we had to go directly to the field after breakfast in order to be taped and suited up for the game. This made it difficult to attend church at all.

When I played for the Pittsburgh Steelers back in 1963, I discovered that the Roman Catholic men on our squad got up early for Mass, but there was no service early enough for Protestant players.

My strong inner guidance was that I should try to work out something for myself and other Protestant players as well. But what?

I knew a young minister -- also a sports enthusiast-- in Pittsburgh by the name of Bob Messenger. I talked to him and we worked out a plan. Then Bob and I spoke to the coach of the Steelers, Bud Parker, who endorsed our idea.

After the next Saturday practice, Coach Parker called the team together, and I made a simple announcement that there would be a short devotional period before our pregame breakfast, led by our friend Bob Messenger.

There were 26 Protestant men on our squad. Bob and I expected eight or 10 to be there but 26 were on hand that Sunday morning -- and we had good attendance every Sunday from then on.

My goal is to live and play with such zest that people will say, "Here's a man who truly enjoys life and plays for a higher purpose than winning a football game."

Blueprint for Total Federal Regimentation

EDUCATION AT EVERY LEVEL FROM THE GRADE SCHOOL THROUGH GRADUATE SCHOOL

In his message transmitting the Act to Congress President Kennedy said: "I have heretofore requested the Congress and request again today the enactment of legislation to assist education at every level from grade school through graduate school." The following steps are proposed:

(1) Under Title VI, Federal financial assistance to education would carry with it Congressional approval of Federal control of education by administrative and executive orders, without limitation, without judicial process and without further legislative action. "Assistance" carries with it "control." This is applicable to all existing as well as future programs.

(2) Vocational education in all of its major phases would be taken over by the Federal government at an intial annual cost of between $400 million and one-billion dollars, if Congress enacts recommendations A through F of paragraph (2) of Section III of the President's message.

(3) A radical and unprecedented departure from the Brown decision and all Supreme Court and other court decisions in the field of education is embodied in Title III of the Act. The Federal courts have recognized the right of state and local governments to administer their schools, but by orders and judgments in judicial proceedings have required admission to schools and colleges of qualified students who wished to attend, without discrimination on the basis of race, color or creed. Title III would vest in the Commissioner of Education of the United States administrative control in this field of every public school and college board in the United States through (a) Federal personnel employed by him with unlimited right of conditions and restrictions, (c) special Federally devised courses for "teachers, supervistors, counselors and other elementary or secondary school personnel," and (d) suits and injunctions instituted by the Attorney General in the name of the United States with penalties of fine and imprisonment.

(4) The power given the Commissioner of Education to bring about a removal of "racial imbalance" in public educational institutions at all levels in the United States is also a radical and unprecedented departure from all Supreme Court decisions. The use of Federal administrative authority to force (by means mentioned above) complete race mixing by the transfer and transportation of students from one school to another goes far beyond the court decisions.

(5) Control by the Federal government of both state and local governments in the educational field is provided in Title III, through the broad power conferred upon the Attorney General to bring suits against state and local governments without any actual limitation whatsoever. The wording used in Section 307 (a) and (b) is designed to permit such suits in the sole discretion of the Attorney General.

CONTROL OF STATE AND LOCAL ELECTORAL MACHINERY

The Act takes the first two steps in Federal control of all state, local and Federal elections including any "general, special or primary election held solely or in part for the purpose of electing or selecting any candidate for public office" within the United States. Section 101 modifies all state laws defining qualifications for voting. It transfers from local officials to Federally appointed "voting referees" the registration and qualification of voters upon certain allegations being made in suits by the Attorney General without the necessity of proof. It ousts the jurisdiction of local officials under specified circumstances during the pendency of litigation and before trial. The Attorney General could move into sensitive areas just before a national election, register tens of thousands of voters whose votes would count, even if the appointment of the referees or the registrations were later set aside.

If this Act is adopted the precedent will be set for Federal take-over of those steps in all state and local elections in the United States recommended by the United States Commission on Civil Rights on pages 15-24 of Volume 6 of its 1961 Report:

(1) The qualifications of all voters;

(2) The registration of voters;

(3) The establishment of voting districts;

(4) The holding of elections and the counting of votes;

(5) The establishment of electoral districts;

(6) The authorization of Federal prosecution (with penalties including fine and imprisonment) of state or local officials who, in the opinion of Federal personnel, are guilty of "any arbitrary act of (where there is a duty to act) inaction" in the area of registration, voting or counting of votes in any Federal election, i.e., complete Federal control of state and local officials.

Football Player Finds Religious Life Not Dull

BY BUDDY DIAL

Star End of Dallas Cowboys

So many people I've met -- athletes, businessmen, college girls, young marrieds--avoid God and stay away from church for a reason that I feel is all wrong. They believe that God wants to take away their fun and make life dull for them.

It hasn't worked that way for me. On three specific occasions I was tempted to turn away from God for strictly worldly reasons. When the temptation was resisted, God seemed to bless my obedience and bring me added joy and happiness.

The first test came when I was 13. I had grown up in a small Texas community called Pinehurst. As members of the Assembly of God church, my family always was involved in church activities: a revival, a prayer meeting or a hymn sing, or a supper or an outing.

But at age 13 I primarily was interested in football, not religion. And if it wasn't football, I would be fooling around with my guitar.

11TH OF SERIES

One night while Dad was at work, I heard Mother cry out from her room. When I rushed in, she was gasping for breath. Then her breathing seemed to stop. I knelt by her bed and in a panic cried to God to save her.

Then it seemed I heard a voice say, "Give your life to Me." I was startled and confused. This couldn't be God, speaking to me--or could it? For a few moments, I fought a battle within myself over my wants and what God might want for me.

Then I whispered, "Lord, I give You my life."

I'll never forget what happened next. Mother stirred and suddenly she began to breathe normally again.

Was this experience simply imagination at work in an impressionable boy? I'm sure many people will think so, but it was vividly real to me. Furthermore, from that moment I entered fully into church life. Soon I was playing my guitar and singing Gospel hymns at revivals and services, God came first in my life.

Meanwhile, I also went out for high school football. When I made the varsity football team, my second big test came. The high school games were played on Friday night. But Friday was also a church night.

"You can go to church on Sunday," the coach told me.

I wrestled a long time with this one. Finally, I told the coach, "I would love to play, but I know you'll get along okay without me." The people at church praised me, but I really took it from the kids at school.

The problem was solved for me the next year when the church service was changed to another night.

When it came time to choose a career after my graduation from college, I decided to go into professional football. Some of the church people considered pro football too worldly. Others objected because the games were played on Sunday.

The guidance I received from God was that I could be a good Chrisitian and do the Lord's work as a professional football player just as well as in any other profession. My father worked at his job in an oil refinery on Sunday. If my job in football called for me to work Sunday, so be it.

My third test came not because we played our games on Sunday, but because first, we had to be at a team breakfast at 10:30 Sunday morning and, secondly, we had to go directly to the field after breakfast in order to be taped and suited up for the game. This made it difficult to attend church at all.

When I played for the Pittsburgh Steelers back in 1963, I discovered that the Roman Catholic men on our squad got up early for Mass, but there was no service early enough for Protestant players.

My strong inner guidance was that I should try to work out something for myself and other Protestant players as well. But what?

I knew a young minister -- also a sports enthusiast-- in Pittsburgh by the name of Bob Messenger. I talked to him and we worked out a plan. Then Bob and I spoke to the coach of the Steelers, Bud Parker, who endorsed our idea.

After the next Saturday practice, Coach Parker called the team together, and I made a simple announcement that there would be a short devotional period before our pregame breakfast, led by our friend Bob Messenger.

There were 26 Protestant men on our squad. Bob and I expected eight or 10 to be there but 26 were on hand that Sunday morning -- and we had good attendance every Sunday from then on.

My goal is to live and play with such zest that people will say, "Here's a man who truly enjoys life and plays for a higher purpose than winning a football game."

As Mrs. Jarvis took her seat on the gaily decorated stage, Mrs. Helen Reuber sang a special song arrangement for this occasion. The retiring Woman of the Year, Mrs. J. R. Harwell, presented Mrs. Jarvis with a silver bowl, which was followed by an announcement by N. E. Fuchs that Gov. Warren E. Hearnes would send her special recognition for the coveted honor.

The address of the principal speaker, Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, gave the speaker an occasion to laud his neighboring state of Missouri for the past fine leadership, after which he took occasion to point out the many accomplishments of his own state including the number of "firsts" in the nation. Highlights of his address are as follows:

"This is an occasion which lends itself admirably to the recognition of the American woman. The B. & P. W. Club, through their objectives and code of ethics, has had no little part in bringing woman to the forefront in American economic and social activities. Therefore, on this occasion, let us turn back the pages of history and briefly review the unparalleled progress of the American woman during the past century.

"History has recorded down through the years that America is commonly represented by two figures — one an extremely thin, tall old man, dressed in clothes of a by-gone era embellished with the stars and stripes of the national flag: the other a portly maternal female dressed in flowing robes of classical style, crowned with a diadem and holding a torch in her hand. Uncle Sam, the old man referred to above, represents the government of America in its demanding aspects — he wants your savings for war loans, your money for taxes and most of all, to the young men in every whistle stop post office over the country, he points a stern finger saying "I want you."

"In far difference case is the Goddess of Liberty. She is America the bountiful, pouring out endless treasures from her cornucopia: she is America the land of the free, holding high her torch to illuminate the path to democracy, the land of opportunity, yielding her favors to those who are industrious, energetic, and ingenious. In the shorthand of symbolism, these figures represent a most important psychological truth. America in its benevolent, rich, idealistic aspects is envisaged (by Americans) as feminine: it is masculine only in its grasping and demanding aspects.

"I want to point out a few 'firsts' in our state:

"Mississippi was the first state in the nation in establishing Memorial Day for the Confederate and National soldiers. The first decoration day in the nation was held on May 30, 1868 at Columbus, Mississippi. The National Commander, Honorable John Alexander of the Grand Army of the Republic, set aside the date as Memorial Day and requested that the custom be followed throughout the nation. The custom of paying tribute to our honored dead had its beginning by thoughtful ladies of the Magnolia State when flowers were placed on the graves of Confederate and National soldiers in Columbus, Mississippi, on May 30, 1868.

"The first Order of Eastern Star ever promulgated in the world was organized in Mississippi. So Mississippi is the birthplace of the Order of Eastern Star. The idea was conceived in 1847 by Rob Morris, a prominent Mississippi school teacher.

"Mississippi has more certified tree farms than any other state in the nation. Our state has been the number one tree farm state in the nation since October, 1955.

"The first steam ginny in our nation was established in Mississippi by Doctor Rush Nutt, an outstanding physician and cotton breeder in Jefferson County, Mississippi.

"The first state in the nation to substitute steam for horse power in cotton ginning. This occurred in 1830. The world's largest inland long staple cotton market is located at Greenwood.

"In 1839 the State of Mississippi led the English speaking world in legislation protecting the property rights of married women.

"The dental certificate, used throughout the nation to encourage school children to have proper dental care was first used in Mississippi. The idea of the dental certificate originated with the Mississippi State Board of Health in the 1920's. Mississippi's slogan "Send Your Child to School with a Dental Certificate" began to be adopted in other states until today its use is nationwide.

"The first soil sedimentation laboratory in the nation, used exclusively for soil sedimentation and research, was established at Oxford.

"The first cotton crop in the world produced entirely by machinery was in Coahoma County, Mississippi.

"The first 4-H Club movement in the nation originated in Mississippi. In 1907 Corn Club Smith, a school teacher, started what was known at the time as Corn Club For Boys.

"The first state land grant college for women in the nation was established at Columbus, Mississippi, by an act of the Mississippi legislature, March 12, 1884, known as the Mississippi Industrial Institute and College, now known as Mississippi State College for Women.

"The first permanent white settlement in the Lower Mississippi Valley was the beautiful scenic and historic Biloxi, Mississippi, in 1669. The settlement was made through the efforts of P. L. D'Iberville for King Lewis XIV of France.

"Mississippi has more churches in proportion to population than any other state in the nation. It has one church for every 289 persons. The national average in 1957 was 814 persons per church.

"In 1962 Mississippi had next to the lowest crime rate in the nation, and in 1963 it had the lowest crime rate in the nation according to the F.B.I.

"Approximately 30 years ago the people of Mississippi took a firm and unwavering stand against socialistic trends and left-wing theories, and here is what two great industrialists said of and concerning the people of Mississippi:

"We, like you, still believe in the dignity of man, in a state's sovereign rights, that the Christian principles should be put ahead."

"An industrialist said:

"Mississippi is one of the last of the old frontiers where industry can still make a profit and where its employees can work together in peace and harmony and perfect understanding."

"The largest single unit ever erected in oil refinery construction — a 488-ton vessel used as part of the isocracking reactor — was set in place at the new Standard Oil Refinery at Pascagoula in late March, 1963.

"The largest carpet plant under one roof in the world is located at Greenville, Mississippi.

"Bordered on the west by 400 miles of the Mississippi River, on the South by the Gulf of Mexico, and with numerous inland rivers and streams, Mississippi offers unexceled opportunities in water and marine resources. (I was speaking to 110 industrial prospects in New York. Plants in Louisiana. Mississippi River.)

"Mississippi was the first state in the nation to start a "tree farm family" plan of forest management for small woodland owners.

"The world's largest cotton plantation is located at Scott, Mississippi. It contains 38,000 acres.

"The highest price on record paid by an individual for a polled Hereford bull was set by B. C. Rogers of Morton at the National Polled Hereford Show in Jackson, Mississippi in 1963. Mr. Rogers paid $102,000 for the National Grand Champion.

"Mississippi's school record system is being copied by many states. The system helps guide teachers and instructors in charting the proper courses for the student — preparing him to become a better educated citizen.

"In 1946 Mississippi initiated the first medical correction program of its type in the nation. The program has given new hope and medical correction to some 10,000 children since initiated.

"The National Association of Junior Auxiliaries originated in Greenville, Mississippi, at a meeting of ladies' organizations from some 10 towns in Southern states, on November 3, 1941.

"The Mississippi Department of the American Legion has led in its membership activity over other state departments five times since 1937. It led for three consecutive years and then two consecutive years.

"Two of Mississippi's favorite songs are "The Missouri Waltz" and "St. Louis Blues."

"Mississippi in 1962 held first place in the nation in the number of persons rehabilitated through vocational training, per 100,000 population.

"Mississippi, in 1895, became the first state in the nation to abolish the practice of leasing convicts to private contractors.

"Mississippi was the first state to:

Have a levee system; by Act of Congress, September 28, 1859. Establish a "literacy fund" for free education for poor children.

"The first state land grant college for Negroes established in the United States was at Lorman, Mississippi, now known as Alcorn A & M — an A-1 institution.

"A University of Mississippi surgery team, at the University Medical Center in Jackson, on January 21, 1961, successfully completed the first operation on a human being ever performed under electrical anesthesia in the United States —possibly in the world.

"Mississippi was the birth place of bigtime boxing. The first great championship fight in American ring history was fought on February 7, 1882, at Mississippi City, when John L. Sullivan, strong boy from Boston, defeated Paddy Ryan in 8 rounds for the heavy-weight title of the world.

The Governor changed his remarks to more recent comments when he said,

"The proposed act of Congress on voting apparently is unconstitutional. However, the United States Supreme Court will ultimately pass on the constitutionality of the act and I understand from the news media that the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court was leading the cheering section while the President was talking. It was apparent that all Congressmen were not present when the President made his speech. Someone seems to have had the House chambers packed with capital office help and pages to make it appear that all Congressmen were there, when in fact, they were not.

"The voting laws in Mississippi are fair to all people. Anyone who can meet the legal requirements will be eligible to vote. They are as fair to one as to another. The law is to be applied to all in the same manner. It seems to me that the purpose of the proposed new legislation on voting rights is to replace Southern Senators, Congressmen and others with radicals. We would not have any trouble in the South if we were let alone. This legislation is punitive, and punitive legislation is not for the best interests of the people. The state of Alaska is very much disturbed over it. People there are beginning to realize what it means. Our Congressmen from the Far West was asked to vote to do away with all literacy tests in voting. He talked favorable at first and then he said — but you know that will affect my state.

"There is a significant relationship between New Jersey's first constitution of 1776 and Section IV of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States, which in effect guarantees to each state such protection as might be necessary to control its own domestic affairs.

"The only thing today between the people of America and Dictatorship in the Constitution of the United States as it was written and not as it is being interpreted by judicial decrees and by executive orders.

"Millions of Americans, in every state, are deeply concerned, and rightly so, about the state of affairs in our nation today. The future of constitutional government in the United States is in grave danger from selfish minority blocs that have the open support of high government officials.

"Right thinking Americans are disturbed, they are disappointed and many are shocked by the complacency of some of our would-be statesmen, who for the sake of political expediency would forefeit your birthright which was paid for in blood and sacrifice. There are too many selfish, mealy - mouth-pussy-footing fence - riding politicians who are selling the American people down the river for their own personal political ambition and gain.

"Gov. Wallace is a truly great statesman.

"The only proper way to change the form of this government, if it need be changed at all, is by submitting the proposals to the people? Neither the Congress, the President nor the Supreme Court has the power to make this change. To accomplish the ends sought, the Constitution would have to be scraped and a new one set

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bowman on Sunday, an eight-pound girl.

The City Dads have recently changed the name of King street to North Kingshighway and South Kingshighway. This was in keeping with the D.A.R. chapter of this city, who is co-operating with other chapters to make this noted highway from New Madrid to St. Louis.

The Hoosier Land and Investment Co., sold to a Chicago party, the first of the week, 160 acres of land belonging to A.C. Sikes and A. J. Matthews, lying Southeast of Malden, at $100 per acre.

Over $2,700 was raised in cash and pledges last week by the local Presbyterian Church, acting with the assistance of the Rev. H. L. Saunders on their plan to erect a church in Sikeston. Mr. Saunders, who is the State Presbyterian Evangelist, spent last week here getting the campaign started. The building is to be erected on their lot at the corner of Matthews and East street.

The American Legion is making plans for a large Easter egg hunt to which all the children in Sikeston will be invited. The Post hopes to be able to get the Fair Grounds for the hunt, which will be held on Easter Sunday afternoon.

Charlie Scott, the eight-year-old grandson of W. W. Scott, was slightly injured on the mouth and bruised a little about the body Tuesday afternoon when run over by the Sikeston Cleaning Co. truck on Center street in front of the Post office.

As Mrs. Jarvis took her seat on the gaily decorated stage, Mrs. Helen Reuber sang a special song arrangement for this occasion. The retiring Woman of the Year, Mrs. J. R. Harwell, presented Mrs. Jarvis with a silver bowl, which was followed by an announcement by N. E. Fuchs that Gov. Warren E. Hearnes would send her special recognition for the coveted honor.

The address of the principal speaker, Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, gave the speaker an occasion to laud his neighboring state of Missouri for the past fine leadership, after which he took occasion to point out the many accomplishments of his own state including the number of "firsts" in the nation. Highlights of his address are as follows:

"This is an occasion which lends itself admirably to the recognition of the American woman. The B. & P. W. Club, through their objectives and code of ethics, has had no little part in bringing woman to the forefront in American economic and social activities. Therefore, on this occasion, let us turn back the pages of history and briefly review the unparalleled progress of the American woman during the past century.

"History has recorded down through the years that America is commonly represented by two figures — one an extremely thin, tall old man, dressed in clothes of a by-gone era embellished with the stars and stripes of the national flag: the other a portly maternal female dressed in flowing robes of classical style, crowned with a diadem and holding a torch in her hand. Uncle Sam, the old man referred to above, represents the government of America in its demanding aspects — he wants your savings for war loans, your money for taxes and most of all, to the young men in every whistle stop post office over the country, he points a stern finger saying "I want you."

"In far difference case is the Goddess of Liberty. She is America the bountiful, pouring out endless treasures from her cornucopia: she is America the land of the free, holding high her torch to illuminate the path to democracy, the land of opportunity, yielding her favors to those who are industrious, energetic, and ingenious. In the shorthand of symbolism, these figures represent a most important psychological truth. America in its benevolent, rich, idealistic aspects is envisaged (by Americans) as feminine: it is masculine only in its grasping and demanding aspects.

"I want to point out a few 'firsts' in our state:

"Mississippi was the first state in the nation in establishing Memorial Day for the Confederate and National soldiers. The first decoration day in the nation was held on May 30, 1868 at Columbus, Mississippi. The National Commander, Honorable John Alexander of the Grand Army of the Republic, set aside the date as Memorial Day and requested that the custom be followed throughout the nation. The custom of paying tribute to our honored dead had its beginning by thoughtful ladies of the Magnolia State when flowers were placed on the graves of Confederate and National soldiers in Columbus, Mississippi, on May 30, 1868.

"The first Order of Eastern Star ever promulgated in the world was organized in Mississippi. So Mississippi is the birthplace of the Order of Eastern Star. The idea was conceived in 1847 by Rob Morris, a prominent Mississippi school teacher.

"Mississippi has more certified tree farms than any other state in the nation. Our state has been the number one tree farm state in the nation since October, 1955.

"The first steam ginny in our nation was established in Mississippi by Doctor Rush Nutt, an outstanding physician and cotton breeder in Jefferson County, Mississippi.

"The first state in the nation to substitute steam for horse power in cotton ginning. This occurred in 1830. The world's largest inland long staple cotton market is located at Greenwood.

"In 1839 the State of Mississippi led the English speaking world in legislation protecting the property rights of married women.

"The dental certificate, used throughout the nation to encourage school children to have proper dental care was first used in Mississippi. The idea of the dental certificate originated with the Mississippi State Board of Health in the 1920's. Mississippi's slogan "Send Your Child to School with a Dental Certificate" began to be adopted in other states until today its use is nationwide.

"The first soil sedimentation laboratory in the nation, used exclusively for soil sedimentation and research, was established at Oxford.

"The first cotton crop in the world produced entirely by machinery was in Coahoma County, Mississippi.

"The first 4-H Club movement in the nation originated in Mississippi. In 1907 Corn Club Smith, a school teacher, started what was known at the time as Corn Club For Boys.

"The first state land grant college for women in the nation was established at Columbus, Mississippi, by an act of the Mississippi legislature, March 12, 1884, known as the Mississippi Industrial Institute and College, now known as Mississippi State College for Women.

"The first permanent white settlement in the Lower Mississippi Valley was the beautiful scenic and historic Biloxi, Mississippi, in 1669. The settlement was made through the efforts of P. L. D'Iberville for King Lewis XIV of France.

"Mississippi has more churches in proportion to population than any other state in the nation. It has one church for every 289 persons. The national average in 1957 was 814 persons per church.

"In 1962 Mississippi had next to the lowest crime rate in the nation, and in 1963 it had the lowest crime rate in the nation according to the F.B.I.

"Approximately 30 years ago the people of Mississippi took a firm and unwavering stand against socialistic trends and left-wing theories, and here is what two great industrialists said of and concerning the people of Mississippi:

"We, like you, still believe in the dignity of man, in a state's sovereign rights, that the Christian principles should be put ahead."

"An industrialist said:

"Mississippi is one of the last of the old frontiers where industry can still make a profit and where its employees can work together in peace and harmony and perfect understanding."

"The largest single unit ever erected in oil refinery construction — a 488-ton vessel used as part of the isocracking reactor — was set in place at the new Standard Oil Refinery at Pascagoula in late March, 1963.

"The largest carpet plant under one roof in the world is located at Greenville, Mississippi.

"Bordered on the west by 400 miles of the Mississippi River, on the South by the Gulf of Mexico, and with numerous inland rivers and streams, Mississippi offers unexceled opportunities in water and marine resources. (I was speaking to 110 industrial prospects in New York. Plants in Louisiana. Mississippi River.)

"Mississippi was the first state in the nation to start a "tree farm family" plan of forest management for small woodland owners.

"The world's largest cotton plantation is located at Scott, Mississippi. It contains 38,000 acres.

"The highest price on record paid by an individual for a polled Hereford bull was set by B. C. Rogers of Morton at the National Polled Hereford Show in Jackson, Mississippi in 1963. Mr. Rogers paid $102,000 for the National Grand Champion.

"Mississippi's school record system is being copied by many states. The system helps guide teachers and instructors in charting the proper courses for the student — preparing him to become a better educated citizen.

"In 1946 Mississippi initiated the first medical correction program of its type in the nation. The program has given new hope and medical correction to some 10,000 children since initiated.

"The National Association of Junior Auxiliaries originated in Greenville, Mississippi, at a meeting of ladies' organizations from some 10 towns in Southern states, on November 3, 1941.

"The Mississippi Department of the American Legion has led in its membership activity over other state departments five times since 1937. It led for three consecutive years and then two consecutive years.

"Two of Mississippi's favorite songs are "The Missouri Waltz" and "St. Louis Blues."

"Mississippi in 1962 held first place in the nation in the number of persons rehabilitated through vocational training, per 100,000 population.

"Mississippi, in 1895, became the first state in the nation to abolish the practice of leasing convicts to private contractors.

"Mississippi was the first state to:

Have a levee system; by Act of Congress, September 28, 1859. Establish a "literacy fund" for free education for poor children.

"The first state land grant college for Negroes established in the United States was at Lorman, Mississippi, now known as Alcorn A & M — an A-1 institution.

"A University of Mississippi surgery team, at the University Medical Center in Jackson, on January 21, 1961, successfully completed the first operation on a human being ever performed under electrical anesthesia in the United States —possibly in the world.

"Mississippi was the birth place of bigtime boxing. The first great championship fight in American ring history was fought on February 7, 1882, at Mississippi City, when John L. Sullivan, strong boy from Boston, defeated Paddy Ryan in 8 rounds for the heavy-weight title of the world.

The Governor changed his remarks to more recent comments when he said,

"The proposed act of Congress on voting apparently is unconstitutional. However, the United States Supreme Court will ultimately pass on the constitutionality of the act and I understand from the news media that the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court was leading the cheering section while the President was talking. It was apparent that all Congressmen were not present when the President made his speech. Someone seems to have had the House chambers packed with capital office help and pages to make it appear that all Congressmen were there, when in fact, they were not.

"The voting laws in Mississippi are fair to all people. Anyone who can meet the legal requirements will be eligible to vote. They are as fair to one as to another. The law is to be applied to all in the same manner. It seems to me that the purpose of the proposed new legislation on voting rights is to replace Southern Senators, Congressmen and others with radicals. We would not have any trouble in the South if we were let alone. This legislation is punitive, and punitive legislation is not for the best interests of the people. The state of Alaska is very much disturbed over it. People there are beginning to realize what it means. Our Congressmen from the Far West was asked to vote to do away with all literacy tests in voting. He talked favorable at first and then he said — but you know that will affect my state.

"There is a significant relationship between New Jersey's first constitution of 1776 and Section IV of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States, which in effect guarantees to each state such protection as might be necessary to control its own domestic affairs.

"The only thing today between the people of America and Dictatorship in the Constitution of the United States as it was written and not as it is being interpreted by judicial decrees and by executive orders.

"Millions of Americans, in every state, are deeply concerned, and rightly so, about the state of affairs in our nation today. The future of constitutional government in the United States is in grave danger from selfish minority blocs that have the open support of high government officials.

"Right thinking Americans are disturbed, they are disappointed and many are shocked by the complacency of some of our would-be statesmen, who for the sake of political expediency would forefeit your birthright which was paid for in blood and sacrifice. There are too many selfish, mealy - mouth-pussy-footing fence - riding politicians who are selling the American people down the river for their own personal political ambition and gain.

"Gov. Wallace is a truly great statesman.

"The only proper way to change the form of this government, if it need be changed at all, is by submitting the proposals to the people? Neither the Congress, the President nor the Supreme Court has the power to make this change. To accomplish the ends sought, the Constitution would have to be scraped and a new one set

Burglar Does Not Love Cats

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A 25-pound cat and his 105-pound mistress combined forces today to rout a burglar.

Mrs. Alice Whitney, 47, a commercial decorator, said her cat, Lord Samuel, is overweight because of a fondness for candy and she is underweight because of illness.

Alone Wednesday night because her husband, Ray Whitney, was traveling, Mrs. Whitney got up about 4:30 a.m. to get some medicine and found a man in her living room. He had prepared himself some food and was eating at a coffee table.

"I was good and mad," Mrs. Whitney told police later. She grabbed a shovel from the fire place.

"I belted him a good one alongside the head. His false teeth fell out . . . he grabbed a pair of scissors — my scissors — and came after me."

Mrs. Whitney said she had learned judo in Texas and continued:

"I tried to grab him around the head to apply a judo hold. I couldn't get hold of his head. I got him by the sweater. . . tried to throw him over my shoulder but I didn't get the right leverage and I threw him against the fireplace wall. His hip was hurt. . . He reached down and picked up his false teeth. . . I opened the bedroom door and turned Lord Samuel loose on him."

The cat, she said, has been trained to fight on command.

"Lord Samuel was clawing him viciously about the face and head. He begged me to call the cat off. I had to pull Lord Samuel off him. The man dragged himself into the kitchen, me following him and whacking him with the shovel on the back. . He went outside. . . I called the police."

When patrolmen Robert Clave and Charles Cordell arrived they found the intruder gone with $65 in cash, a carton of cigarettes and the Whitney living room, kitchen and garage were stained with blood.

Burglar Does Not Love Cats

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A 25-pound cat and his 105-pound mistress combined forces today to rout a burglar.

Mrs. Alice Whitney, 47, a commercial decorator, said her cat, Lord Samuel, is overweight because of a fondness for candy and she is underweight because of illness.

Alone Wednesday night because her husband, Ray Whitney, was traveling, Mrs. Whitney got up about 4:30 a.m. to get some medicine and found a man in her living room. He had prepared himself some food and was eating at a coffee table.

"I was good and mad," Mrs. Whitney told police later. She grabbed a shovel from the fire place.

"I belted him a good one alongside the head. His false teeth fell out . . . he grabbed a pair of scissors — my scissors — and came after me."

Mrs. Whitney said she had learned judo in Texas and continued:

"I tried to grab him around the head to apply a judo hold. I couldn't get hold of his head. I got him by the sweater. . . tried to throw him over my shoulder but I didn't get the right leverage and I threw him against the fireplace wall. His hip was hurt. . . He reached down and picked up his false teeth. . . I opened the bedroom door and turned Lord Samuel loose on him."

The cat, she said, has been trained to fight on command.

"Lord Samuel was clawing him viciously about the face and head. He begged me to call the cat off. I had to pull Lord Samuel off him. The man dragged himself into the kitchen, me following him and whacking him with the shovel on the back. . He went outside. . . I called the police."

When patrolmen Robert Clave and Charles Cordell arrived they found the intruder gone with $65 in cash, a carton of cigarettes and the Whitney living room, kitchen and garage were stained with blood.

OF DOGS AND WAGGING

Does dog wag tail, or the reverse?
Is this for better, or for worse?
And then, there is the feeling, too,
Your dog is really wagging you.

"For the sake of our individual freedoms; for the sake of local self-government; for the sake of our basic Constitutional Law; for the very life of our nation as "The land of the free and the home of the brave"; We must work together, we must pool our energies and our talents, from every state of this nation, in order to save our great nation from destruction from within.

"Today, in America, we stand at the crossroads of a great turning point in human history. This is the greatest threat of changing our friends since reconstruction days. Our people are divided on fundamental principles more than ever before since the birth of our nation. Our land is under a state of siege. Today, we are living in extraordinary times. To my humble way of thinking, we must get back to the great and matchless fundamental principles which were so graciously handed down to us by the wise and courageous founders of this government. This we must do if we are to survive. These fundamental principals have made our nation the greatest in the world. We have become the greatest nation on the face of the globe because we adhered to the fundamental principles of government which our forefathers promulgated. No other nation has such a glorious past as ours. We must return to the basic principles upon which our civilization was built in order to replace the theories of centralization of government, Left-Wing theories and concentration of power. We must have faith in our fundamental principles and we must remember that a crusading faith is defeated only by a greater faith.

"This nation was federally centralized for the purpose of protecting our freedoms from foreign aggression and decentralized in the states for the preservation of our individual liberties and freedom of action on the local level. We must continue to fight hard to perpetuate these fundamental principles because we believe in them and because we know they have proven to be for the best interest of the American people.

"Today, more than at any other time in this century, men and women, north and south, east and west, are rallying to the defense of our Constitutional government based on the historic, fundamental and timeless principles of government of, by and for the people. The government that governs best governs least.

"States" rights, local self-government, liberty, freedom, constitutional government -- These are not just of interest to southern people -- these, my friends, are the foundation stones upon which this great nation was built and without which this nation will weaken, crumble and fall.

"The time has now arrived to reverse the present trend of centralization of power in Washington. If we do not reverse this trend and restore sanity in government, we will surely perish in the castastrophe.

"The rights of the states are being sacrificed and ruthlessly destroyed by an all-consuming Federal Government. The Federal Government is constantly making a whipping boy of the states and is overstepping its constitutional powers. The Federal Government is assuming to exercise powers it does not have under the Constitution and that, by the Constitution, were expressly reserved in the states and the people thereof by the Tenth Amendment.

"Not only the Southern states, but all of the States of the Union are conscious of the present peril to state sovereignty. All of the states have a common interest in their own survival and the restoration of their respective constitutional powers.

"Surely, the states are conscious of their peril and of the peril to their people. We must no longer remain idle or complacent. The clarion call must be sounded for the states to come to their own defense and obtain a restoration of constitutional government.

"States rights and constitutional government are inseparable. The Tenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States very clearly states that the position of the states as related to the Federal government, and here is what it says:

"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution nor prohibited by it to the states are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

"States rights and local self-government are older than the Constitution. They existed before the union was formed and were recognized and protected by Thomas Jefferson and the other founding fathers when they wrote the Constitution.

"Our businesses shall ever be subjected to Washington bureaucratic police rule. If we lose state's rights which safeguard the most precious of all human rights — the right to control and govern ourselves at home — the right of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness — then may we ask, "For what is a man profiteth if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

"A state that loses the right to exercise exclusive jurisdiction over its own local affairs, loses it political soul and its citizens have lost their most valuable freedom.

"I wish to emphasize that the term "state's rights" means much more to the people of this nation than simple theory. It means the preservation of democracy and freedom itself.

"Every section of this nation favors human rights. But it is a fraud upon the American people to pretend that human rights can long endure without constitutional restrictions on the power of government.

"The proposal to take from you the right to deal with your local problems in the state of Missouri in a way that is satisfactory to you and to invest the right to deal with those problems in Washington in a way that is wholly unsatisfactory to you is so antagonistic to our form of government and so contrary to everything that we have stood for since 1776 that it is obliged to be un-American in principle and undemocratic in execution.

"The moment that government becomes remote, distant, mysterious and beyond the comprehension of the people themselves, danger arises and we subject ourselves to abuse of power and ultimate dictatorship. When the United States of America was formed and the Constitution was written, the people were insistent in demanding that local government be forever preserved in all of its dignity and all of its safeguards. In the drafting in the Constitution, it was specifically provided that the right and authority of the states to conduct their own affairs should be preserved inviolate and there was conferred upon the Federal government only so much power and authority as was necessary to control and regulate the relationships of the states one with another and the conduct of this nation's foreign affairs and unified defense.

"Ratification of the Constitution by the original states was obtained only after the citizens in each state received definite and positive assurances that this fundamental concept of government was recognized by the Constitution. Is this principle of states' rights an archaic doctrine, as insisted by those who seek the concentration of power in Washington? I say to you that it is a living principle, as vital and essential today as it was in the foundation days of the Republic —the doctrine of free society and free men, as opposed to regimentation of thought and action.

"Democracy is not a thing of Washington. Democracy is a thing of the crossroads. It is at the crossroads of America that the children of this nation live. It is at the crossroads that their children are born — that they go to church on Sunday — that the schools are placed — that the average American citizen lives his life and is finally taken to his reward. It is at the crossroads that the life of America takes place — not in Washington.

"I am convinced that our schools are local affairs, as is the police force, the fire department, the city and county governments, the habits of the people, the conduct of local business and all the hundreds of affairs of daily life. The right to work, or play, to choose our vocation and to change our job, to guide the education of our children, to attend the church of our choice, to work with whom we please, to go where we choose. These rights are ours solely because the Federal government by the Constitution, was denied the power to interfere with them. Also, the fields of education, housing, employment, apportionment of state legislatures, voting qualifications, police powers, and others are reserve powers under the Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution."

Two Cases In Court

Judge E. R. Schrader heard two cases in city court during the past 24 hours. Napoleon Pollack, 322 Luther, charged with assault with a deadly weapon, was bound over to Scott county authorities.

Will Pointer, Sikeston, charged with drunkenness, plead guilty, and was fined $6 and costs, $12.
